

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

The speaker laid before the House the message of his Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

To the Legislative Council

and General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey.

GENTLEMEN :

It is with diffidence that I undertake the execution of that duty which requires me to submit to you, such remarks as have occurred to me, in relation to the resources, finances, laws, and polity of the State; and to recommend such measures in relation thereto, as will, in my opinion, promote the happiness and prosperity of the people.

That diffidence is increased by the strong conviction, that the interests of the State are deeply involved in the course of legislation which may be now adopted.

A detailed statement of the finances of the State will be made by the proper officer; by which it will appear, that the receipts of the Treasury, during the last year, amount to the sum of \$124,483 73 which added to the sum of \$10,306 08, the amount in the Treasury at the commencement of the year, makes an aggregate amount of \$134,789 81. And the disbursements for the same period, amount to the sum of \$132,840 12 $\frac{1}{2}$, leaving a balance in the Treasury on the twenty-third of October instant of \$1,949 68 $\frac{1}{2}$.

In this statement of receipts are included several temporary loans amounting to $43,778 40, all of which have been repaid, except one loan from the trustees of the school fund, amounting to the sum of $13,778 40, and one from the Trenton Banking Company, amounting to the sum of two thousand dollars, which last mentioned loan was made agreeably to the provisions of the act of last session, entitled "An Act making further appropriations for the completion of the State Penitentiary."

The statement of disbursements includes those temporary loans which have been paid, amounting to the sum of twenty-eight thousand dollars, also the sum of twenty thousand dollars, being the amount of a loan made by the Trenton Banking Company on the eighth day of October, A. D. eighteen hundred and thirty-five — Also, the amount of $14,071 59, paid on account of building the new penitentiary, together with several smaller items, not properly chargeable to the yearly account for the support of government, amounting to $2,113 74, forming an aggregate of $64,185 33, which being deducted from the gross amount of disbursements, shows a balance of $68,064 79, as the amount properly chargeable for the support of government for the past year. This amount exceeds that of the preceding year, by the amount of $18,839 20, which excess has been occasioned principally by the extra session of the last Legislature, and the increased compensation of its members and officers.

In the communication which I had the honor to make to the Legislature last year, I estimated the receipts from the Camden and Amboy Rail Road Company, and the Canal Company, at $4,276 16. They have exceeded that estimate by $876 50, and from the depression of business during the past year, and the consequent decrease of travelling and transportation, it is probable that the receipts for the current year from that source will exceed those of the last, and with other sources of revenue it may be safely estimated, that the receipts for the current year from all sources, will amount to the sum of $40,000. In estimating the disbursements for the same time, if we assume the amount expended last year as the basis of our calculation, and deduct therefrom the expenses of the extra session, it leaves a balance of $63,956 48, exceeding the estimated amount of receipts, by the sum of $23,956 48.

From this it appears, that without providing for the payment of the debt of the State, or for the payment of any appropriation which may be made, the ordinary disbursements for the support of the government during the current year will exceed our income by the amount of $23,956 48, above stated, and it is therefore evident, that it will be necessary again to resort to a state tax; and as the amount which may be assessed, cannot be realized during the current year, some provision must be made to enable the State to meet such demands as may, in the mean time, be made upon the Treasury. And in adjusting the amount of tax to be raised, permit me to suggest, that although a just regard for the rights of the people requires, that you should not draw from their pockets, an amount greater than necessary, yet you should take care, that the treasury should be so supplied, as to avoid the necessity of a constant recurrence to temporary loans. Under the several acts for the relief of the indigent, deaf, dumb, and blind, there are now eighteen of that unfortunate class of our fellow citizens receiving their support and instruction in the institutions established for that purpose in the cities of New-York and Philadelphia. The amount paid last year upon that account was $2,306 66, and the amount for the current year will be about $3,446 00.

I presume it is not necessary to urge upon you the propriety of continuing the appropriation for this purpose: common justice and charity require it. But I would respectfully suggest that it may better comport with the cause of humanity, and with sound policy, to establish similar institutions in this State, and I would recommend that such investigations should be made as to enable you to judge of the propriety of adopting such a measure.

In conformity with the provisions of the act of last session, requiring that the old State Prison should be converted into an arsenal for the safe keeping of the public arms, a part of that building has been altered, and fitted up, in such manner as to receive, and there are now deposited therein, about two thousand stand of arms, being all that we now have remaining here, together with the munitions and camp equipage. The sum of five hundred dollars appropriated by that act for the purpose, has been expended, and I would recommend that a further appropriation be made, to fit up other parts of that building, to receive our quota of arms, due from the United States ordnance department, amounting to about nine thousand stand; there is sufficient room in the building, and with little expense, it may be put in proper condition to receive, and safely keep, those arms.

It is with great satisfaction that I call your attention to the subject of our Penitentiary system. On the first of this month there were one hundred and forty-one convicts confined in our new Prison, and this year for the first time in New-Jersey, has the Prison supported itself. It now exhibits a nett balance in favor of the State of $1741 41, after paying all charges and expenses incident to the establishment, when, by reference to last year's report, it appears that the Prison cost the State the sum of $1352 31, making a difference between the two years of $3093 72. And when it is considered that this is the first year that the new system has been adopted, that the prisoners in the course of the year were removed into this Prison, thereby creating considerable delay and loss of time, that by reason of the increased price of provision, fuel, &c., the Prison has necessarily cost $973 08 more than the last year; and that the year, by reason of the depression in all kinds of business, has been particularly unfavorable for the sale of the articles manufactured in the Prison, the result is much more favorable than could reasonably have been expected: and it is due to those who have had the superintendence of the establishment to say, that this favorable result is to be attributed, in a great measure, to the perfect order, system and economy, with which it has been managed. We may hereafter safely rely upon this, as one of the sources of revenue to the State. As there are now finished but one hundred and forty-four cells and one hundred and forty-one convicts confined, there is manifest danger, that they may soon have more tenants, than they can accommodate: I therefore recommend that an appropriation be made to finish the remaining forty-eight cells without delay.

At the last session of the legislature, an appropriation of $2000 was made for the purpose of continuing the geological and mineralogical survey of the State. I am authorized by Professor Rogers, who has charge of that service, to say, that no further appropriation will be required, but in order to finish his survey, and make report, in a manner satisfactory to himself, and useful to the public, further time will be required.

The trustees for the support of Free schools have loaned to the New-Jersey Rail Road and Transportation Company the sum of $100,000. at an interest of six per cent, agreeably to the provisions of the act of last session, entitled "An Act relative to the New-Jersey Rail Road and Transportation Company," and have secured to the State the privilege of investing the amount of that loan at any time within seven years, in the capital stock of that Company, at par.

By virtue of an act of last session, entitled "An Act to authorize the reception of the Surplus Revenue of the United States," there has been received in deposito the sum of $764,664 80, being three quarter parts of the amount of the surplus revenue of the general government, which was apportioned to this State; and the faith of the State has been pledged for the safe keeping and repayment thereof according to the provisions of the thirteenth section of the act of Congress of the United States, entitled "An Act to regulate the depositories of the public money." The deposito of the fourth quarter or instalment of that fund has been postponed by a late act of Congress. But I should not consider it prudent to rely upon the receipt of that instalment as the basis of any legislative action, as its eventual distribution will probably depend upon the financial situation of the general government at the time.

As to the three instalments which have been received, the amount has been paid over to the several counties of the state agreeably to the provisions of the act, entitled "An act making provisions for the deposito and distribution of so much of the surplus revenue of the United States as now is, or may hereafter be apportioned to, and received by this state," passed on the tenth of March last past. The particular manner in which this distribution has been made will be stated in a report to be made by the officers who were charged with the distribution of that fund.

For some years past, and more particularly during the last year, a course of legislation has been adopted, which appears to me liable to very serious objections. I refer to those private acts which dispose of the rights of minors, and authorize the sale of their real estate, upon some specious pretences of doing them a kindness.

By reference to the laws of the last session, it will appear, that there are more than thirty acts of this character, and almost all founded upon the mere representations of the friends or relations of the minors interested. There is great reason to fear that in most cases, those minors, when they shall arrive at full age, will have cause to regret that their real estate has been converted into a less substantial security, and instead of a valuable farm, they may find a worthless bond, with no other evidence of its value than a certificate of some former governor of the state, that the obligors were at one time considered responsible men.

If it be expedient that any further power to grant relief in such cases should exist, let it be conferred on some competent court, who from their organization, are better calculated to investigate facts. I do not however intend to intimate, that any further power should be given to any court upon the subject; on the contrary, I am of opinion, that the interest of minors who own real estate, would be most effectually promoted and secured by retaining their titles in such estate, except in cases where it becomes necessary that it should be sold for their support and education, and in such cases, the courts already have all the power and authority that is required.

The subject of our banking system, and the condition of the country, as connected with that system, will necessarily engage your most serious attention. It is a notorious and most extraordinary fact, that in a time of profound peace, and apparent prosperity throughout the whole country, many of the manufacturers and merchants, most of the brokers and speculators, and all the banks have suspended payment, and thereby paralyzed the efforts of the enterprising, destroyed the confidence of capitalists, and thrown out of employment many of the operatives of our country, upon whose exertions its wealth and prosperity in a great measure depend.

This singular state of things naturally leads to an investigation of the causes by which it has been produced, and to the adoption of such measures as may appear best calculated to prevent its recurrence. The prominent cause is undoubtedly to be found in that spirit of speculation and extravagance which prevailed for some years past, which spirit was originally raised, and afterwards kept up by the great facility of procuring money from the banks, and by the great increase of our circulating medium.

From those causes, all kinds of property became much enhanced in nominal value; the people concluded that they were growing rich with great rapidity, and adapted their business and style of living, to the amount of their imagined wealth.— Some fortunate speculators actually succeeded in amassing large and overgrown fortunes, and of course others had to lose in the same proportion ; for it is to be remarked that this particular manner of getting rich, adds nothing to the common stock of property. Of course this state of things could not continue. A man may live beyond his income for some time, by borrowing of his neighbors, but he must finally lose his credit, and then, if he would restore that credit, he must live as much within his income, as to enable him to refund the money borrowed. The former part of this course, while he is borrowing, is denominated “prosperous times,” the latter part is stigmatised as “hard times.” It was so with the public ; they anticipated their incomes, by borrowing of the banks, and when their credit was exhausted, and the “hard times” came, they charged the reverse to any cause, rather than to their own extravagance or folly.

As to existing embarrassments, the people have adopted, and are adopting the most effectual remedy, by adapting their business, and manner of living to their means. This course will soon produce the desired effect ; and it is hoped, and confidently believed, that the banks will soon re-establish their credit, so far as it can be done, by the resumption of specie payments.

If it be necessary to extend any relief to the Banks, permit me earnestly to recommend, that no act may be passed, which may recognize their suspension of specie payments, or justify its continuance, or in any other manner interfere with the rights and remedies now existing between them and their creditors. It may be well questioned, whether any such act would be sanctioned by the constitution : but at all events it would be unjust to deprive the people of any remedy, which they may have under existing laws.

If it should be considered that the fact of the suspension of specie payment has rendered the banks liable to a forfeiture of their charters, and thereby placed them entirely within the undisputed power of legislation ; I would suggest that such power be used, only for the purpose of putting them under such proper restraints as may ensure their resumption of specie payment, at the earliest possible time, and to prevent them from again failing to perform their duty to the public, according to the spirit of their charters.

To ascertain the nature and extent of those restrictions, is a matter of great importance and difficulty, and will require your patient investigation. I am strongly impressed with the belief, that we have too many banks, and that our currency is composed too much of bank notes. In a mixed currency like ours, there should be at least sufficient gold and silver to keep it sound. I do not know the true proportion that is necessary for that purpose, but it is most manifest, that there is no danger of having too much specie, and you have to guard only, against an excess of paper, if there should be any mistake, in adjusting the ratio between the two, that mistake should be in favor of the specie. Such a mistake could be easily corrected, whereas a mistake on the other hand would be corrected only by the recurrence of another scene of commercial embarrassment, such as we have recently experienced. In examining this subject, you will find that there is a most powerful interest in the country, against which you have to contend, in your efforts to limit the circulation of bank notes, within proper bounds.

It is evident that an excessive issue of such notes, not only adds to the profits of those institutions, but tends necessarily to create frequent fluctuations in the prices of all kinds of property, and of course such excessive issues are beneficial in their consequences, not only to all that class of people who own stock in banks, but to all dealers in exchanges, brokers, and dealers in stocks, whose business depends upon fluctuations, and to all speculators. These classes of men control most of the money of the country, and from this circumstance, combined with their talents and enterprize, their influence is almost irresistible. On the other hand, it is the interest of the regular merchant, the manufacturer, the mechanic, the farmer, and of the country and its republican institutions, that property should maintain an uniformity of prices. Fluctuations tend to make the rich richer, and the poor poorer ; uniformity of price has the contrary effect. As you value those institutions, let me urge upon you to adopt such measures as may effectually prevent the banks from the abuse of those privileges which were granted for the benefit of the people at large, and not for the exclusive advantage of those who may be directly interested in their stocks. Under existing circumstances, it is due to the community and to the banks themselves, that efficient measures should be adopted to ascertain their true condition : by that means, confidence will be restored to those institutions that are entitled to it, and the people will be protected against those that are not ; and I indulge the hope that by the prompt execution of salutary legal regulations upon the subject we may soon enjoy the benefits of our banking system, without being harassed by the evils arising from its abuse.

The attention of the Legislature has been called to the subject of our common schools for years past, without producing any favorable result. Our present system is totally inefficient, and it is a matter of too great moment to be neglected. On behalf of the thousands of our fellow citizens who are growing up in ignorance, and on behalf of our civil, political, and religious institutions, that depend for their perpetuity upon the virtue and intelligence of the people, permit me in closing this communication, to commend this subject to your earliest and most careful consideration.

PH. DICKERSON.

2. Every member shall attend in his place, precisely at the hour to which the House was last adjourned, and in case of neglect, he shall be subject to a reprimand from the Chair, unless excused by the House; nor shall any member absent himself from the House, for more than the space of a quarter of an hour, without leave previously obtained.
3. In case a less number of members than a quorum shall be present, after the arrival of the hour to which the House stood adjourned, they are hereby authorized to send their Sergeant-at-arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent members, as the majority of such as are present may agree, and at the expense of such absent members respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be rendered, as the House, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient.

Of the duties of the Speaker.

4. He shall take the chair at the hour to which the House shall have adjourned, and immediately call the members to order; and on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the journal of the preceding day to be read, which may then be corrected by the House.
5. He shall preserve order and decorum, and in debate shall prevent personal reflections, and confine members to the question under discussion; but he shall not engage in any debate, nor propose his opinion upon any question, without leave of the House. When two or more members rise at the same time, he shall name the one entitled to the floor.
6. He shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the House, when demanded by any four members; on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by leave of the House.

7. All questions before the House shall be stated by the Speaker, and distinctly put in the following form, to wit: "As many as are in favor of (the question) will say Aye;" and after the affirmative is expressed, "Those of a contrary opinion, No." If the Speaker doubts, or a division be called for, the House shall divide ; those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats, and afterwards those in the negative ; and in case of an equal division, the Speaker shall decide.

8. All committees shall be appointed by the Speaker, unless otherwise specially directed by the House.

10. He shall have a general direction of the Hall. And he may name a member to perform the duties of the Chair, but such a substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.

On the Order of Business.

The House shall then proceed to the order of the day, preference being always given to the unfinished business of the preceding sitting ; after which, bills and joint resolutions on a second reading, shall be taken up in their order. And the business of the second meeting of each day shall be conducted in the same manner, except as to reading the journal.

12. All bills and joint resolutions, shall be numbered by the Clerk as they are severally introduced, and a list made of the same, to lie on the table ; and they shall be called up for consideration, according to their numerical order, unless upon special motion, the House shall otherwise direct.

17. If a member be called to order for words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order, shall repeat the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the clerk's table; and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to censure of the House, for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken, or other business has intervened, after the words spoken, and before exception to them shall have been taken.

18. No member shall speak more than twice to the same question without leave of the House.

19. Whilst the Speaker is putting any question, or addressing the House, none shall walk out of, or across the House; nor, in such case, or where a member is speaking, shall any one, entertain private discourse; nor shall any one whilst a member is speaking, pass between him and the chair.

20. No member shall vote on any question, in the event of which he is particularly interested, nor in any case where he was not present when the question was put.

21. Every member who shall be in the House when the question is put shall give his vote, unless the House for special reasons, shall excuse him.

25. 26. A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill or joint resolution shall have precedence of a motion to amend and if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection.

28. Any member may call for the division of a question which shall be divided, if it comprehends questions so distinct, that one being taken away the rest may stand entire for the decision of the House; a motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible. But a motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither amendment nor a motion to strike out and insert.

29. When any motion shall be made and seconded, the names of the persons moving and seconding the same, shall, at the request of any two members, be entered on the journal of the House.

30. When a motion has been once made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the majority, to move for the reconsideration thereof, on the same or the succeeding day, which motion shall require the assent of two-thirds of the members present.

31. A motion for commitment, until it is decided, shall preclude amendment or decision of the main question.

33. The yeas and nays shall be entered on the journal on every question taken in the House, when moved for and seconded by any five members; and in taking the yeas and nays the names of the members, including the Speaker, shall be called alphabetically.

34. The previous question shall be put in this form:— “Shall the main question be now put?” It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, and shall be decided without debate; until it is decided, it shall preclude all amendment and discussion of the original subject.

REPORT.

To the Legislative Council, and

General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey.

The undersigned beg leave respectfully to report :

That by virtue of an Act of this State, passed on the fourth of November last, entitled "An Act to authorize the reception of the surplus revenue of the United States," they were appointed to receive the proportion of the surplus revenue of the General Government, which might fall to the share of this State ; and, in the execution of their duty in that respect, they have received of that fund the sum of $764,670 60, in three separate and equal instalments of $254,890 20 each ; and by virtue of the authority conferred upon them by that Act, they have pledged the faith of the State, for the safe keeping and repayment thereof, from time to time, whenever the same shall be required by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, according to the provisions of the 13th section of the Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to regulate the deposite of the public money," approved June 23d, 1836.

And they further report, That by virtue of an Act of this State, passed March 10, A. tending to retain from the last instalment, such further amount as might then appear necessary ; and they further shew, that as soon after the receipt of said fund as the necessary arrangements could be made with the several counties, they distributed the same in the following manner :

And they further shew, that they have taken from the several counties, certificates of said several depositories, which certificates express the usual and legal obligations of the counties respectively, for the safe keeping and repayment of said depositories, and pledge the faith of the several counties receiving the same, to pay the said money, and every part thereof, from time to time, whenever the same shall be required for the purpose of being refunded into the Treasury of the United States, according to the provisions of an act of Congress to regulate the public depositories, passed the 23d of June, A. D. 1836, or whenever, in the opinion of the Legislature, the interest of the State may require its return, which said certificates are filed in the Office of the Treasurer of this State.

THE Special Committee to whom was referred that part of the message of the late Governor, which relates to the banking system, the embarrassed condition of the country, and the causes thereof, and the various memorials addressed to this House, praying for the relief of the Banks in this State, and the repeal of the laws which prohibit the issue and circulation of notes of the Banks of this State under the denomination of five dollars, ask leave to make the following report :

THE late President of the United States, on the third day of March last, in his farewell address to the American people, congratulated them upon the "prosperity and happiness" in which he was about to leave them, and upon the success of "his humble efforts to restore the constitutional currency of gold and silver," and yet, within a few short weeks from this period, a scene of embarrassment and distress, unparalleled in the history of our country, began to develope itself. Suddenly, and as if by enchantment, credit perished ; confidence was destroyed ; business in all its branches prostrated, the arm of enterprise paralyzed ; and instead of the "constitutional currency" being restored, gold and silver were banished from circulation, and the banks, from one extremity of the Union to the other, driven to the necessity of suspending specie payments. Such too, has continued to be our calamitous condition. We still behold, on every side of us, the most touching exhibitions of embarrassment and distress. Every where we see melancholy wrecks of our former prosperity. Instead of that currency under which we have so long prospered, composed in part of the precious metals, and in part of paper convertible on demand into specie, a currency so admirably adapted to our wants and our pursuits, we have inflicted upon us that greatest curse which can befall a country like ours, an irredeemable paper currency.

What has precipitated us into such a state? What has brought about such a catastrophe? We must explore the causes of our disease before we can apply a remedy.

One of the greatest evils under which we are now laboring, is that of a disordered currency. All our other evils may in fact be resolved into it. The currency is the life-blood of our whole system. Its purity and soundness are essential to the health and vigour of the body politic. Let it be corrupted in its source, or impeded in its free circulation, and it is impossible for the country to be in a safe or a prosperous condition. On the other hand, let our currency be properly regulated, and whatever other disorders may threaten us, we may hope to rise superior to them. We may be visited by an inordinate spirit of speculation or extravagance: we may be exposed to those commercial disasters and revulsions in trade, to which a people of our widely extended and infinitely diversified pursuits are always liable; but let our currency be sound and uniform, and we shall soon recover from the shock.

Seeing then that it is the disordered state of the currency which lies at the bottom of all our difficulties, it is but natural that, in searching for the causes of our embarrassment, our attention should be first directed to the measures of the late administration of the general government. For, be it remembered, the currency was the subject of those measures. Their avowed object was to improve the currency of the country. They were to furnish us with a "better currency." The history of that administration is in truth little else than a series of experiments upon the currency of the country.

First in order of time, as well as in importance, was the removal of the deposits. These deposits, amounting to many millions of dollars, were removed from the Bank of the United States, where they were directed by law to be placed, and where they had just been pronounced to be perfectly safe, by a large majority of the House of Representatives. By an arbitrary and high-handed act of executive authority, they were transferred to the custody of a number of state banks.

scattered throughout the country. Who has forgotten the sensation produced by that event? It came upon the country like a peal of thunder, and shook, to its lowest foundations, the whole system of national credit and currency. Its fatal consequences were distinctly foretold, and fatally and fearfully have those consequences been realized. What was then the language of prophecy, has now become sober but melancholy history. Was it not predicted, that the placing of such large sums at the disposal of the State Banks, would stimulate them to overaction; that it would lead to an undue expansion and consequent depreciation of the currency; that it would multiply indefinitely the number of State Banks; that it would engender a wild and reckless spirit of speculation; and that when the deposite banks were called upon to disgorge their treasures, that then the bubble would burst; that an awful convulsion would ensue, spreading distress and embarrassment throughout the land, and causing almost universal ruin and bankruptcy; and that, last in the train of evils, the banks would be driven to the suspension of specie payments? Which of these things has not come upon us? And, as if to lead to these very results, the deposite banks, instead of being enjoined to guard with watchful care the treasures committed to their custody, until they should be called for, were expressly instructed by the Secretary of the Treasury, to deal them out in liberal loans for the accommodation of the mercantile portion of the community. Thus were the banks goaded by the government into excessive issues, and furnished with immense funds, for the express purpose of extending their discounts. Thus too, were the merchants, to whose over-trading all our ills are now ascribed, tempted and invited to borrow money, and thus extend their business and operations. The consequences were inevitable. The deposite banks carried out to the very letter the instructions of the Secretary. They discounted upon the most liberal scale. Their profits were of course enormous, and the value of their stock rose rapidly in the market. The hope of participating in this profitable traffic, and of obtaining a portion of the government deposits, led to the creation of hundreds of new banks. From the facility with which money could be procured, thousand were seduced into speculation. The value of all kinds of property rose to a most extravagant height, and every man fancied he was growing rich. Sales of public lands were made to an amount, which far out-stripped all calculation; and the proceeds of these sales, flowing into the deposite banks were again loaned out, to return again by the same process. These sales amounted to the enormous sum of forty-four millions of dollars in three years, thus furnishing, from this single source, the whole of that surplus revenue which has been the cause of so much embarrassment. In the mean time, the country appeared to be making the most gigantic strides towards wealth. In every annual message to Congress, the people were congratulated upon their state of unwonted prosperity, and the deposite banks, we were told, were furnishing the country with a better and a more uniform currency than she had ever enjoyed. Now, if extravagance and speculation, if over-banking and over-trading are the sole causes of all our troubles, why were the people not told of the dangers which threatened them, and of the precipice over which they were standing? But No! the Administration was in the full tide of its "experiment," on the swelling flood of its "better currency." And if the patriot's voice was raised in denunciation of the fatal policy of the government, and in forewarning the people of the evils which impended, he was rebuked as a panic maker, and a factious foreboder of misfortunes.

But this state of unnatural and delusive prosperity could not always last. A generous and confiding, but a deceived and deluded people, were soon to be awakened from their golden dreams. The elements of the coming storm, which had been so long gathering, were soon to pour their fury upon the land. It only remained for the people to reclaim that portion of the surplus revenue, which the expenditures of a government, not the most economical, had been unable to absorb. The act for the distribution of the surplus revenue became a law. The administration struggled against it, but for once, the representatives of the people prevailed. It now became manifest, that the experiment was drawing to a close. But to render it still more disastrous, and to fill up the cup of its woes, two additional measures were required. One was the treasury order of July 1836, transferring the public money from the points where it was collected, to other places, in anticipation of its distribution among the states. The other was the Specie Circular, issued without the consent of Congress, and without the authority of the law, by which gold and silver were alone made receivable for public lands. The effect of these two measures was to transfer, by a forced and most unnatural process, a considerable portion of the public moneys, and a large amount of specie, from the Atlantic cities to the western states, and that too at a time, when the West was largely indebted to the East. By such a policy, in addition to the other measures of the government, so entirely was the currency of the country deranged, such utter confusion was introduced into its monetary affairs, that all confidence was at last destroyed. The government made the most unreasonable demands upon the deposite banks. They in their turn were compelled to call upon their customers. The merchants were pressed at the same time, by the banks and by their foreign creditors. All the banks were driven to the necessity of a rapid curtailment of their business. Money, from having been abundant, became alarmingly scarce. The country was threatened with almost total bankruptcy, and universal panic ensued, and the banks, in self-defence, were constrained to resort to a suspension of specie payments.

Such is a brief, but as your committee believe, a correct sketch of the causes which have conducted the country to its present calamitous state. That there has been much speculation and overtrading, that there has been an undue multiplication of banks, and an excessive expansion of the currency, is readily conceded. But these, instead of being the efficient causes of our condition, have, in fact, been themselves the natural and necessary effects, of that pernicious and fatal policy, which the government has so long pursued. The remedy for the evils under which we are suffering is obvious. Let the government retrace its steps. Let it place the country where it found it. Let it restore that currency which we enjoyed, before it commenced its ruinous experiments. A "better currency" we do not want. Instead of destroying, let it seek to restore public confidence. Having, by too close an alliance with the state banks, succeeded in ruining them, do not let it now, by divorcing itself from them, leave them to their fate. Abandoning the absurd and impracticable project of a specie currency, let it apply all its energies towards correcting and reforming the abuses of our banking system; a system to which, notwithstanding its imperfections, we are indebted, under Providence, for much of our prosperity as a people. Above all, let it in this trying crisis, pursue not a narrow and selfish, but an enlarged and a liberal policy, and all will soon be well. There is no cause for despair. The spirit and energies of a free people may be depressed for a time, by the folly or the ignorance of its rulers, but they possess within themselves a recuperative energy. But should the present administration, deaf to the voice of public opinion, and unwilling to learn wisdom from experience, persist in treading in the footsteps of that which preceded it, there is still one remedy left, a peaceful but an efficacious one, a resort to the ballot box.

As to any thing which it may be in the power of the legislature of New Jersey to do, for the alleviation of the public distress, your committee, after much and anxious reflection, are of the opinion, that but little can be accomplished. The evils under which the country is laboring, are not local in their character, nor confined to any particular State; but they are universal in their operation, and embrace every member of our widely extended Union. No partial remedy, therefore, in the power of any one State to administer, can be of much avail. There is however, one subject averted to by the governor in his message, and referred to the consideration of your committee, which is peculiarly within the province of the Legislature. It relates to the banks which exist throughout the State. It is well known that they have all, without exception, suspended specie payments. They did so as soon as the suspension of the banks in New York and Philadelphia became known. In taking this step, the committee are of opinion, that no censure ought to attach to them, but on the contrary, that their conduct was wise and prudent. As to their continuing to pay specie for their notes, when all the other banks in the country had suspended, it was of course out of the question. It would have been madness to have attempted it. The only effect would have been to have compelled them ultimately to suspend, after they had been drained of all their specie, and thus to have intersposed difficulties in the way of an early resumption. By suspending with all their specie in their vaults, it will be in their power to resume at the earliest possible day.

But, however justifiable it may have been in the banks of this State, under all the circumstances of the case, to suspend specie payments, yet it cannot be denied, that by doing so, they have violated the letter of their charters, and exposed themselves to serious consequences. By the charters of some of the banks, the mere act of suspension works an absolute forfeiture. In the case of others, it is made the duty of the directors to close their doors, and discontinue all banking operations, unless a resumption should take place within thirty days. In addition to which, the directors are in many instances, made individually responsible, and the banks are liable to pay to the holders of the notes, payment whereof in specie has been refused, damages at the rate of ten per cent. per annum. Now, as between the directors and the creditors, or as between the banks and the holders of their notes, the committee are decidedly of opinion, that, even if the Legislature had the right, which may well be questioned, yet, that it ought not in justice to interfere. However ruinous it might be to the banks, if these penalties were to be enforced, it would be establishing a precedent of entirely too dangerous a character for the legislature to interpose for their relief. But in reference to those provisions which declare, that a suspension of specie payments shall work a forfeiture of charter, as well as those which require the directors to discontinue all further operations, the committee believe, that they never were designed to meet such a case as that which has now occurred, a suspension brought about, not by the insolvency of the banks, but forced upon them by causes altogether beyond their control. To insist upon a forfeiture of their charters, and to compel them to close their business, would not only be an act of injustice to the banks, but would inflict upon the community the most serious calamities. This would be, not to alleviate, but to aggravate, beyond measure, the distresses of the country. Other legislative enactments may also be required in reference to the banks, in order that the public may be able to reap the full benefits of the system, and, at the same time, be protected, as far as possible, against those abuses to which all human institutions are exposed. But to enable the legislature to act upon this subject with wisdom and intelligence, it is necessary that full and correct information should be had as to the condition of the banks. The annual statements which they are compelled by law to make, are too vague and general in their terms to be perfectly satisfactory; More precise and accurate knowledge is required. When this shall be obtained, those which are deserving of public confidence may be cherished and sustained, while those which are unworthy of it, may no longer have it in their power to impose upon the community. The committee believe, that most, if not all of the banks throughout the State, are in a situation of entire soundness and solvency, and that at the very moment of the suspension of specie payments, they were fully able to meet all their responsibilities. Fortunately for them, they were not the chosen favorites of the government, and were not, by the use of the public depositories, seduced into an imprudent expansion of their circulation, and an undue extension of their business. Should an investigation of their condition take place, and its results prove to be satisfactory, it will then be for the Legislature to adopt such further measures in reference to them, as they in their wisdom may deem right.

Whether in such a case it would not be wise for the legislature to authorize the banks to issue notes of a less denomination than five dollars is a question, which the committee would respectfully submit. The policy of prohibiting the circulation of small notes, viewed as a measure, not of partial, but general legislation, extending throughout the union will not now be disputed. It might be the means of infusing into our circulation a larger proportion of the precious metals, and thus enlarging the specie basis of our currency. But such certainly cannot be its operation now. On the contrary, its only effect is to substitute in the place of the small notes of our own banks, in which we have confidence, an unsafe and a spurious currency, consisting of the notes of banks in other States about which we know nothing, and tickets issued by unauthorized individuals and corporations. Besides, the removal of this restriction would tend very much to facilitate the resumption of specie payments. It would furnish us with a currency, which might continue to circulate after the banks had resumed, and which would thus lessen very materially, the demand upon them for specie. And, lest this privilege of issuing small notes should be abused by the banks, limits might be assigned to their circulation, which would confine it within the bounds of the strictest caution.

In conformity with the views of the committee expressed in the foregoing report, they ask leave to present to the consideration of the House the accompanying bill.

A. C. M. PENNINGTON,
Chairman of Committee.

On motion, Ordered, That one thousand copies of the said report be printed.

Mr. A. C. M Pennington, from the same Committee, reported a bill entitled "An Act concerning Banks ;"

Which was read, ordered a second reading, and to be printed.

Mr. Cassedy gave notice that the minority of the Committee would present a counter report.

The bill from Council entitled "An Act authorizing the sale of a part of the Government Lot,"

Was taken up, agreed to, and ordered to a third reading.

The Speaker presented the following notice, viz:

A Temperance Meeting will be held this evening in the Reformed Church in this City, at 7 o'clock. Several addresses will be delivered. The members of the Legislature are very respectfully invited to attend.

JOHN H. SMALTZ,
Pastor of said Church.

The Chair presented to the House the report of the Physician, Keeper and Inspectors of the New-Jersey State Penitentiary, as follows :

*To the Board of Inspectors
of the New-Jersey Penitentiary.*

GENTLEMEN :—

An unusual degree of health, generally, in this district of country, has been attended with similar results within the precincts of the New-Jersey Prison ; and I do not know as yet whether the cell confinement may not be as healthy as a more free and open space was formerly. In corroboration of which I have only to state, that no death has taken place within the walls, since the removal to the new prison.

JAMES T. CLARKE.

State Prison, Nov. 6, 1837.

*To the Board of Inspectors
of the New-Jersey Penitentiary.*

The Keeper respectfully reports—That,
The whole amount of earnings during the year,
are

$13,146 73
6,798 03

Leaving a balance in favor of the Prison for the present year, of

$6,348 70

Being the amount over and above the expense of keeping the prisoners for the year ending September 30, 1837.

The amount of the salaries of the officers of the prison for the same period being subtracted from the above, which is $4,607 29

Shows a balance of in favor of the prison after paying all its expenses.

$1,741 41

By referring to last year's report, it may be seen that the prison fell short of supporting itself and paying the expense of its officers,

$1,352 31

Which makes a difference in favor of the prison between the year 1837 and the one preceding, of

$3,093 72

Although the expense of the present year exceeds the former, by $973 08, which is to be accounted for by the high price of provision, the increased amount of fuel consumed, and the hiring of servants since the act of last winter prohibiting the use of convicts out of their cells, and having to furnish each cell separately, and other parts of the prison, with furniture, this year being the first of the operations of the new prison, may account for the difference between this and the last year's inventory.

As it respects the health of the prisoners, we have cause to be grateful to a kind and gracious Providence, that we have been unusually favored. We have had but little sickness, and no death, since our removal to the new prison, and but one during the whole year; and that at the old prison, on the 3d October, 1836; and in respect to their behaviour, with few exceptions, they have been orderly.

In respect to the discipline, it is mild and humane. We find that the milder punishments, such as depriving the convicts of light, of work, and of food, have the best effect, and seldom fail to bring the most refractory to submission.

Respecting the moral and religious instruction, every convict is supplied with a bible, and every week religious books and tracts, such as we have, are given to them; and almost every Sabbath they have preaching by the clergy of the city of Trenton, viz: the Rev. Messrs. Yeomans, Starr, Smaltz, Dandy, Huntington, Fitch, Atwood, and Webster, who deserve the thanks of the officers of the institution; and there have been other pious persons, particularly members of the Friends Society, who have manifested a concern for them by visiting and speaking to their profit and manifest comfort. It is believed that it would add to the morals of the convicts if they had a greater variety of moral and religious books to read, and should the Keeper be authorized by law to purchase them, to be kept for that purpose, it might not only add to their comfort, but enable them to be a greater benefit to society when discharged.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH A. YARD, Keeper.

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of New-Jersey.

The Inspectors of the new State Penitentiary, in obedience to the requirements of section 1., article 1, of "An Act for the regulation of the State Penitentiary," passed March 15th, 1837 ; Respectfully ask leave to report :

That on the 1st day of October, 1836, (the commencement of the fiscal year,) the whole number of prisoners remaining in confinement in the old Penitentiary, amounted to 113, which number had increased to —— on the 24th of the same month, when they were removed to the new State Penitentiary, placed immediately in separate confinement, and put to labor, as soon as the several cells could be furnished and fitted up for that purpose ; with the exception of about 17 men, who were employed by the Commissioner for the erection of the new Penitentiary, under the authority of the Act of 27th of February, 1833 ; and a few who were employed through the day, in cooking, baking, washing, &c. for the prisoners.

The law of March 15th, 1837, which prohibits the employing any convict, as cook, clerk, or servant, in the prison, rendered it necessary for the Board to authorize such alterations to be made as would enable the principal keeper to have the baking and washing done by two of the convicts, in the shops adjoining their cells : and also to sanction the employing three servants, one as a cook for the prisoners, one as engineer, and one to do the out door labor in the yard. Since that period, the Pennsylvania system of separate confinement with labor, and occasional religious and moral instruction, has been carried out as far as practicable, in the new state penitentiary, and has thus far more than realized our hopes and expectations.

The close of the year, on the 30th of September, 1837, found us with the number of prisoners in confinement here, increased to 141 ; exclusive of 17 who have been discharged by expiration of sentence, 17 by pardon from the Governor and Council, and one who died in the old prison, before his removal here ; from which it will be seen, that the commitments to the new state penitentiary within the year, have amounted to 63.

Of those in confinement on the 1st day of October, 1837, one was nine years old when received in prison, 22 between the ages of 10 and 20, 64 between 20 and 30, 35 between 30 and 40, 9 between 40 and 50, 9 between 50 and 60, and one 62.

years of age ; ninety-one of which are white males, one white female ; forty-five colored males, and four colored females.

Seventy-one are natives of New Jersey, eight of Pennsylvania, six of Delaware, four of Maryland, one of Kentucky, one of Michigan, two of Virginia, one of Massachusetts, one of Vermont, two of Connecticut, fifteen of New York, one of Upper Canada, one of the province of New Brunswick, one of the West Indies, thirteen of England, eight of Ireland, one of Scotland, three of France, and one of Poland. Of which, one was received in the year 1825, two in 1827, one in 1829, three in 1830, seven in 1831, four in 1832, ten in 1833, nine in 1834, twenty-seven in 1835, thirty-four in 1836, and forty-three in 1837. Of their crimes, 26 were committed for misdemeanors, 34 for burglary, 22 for larceny, 17 for grand larceny, 8 for assault and battery, 7 for assault and battery with intent to commit a rape, 2 for rape, 5 for burning, 2 for forgery, 3 for assault with intent to kill, 4 for manslaughter, 1 for polygamy, 1 for sodomy, 4 for passing counterfeit bills, 1 for attempting to poison, 1 for overdrawing with intent to defraud "The Bank at Paterson," 1 for perjury, 1 for breaking jail, and 1 for receiving stolen goods.

Two of which were sentenced for 9 months, thirteen for 1 year 1 day, one for 1 year 1 month, four for 1 year 6 months, twenty-two for 2 years, one for 2 years 2 days, twenty-seven for 3 years, one for 3 years 1 day, ten for 4 years, one for 4 years 6 months, fifteen for 5 years, four for 6 years, ten for 7 years, four for 8 years, twelve for 10 years, one for 10 years 2 days, two for 12 years, seven for 15 years, two for 20 years, one for 21 years, and one for 24 years.

Of their commitment, 123 are committed for the first offence, 16 for the second, 1 for the third, and 1 for the fifth.

Of the whole number, 11 have been sent from the county of Bergen, 35 from Essex, 6 from Sussex, 10 from Morris, 7 from Warren, 4 from Somerset, 9 from Middlesex, 11 from Monmouth, 9 from Hunterdon (including 5 from the city of Trenton) 15 from Burlington, 17 from Gloucester, 4 from Salem, 1 from Passaic, 1 from Cape May, and 1 United States prisoner from the District of New Jersey.

No final escape has occurred during the year.

Of those now in confinement, as near as we can ascertain, 17 have had a good education, 89 can barely read and write, the remaining 35 can neither read nor write ; of these one is partially insane, and one idiot ; to whom it is earnestly, but respectfully requested, that executive clemency may be extended.

It will be perceived, by the account of the receipts and expenditures of the penitentiary for the year, that notwithstanding the difficulties attending the removal of the convicts, the loss of time in fitting up and furnishing the new cells for them to pursue their respective trades in; the alterations made at considerable loss of time, in consequence of the law of the 15th of March last; and in addition to this, the difficulties to be encountered, in common with the rest of the community, in the increased high price of every article furnished for the support of the convicts; the diminished demand for their labour, and the consequent diminished price paid for that labour, in some instances; still, the earnings of the prisoners, in the new state penitentiary, in the first year of its operations, has paid all the current expenses for the same period: including the salaries of all its officers, assistants, and servants, amounting to four thousand six hundred and seven dollars, twenty-nine cents; and has a balance standing in favor of the labor of the convicts, after paying all its expenses, of over one thousand seven hundred dollars; and this too without an instance of oppression, within our knowledge; and with a milder system of treatment than could possibly be introduced into the old prison. We think that we may safely congratulate the Honorable the Legislature in the pleasing prospect, that the new state penitentiary, under proper and judicious management, is not likely hereafter to become a burden upon the community.

It will naturally be inquired, how has this been accomplished? We answer, by the conscientious fidelity with which, (as we believe,) the Principal Keeper has discharged his duty to the state; in the judicious and systematic arrangement and employment of the convicts, aided by experienced and intelligent mechanics as assistant keepers, men who know their duty, and who have performed it faithfully.

The great advantage of employing as assistant keepers, men who are capable of instructing the convicts placed under their particular care in the different mechanical branches which have been introduced into the new penitentiary, has been strikingly apparent; and has certainly been attended with the most beneficial results during the past year; not only to the pecuniary interests of the institution, but to the peaceable and orderly conduct of the convict generally; and the system, good order, and cleanliness, visible throughout the whole ranges of cells, may be attributed to a praiseworthy rivalry between the different assistant keepers, in regard to cells of which they have the particular charge, and the responsibility which rests upon each of them to the Principal Keeper, of giving constant and unremitting attention and instruction to the convicts committed to their care. From the whole of our observations throughout the year, we are irresistibly led to the conclusion, that it has been owing to the practicable knowledge and experience of the Principal Keeper and his assistants, in prison discipline, carried faithfully into every cell, that the new penitentiary has made so successful an effort in its infant state, to carry out the Pennsylvania system of separate confinement, with labor, and occasional instruction, to an extent far beyond the hopes of its most ardent friends.

The masterly manner, in which the clerk of the Institution has performed the laborious, and perplexing duties of his office, coming, as it does, immediately before the honorable the committee on the accounts of the prison, requires no comment of ours; we would respectfully leave that duty for them to perform.

In closing this branch of our report, it is worthy of remark that there has not been a single complaint made to the Board, of neglect of duty, or disobedience of orders, against any of the officers of the institution during the year. The law of the 15th of March has been our guide, and a strict observance of it, by the different officers, precluded the necessity of the Inspectors reporting any farther rules for the government of the prison.

In performance of the "further duties" enjoined upon the Board of Inspectors, we would respectfully state:

That an intercourse of two years, and upwards, as Inspectors in the old prison, had long since convinced us of the immense, the incalculable evil to society, resulting from social, or promiscuous labor in that institution, and in all others conducted upon the same principle. We believe it to be beyond the power of human effort, to put a stop to the moral pestilence, where vice, in all its contaminating and seducing forms, is permitted to mingle together in the prison yard, or workshop, from day to day: where the novice in crime, or the unfortunate, misguided victim of momentary passion, is placed, (often from necessity,) in the same cell at night, or at the same work bench through the day, with the vilest felon. The pernicious effects of such associations are but too visible, in the alarming increase of crime throughout the country, within the last fifteen years.

But we feel a peculiar pleasure in having it in our power, even in the infant state of the new penitentiary, to bear testimony to the beneficial effects of the Pennsylvania system, upon the minds and morals of many of the convicts, who had been sentenced to, and spent years in the old prison, and who were removed here in October, 1836. We cannot forbear noticing, the striking contrast between their abandoned conduct exhibited there, and their orderly deportment after a year's confinement here. Our frequent visits to their cells, enables us to state from personal observation, the visible improvement in the whole tenor of their conduct. Some of the most hardened and vicious desperadoes, in the old prison, the ringleaders in riot and disorder, whose ferocious looks spoke vengeance to the keepers, and whose minds were occupied day and night in hatching plots for insurrection ; and keeping the officers in a continual state of alarm : now, from the salutary restraints of the Pennsylvania system for one year, these very men, show, (to all human appearance,) a subdued temper, and yield to the firm, persuasive, moral treatment, adopted in the new penitentiary : with but a few exceptions, every convict removed here who can read, bear unequivocal evidence of their improved condition, and almost to a man, regret that they ever were placed at social labor : dreading to meet again with their old associates in crime, after the expiration of their sentence.

This simple fact alone, speaks volumes as to the vast superiority of separate confinement, with labor and instruction, in ameliorating the condition of the convict, over every other system of prison discipline that we have any knowledge of.

Amongst the numerous advantages of this system, the following might be mentioned. The isolated situation of the convict, affords the keeper the very best opportunity to study and know his disposition, his character, and his propensities ; and to regulate his treatment to him accordingly ; besides, there is no means by which any of the convicts, in the adjoining cells, can interfere with, or operate against this judicious course of treatment ; add to this, the strict privation of intercourse, from every human being, except the officers in the daily discharge of their duties or the casual appearance of an "official visitor ;" the unhappy man, cut off thus from the world, is thrown back upon himself, and sooner or later the "monitor" placed within will speak. In proof of this, we have witnessed (in a visit to one of the cells but a few days since) the powerful, athletic frame tremble in agony, and the big pearly drops steal down the manly cheek, whilst the conscience stricken convict, in deep distress of mind, related to us his first departure from the path of duty ; in "despising a mother's advice," and "disregarding a father's authority ;" and this, the small commencement of a career of crime, which has terminated in the lonely cell of a prison.

In solitary confinement here, every prisoner who can read, has placed within his reach "The word of Life, which is able to make wise unto salvation ;" and we have good reason to believe, that not a few of these unfortunate men, peruse it daily to advantage, as their orderly conduct abundantly testifies.

We have watched with deep solicitude, the conduct of those who have been committed to the new Penitentiary within the past year, for the first offence, who can read ; and thus far, both from the report of the principal and assistant keepers, and our own personal observation, we are inclined to think favorably. We know that the natural associate of solitude is reflection, and when a convict is once brought seriously to reflect upon his past conduct, with wholesome admonition, and the Bible for his constant companion, we would be deficient in charity, were we to consider his case as hopeless.

But, when we turn to the moral desolation too glaring in those cells, where the miserable inmate has never been blessed with even the rudiments of moral culture ; would you witness the stern severity of the Pennsylvania system, of separate confinement with labor, in its most appalling form, you will find it there ; where the unfortunate victim of neglected education, is placed by his violation of a law, which perchance he is ignorant ; without one ray of hope glimmering upon his benighted mind, save the occasional instruction he receives from the keepers, the casual official visitors who may chance to call upon him, or the distant voice of the minister of the Gospel, in his labor of love on the Sabbath afternoon ; all else to him is one vast vacuum ; the mind has nothing left to rest on for relief ; labor and sleep are his only comforters ; and in his distress of mind, he either sinks down into stupidity, an object more of pity than of punishment ; or, reckless of life, in his narrow cell, he sets the majesty of the law at defiance, resists the authority of his keepers, and subjects himself to the salutary restraints necessary to sustain good order in the Institution.

Having stated facts, derived in a great measure from our own observation, we would respectfully submit the conclusions drawn from them. Convinced as we are of the superiority of the Pennsylvania system, of separate confinement with labor combined, on the minds of the more enlightened convicts ; we are well satisfied, that it cannot be considered as complete, until moral and religious instruction, is carried daily into every cell in the new state penitentiary. We consider that the most benevolent feature in the system, is the moral reformation of the convict. But this cannot be effected, without the means to accomplish that end. And as from the favorable operations of the Institution for the past year, we have reason to hope that (if prudently managed) it will hereafter sustain itself; we would respectfully suggest the appointment, (either by the honorable the legislature, or the board of inspectors,) of a suitable person, with a reasonable compensation, as a teacher, to give daily instruction to those of the convicts who cannot read; and also to the whole of the convicts, in the duties which they owe to their Creator, to society, and to themselves: one who would lay sectarian feelings at the threshold of the prison, and enter upon his duties in this moral wilderness, with a persevering determination, to impart, as far as in his power, useful instruction to those ignorant beings; nor consider his labors as completed, until he had taught each convict, to read, for himself, the glad tidings of salvation. We believe that instruction of this nature, and carried out in this way, would do more towards reclaiming, and reforming the convicts, than the most polished and eloquent discourses, delivered publicly, at stated periods.

If you would teach those benighted, abandoned immortals, effectually, it must be done in their cells.

While on this subject, we would ask leave to call the attention of the honorable the legislature, to the deficiency of books of instruction, for the use of the convicts who can read. It is true that every prisoner who can read, is provided with a bible in his cell; still, there are some meritorious prisoners, to whom a change of reading, (after the labors of the day) might be profitably extended: we are decidedly of the opinion, that a small amount might be appropriated to very great advantage, in the purchase of well selected moral and religious books; for the use of such prisoners, as by their good conduct, and strict attention to business, might be considered as entitled to the use of them, as the reward of merit.

We lay the foregoing suggestions, before the honorable the legislature, with much diffidence; yet we respectively hope, that where tens of thousands have been lavished, upon exterior decorations for the noble edifice, in which those unfortunate and misguided men are incarcerated; a sufficient amount of their own earnings, will be cheerfully appropriated, to afford them such moral and religious culture, as may by the blessing of Divine Providence, fit them to mingle with society after the expiration of their sentences, improved in character, and determined to act the part of good citizens.

On the subject of pardons, we feel it our duty to offer a few remarks, and these shall be confined, chiefly to those convictions which took place to the old prison.

It will be recollect, that the insecure state of that building, and the frequent escapes of convicts from it, had so emboldened the prisoners, that during the last year which it was occupied, great fears were justly entertained for the safety of the lives of the officers and guard. From occasional information given to some of the assistant keepers, by the better disposed convicts, the principal keeper was enabled to take timely measures to check and prevent several premeditated insurrections : which might, and in all probability would, have proved fatal to some of the keepers. It was hoped that the meritorious conduct of those convicts would have been remembered favorably by the Honorable, the Governor and Council ; and we humbly conceive, that no injury would result to society now, by extending executive clemency to such of the convicts as had distinguished themselves, by their regard for the safety of the lives of the keepers, and the welfare of the institution, at that trying period. When we consider also, the severity of separate confinement, compared with that of social labor, to which those convicts were sentenced to the old prison, we do cherish the hope, that, where in addition to all this, sufficient evidence exists of moral reformation in those men, the period for which they were sentenced may be shortened by pardon.

As it respects the convictions to this prison, we are most decidedly of the opinion, that the hope of pardon operates unfavorably to the reformation of the convict. We believe, that every criminal sentenced here, should be made to understand distinctly, that the sentence of the Court would be carried out in all its severity—for whilst the hope of a pardon remains, the unhappy man clings to it, often to his own injury : experience has shown us, that it renders the prisoner less liable to receive, or retain good impressions from the means of instruction placed within his reach ; and has a tendency to harden the mind against those admonitions which might, under a kind providence, lay the foundation for repentance and reformation. The repeated solicitations made by convicts to the Inspectors on this subject, within the past year, incline us more and more to the belief, that except in cases where a prisoner has been sentenced upon circumstantial evidence, and positive proof of innocence has been afterwards obtained, the powers granted to the Governor and Council, by the 9th section of the Constitution, might be beneficially withheld from the convicts sentenced to this prison. In order to render punishment effectual, it must be certain.

The board of inspectors cannot but express their fears, that the sixth section of "A further supplement to the act for the punishment of crimes," passed March 15, 1837, will operate unfavorably to the interests and good order of this institution.

We are well persuaded that no conviction here should be for a shorter period at least than one year. Were our county prisons constructed and arranged upon the plan of this prison, and all convictions for a shorter period than one year, at separate confinement and labor therein, our faith in the efficacy of this mode of punishment would almost lead us to the conclusion, that before the present generation passes away, many of these buildings would stand tenantless monuments, a terror to evil doers. We would fondly cherish a hope that those counties who are about to build new prisons, will make the experiment.

It will be seen, from the number of prisoners, (143) compared with the number of cells and shops finished, that there were but three vacant cells on the 1st of October. Hence the imperious necessity of an immediate appropriation, to finish the remaining cells in the upper story of the south wing. It is matter of sincere regret that those cells were left unfinished by the commissioner, as it must be done at an increased expense to the state, and interfere very much with the police of the institution while finishing. We would respectfully solicit the earliest attention of the Honorable the Legislature, to this most necessary and important appropriation, as the increased number of prisoners which will necessarily be sent here under the law of March 15, 1837, will place it out of the power of the officers to carry the system of solitary confinement into operation, for the want of cells; and compel them from necessity, to have recourse to the old, abominable system which we hope may never be known here.

The employing the prisoners in such a way as to interfere as little as possible with mechanical labor out of the prison, has had its weight with the board, and they are happy to know that little, if any prejudice exists against the manner in which they are employed.

It will be seen from the report of the Principal Keeper, and that of the Physician, to which we respectfully refer you, that the health of the prisoners has during the past year, been unusually good. Our own observation lead us to the conclusion, that with the strict attention to cleanliness in every respect which is at present maintained, and a due regard paid to those changes of food, which the confined situation of the convicts require, and which they have always enjoyed; there is much less to apprehend from sickness, than were the whole inmates work and eat together, and are frequently crowded together at night.

Taking their own statements, they enjoy better health here than in the old prison, and although they consider the punishment of privation severe, they prefer their present situation. The fact that no death has occurred since their removal here in October 1836, with an average of about 130 prisoners, speaks well for the health of the prison.

We cannot consider our duties as performed, without noticing with feelings of grateful respect, the christian spirit manifested by the ministers of the Gospel in Trenton and its vicinity, to the inmates of the institution. Since it was first occupied, they have vied with each other in their attention to the immortal welfare of the prisoners on the Sabbath. "Verily they have their reward." And in connexion with this, we would express our thankful acknowledgements to those benevolent societies, and individuals, who have favored the institution with books and tracts for the use of the prisoners.

In closing this report to the Honorable the Legislature, the board would respectfully invite their attention, while in the performance of their duties as "official visitors" to the new prison, to the manner in which some of our county prisons are kept. We believe that much might be done to ameliorate their condition, by making as we have done, a strict enquiry from the sufferers themselves. The filthy condition of some, the brutal treatment received in others, and the want of discipline in most of them, is to be lamented. Whilst such a state of things exist in our county jails, we need not expect to attain that state of perfection in discipline here, which might naturally be hoped for, were prisoners from their apprehension to their removal here after sentence, kept in separate confinement and treated humanely. Our object in noticing it at this time, is to call public attention to the subject, and we trust we will not be considered as overstepping the bounds of official duty, in thus laying it before the representatives of the people of New Jersey.

We are sincerely desirous to see every obstacle to the prosperity of this infant institution, removed out of the way; considering, as we do, that the Pennsylvania system of separate , confinement, with labor and instruction, adopted here, is likely, ere long, to be the only one known to civilized society. At this period of its existence here, it requires cautious, mild treatment. Our hope for its welfare is in the combined wisdom of an intelligent Legislature, every member of which is its particular guardian ; who we doubt not will extend to it that fostering care, which under a benign and gracious Providence, may render its salutary discipline signally instrumental in restoring to society, many of those wanderers from the paths of virtue and of peace ; reformed and amended living monuments of the wisdom, benevolence, and humanity of its founders.

Respectfully submitted.

Council have passed the Bill from the House of Assembly, entitled "An Act for the relief of the executors and trustees of Joseph G. Brower, deceased," without amendment.

Council have also directed that the accompanying letters from James S. Green, Esq. the late Law Reporter, be carried to the House of Assembly ;

The letters from James S. Green, Esq., was then read as follows :—

Princeton, November 7th, 1837.

DEAR SIR,

I take the liberty to inclose the within, and request you to lay it before the Committee, and to have it entered on the Minutes of Council, in explanation of the manner in which I have attempted to discharge my duty while Law Reporter.

Respectfully your obedient servant,

JAMES S. GREEN.

To JOHN J. CHETWOOD, Esq.

SIR,

I have just seen from the newspapers that you are the chairman of a committee of the Legislative Council, to inquire into the cause of delay in publishing the Reports of the Supreme Court. It has occurred to me that possibly from my situation as late Law Reporter, I might throw some light on the subject, and assist the committee to make a correct and satisfactory report.

By turning to the 2nd volume of Green's Reports, you will find that the volume embraces the decisions of the Supreme Court, pronounced at the February Term, 1835; Mr. George Sherman was the printer, and executed his work in an accurate and acceptable manner. His residence at Trenton was so near to that of the Reporter as to make it easy to reach him in all cases of doubt or difficulty as to the manuscript. He continued the printer of the Reports till the time of his death, which took place in the spring of 1835. During the period Mr. Sherman was the printer, there was no fault found, either as to the manner or the time in which the Reports were published.

On the second day of March, 1835, Mr. James M. Newell was appointed printer; at that time he resided at Morristown, but shortly afterwards removed to Bridgeton, in the County of Cumberland. I saw at once that not only the trouble and responsibility of the Reporter were increased, but that the Reports could not be printed with the accuracy heretofore preserved, and which the character of the Supreme Court merited. Mr. Newell did not print a page, and in May, 1836, informed me by letter that he had made arrangements with Mr. Pugh, of Mount Holly, for printing the Reports. From this time, May, 1836, I continued to furnish Mr. Pugh with copy. I was dissatisfied with the manner in which the first half-sheet was executed. Neither the paper, type, nor general appearance of the page satisfied me; it was so unlike its predecessors, I was afraid it would add nothing to the reputation of either Bench or Reporter. But what could be done? The law appointing the Law Reporter gives him no control over the Printer. The Court have no control over him. His appointment is independent of both. If the printer had been under my control, and resided within a reasonable distance, the third volume of Reports would have been published with accuracy before the expiration of my term of office, which was on the 15th February, 1837. The office has been vacant from that time till the recent acceptable appointment of Mr. Harrison. Such are the facts of the case, and will in some measure explain the cause of the delay in publishing the Reports of the Supreme Court.

Permit me to add a word or two as to the manner in which the Printing has been executed, which has given rise to the Joint Resolution directing the suppression of the printed sheets, which meets with my entire and cordial approbation. At an early day after the appointment of Mr. Pugh, I was satisfied that he was not familiar with law latin, or law reporters, and that without the correction of more than one proof of each half-sheet, many errors would be overlooked ; I requested him to furnish them, but this was not attended to ; after he had finished about two hundred pages, he was requested to furnish me with a copy of all the printed sheets, to enable me to prepare an Index, and table of cases. This copy I did not receive till the month of May last, when for the first time I discovered, to my deep mortification, that the corrections which had been made in the proof, had been overlooked or disregarded. At once I determined not to permit the publication of the sheets, if their publication depended upon me. I could not, and ought not, to publish such sheets, as I was no longer Reporter ; and if I had been re-appointed, I should have submitted the matter to the Legislature for their direction.

From this statement, which I believe to be correct, you will perceive that the delay in publishing the Reports cannot with justice be attributed to me ; much less ought the defects in the mechanical part of the work, and the typographical blunders, to be laid to my charge.

Respectfully your obedient servant,

JAMES S. GREEN.

November 6th, 1837.

After the reading had been gone through, the letters were referred to the Committee on Public Printing.

Mr. Cassidy, on behalf of the minority of the Select Committee on the Embarrassments of the Country made the following Report:

The minority of the Committee raised for the purpose of considering the embarrassments of the country, occasioned by the suspension of specie payments, by the banks, and to whom was referred memorials and petitions praying that the banks may be relieved from the operation of existing laws, and may be permitted to issue small bills, respectfully

REPORT:

That they find themselves unable to coincide with the majority of the Committee, either in relation to the causes which have produced the embarrassments in question, or the remedy proper for the occasion.

The embarrassments complained of, are the results of the suspension of specie payments by the banks—the depreciated and unsafe character of the small paper currency, which has been forced upon the community in the place of specie—and the depression in those branches of mercantile and mechanical employments, which depend upon bank accommodations. Within this circle, the difficulties existing in the country, are confined. Agriculture is unfettered and prosperous — the prices of the products of the soil yield a fair recompense to the husbandman. Trade, foreign and domestic, is free; unchecked at home by legislative restraint; unembarrassed by foreign wars. The country is at peace. There are no public burdens pressing upon the people—for, almost wholly freed from taxes, they enjoy the guarantees of “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness,” with less of sacrifice for their maintenance, than ever fell to the lot of any nation upon earth. The remedy, then, for the existing embarrassments complained of, would seem to the minority of your committee to be the removal of the immediate causes which produced them—the resumption of specie payments by the banks, the substitution of the constitutional currency of the country for the illegal paper currency now afloat, the unlocking of those depositaries into which it has been drawn, and where it is hoarded; and the restoration of that general credit and confidence to the community which can we think, be most speedily and permanently secured by such enactments as will clearly indicate the determination of the legislature to hold the banks, equally with individuals, bound to meet and discharge faithfully their legal obligations to the community.

But respect for the opinions of the majority require, that we should notice, briefly at least, the views upon which they predicate opinions and reach conclusions, so widely variant from our own. They seek, in causes anterior to those which we have noticed, for the sources of difficulty. They seem to imagine that the suspension on the part of the banks is the result of certain measures of the national administration, which, in their opinion, not only induced the suspension, but justify it. That the removal of the depositories from the Bank of the United States, the specie circular, and the various orders from the national Treasury Department, regulating and directing the disposition of the national funds, have been the primary causes out of which all these difficulties have grown. The error in every argument predicated upon premises like these, seems to us to consist in the assumption that the funds raised by taxation or otherwise for the support of the national government, are to be considered as a part of the capital of the bankers, upon which they are to accommodate the public by making discounts, and from which they are entitled to derive a profit in the shape of interest—and that the nation is to hold or dispose of the public lands, subject to the convenience or interest of speculators.

The depositories which were withdrawn in 1833 from the Bank of the United States, was the money of the nation, deposited originally in that Bank for safe keeping, subject to be paid over whenever legally demanded. It was not raised for banking purposes, it was not paid into the Bank for such purposes. The constitution and the laws of the land must have been strangely misunderstood if the countenance for any such idea was derived from them. It was placed in the Bank until those in whom the laws had vested the authority, demanded it. If then, the Bank of the United States was embarrassed by being called upon gradually to pay the public money which had been deposited with it for safe keeping, to the drafts of the Treasury, it must have been because it had considered these funds as its capital, and loaned them out for the benefit of its stockholders.

The same general remarks may be with equal justice applied to the case of all the Banks in the country which were intrusted with the safe keeping of the public funds. The object for which those funds were deposited with them, was well known by them ; that they are liable to be called upon to refund them whenever the public necessities required, was equally well known ; and if they used them in such a manner, for the purposes of private gain, as to inflate credit, promote extravagant speculation, induce excessive importations, and place it out of their own power to refund them, when lawfully called upon to do so, the fault we conceive was their own, not that of the administration. And the lesson we should be inclined to learn from the experience it has afforded, would be, rather to separate for the future the financial concerns of the government from those of these corporations, than to justify their past conduct, and give to it the sanction and the encouragement of law.

The minority confess they find difficulty in conceiving by what process of reasoning the majority reach the conclusion that the national government, by the simple act of appropriating its own funds to the purposes for which they were raised, have become criminally answerable for the suspension of the banks, and the evils which have flown from the conduct of these institutions.

The banks in 1834 and 1835 increased their loans one hundred and twenty-three millions of dollars, and their paper circulation forty-five millions. It was manifestly those loans that inflated the bubble of speculation, and gave wings to fictitious credit. It is this excessive issue of paper which they cannot now redeem. We ask very naturally, who hold and exercise the power of loan, and of issues ? The answer from every bank will be the board of directors. There is the power, and no where else. There is not a bank, we presume, in the country, which would not represent the imputation that its directors acted in subserviency to any foreign dictation, or that its acts were not purely its own. Let us place, then, the responsibility of consequences, with those who caused them.

Equally difficult is it to discover upon what principles the national administration is censurable for the order denominated the specie circular, or how that order could possibly have operated to minister to the mania of speculation, or produce the suspension of payment by the banks. It was an order directing that paper money should not be received in payment for the public lands. That those who bought the public domain should pay for it in the lawful currency of the country. Its tendency was to check speculation, to save the lands from being sacrificed to the wild spirit of adventure that was afloat at the time it was issued, and to prevent, as far as it might, the over issues of the banks, who were freely lending their paper to purchasers. If it had not been issued the probability is, that the government would have sold some twenty or thirty millions more of the people's land, and have had to day that amount of additional debt due to them from the banks.

The statement made by the majority, that the Secretary of the Treasury expressly instructed the deposite banks to "deal out the deposits in liberal loans for the accommodation of the mercantile portion of the community," and "goaded them into excessive issues," the minority apprehend to be unfounded in fact; and that the whole course of the administration has been the very reverse of that attributed to it.

The minority therefore, are not able to perceive any just grounds for charging upon the measures of the administration the odium of having caused the embarrassments which have called for the consideration of the committee. They think the causes lie much nearer home. That overtrading, and the consequent idleness, luxury and extravagance, which are the invincible attendants upon inflated credit, have involved many individuals in debts and obligations which it will require time, a return to prudent and economical habits, and the ordinary pursuits of industry, entirely to relieve; that the banks, in too greedy a pursuit of gain, have overstepped the bounds of prudence, loaned more than their capital paid in would warrant, and consequently have issued a larger amount of paper than their specie on hand would justify; and that the remedy for this is, simply the correction of what is wrong; the gradual reduction of their discounts, and a speedy resumption of the obligations they owe to the public.

The minority cannot agree with the majority in recommending any stop law for the protection of the banks. By the laws of this State, the refusal to redeem their notes in specie is deemed an act of insolvency. It is such an act. If reasonable and proper when it was passed, it is the most puerile tampering with legislation, to suspend it when the contingency it was provided to meet has occurred. In vain are penal statutes; in vain are laws guarding the rights of the community; if the penalties are to be remitted whenever the offence they were intended to prevent, or punish, is committed. The minority believe that any act of the kind would imply a legislative sanction of the suspension of specie payments by the banks—a sanction calculated to put far off the day of resumption, and to induce the banks to look to their present position, as at least tolerated by law. We believe the banks may safely be left to that protection which an enlightened public sentiment always affords, even when the virtue of forbearance is necessary; and that it is neither just nor politic to take away from the people, the means of obtaining redress for injuries, or of correcting delinquencies, where their possession, at least, may be necessary for their safety.

Nor can the minority accord with the views contained in the memorials which have been referred to the committee, praying that the banks may be authorized to issue small bills. Such a measure would have a direct tendency to increase the issues of paper by the banks, and as a necessary consequence diminish their ability to redeem their circulation in specie. They are now unable to meet their responsibilities. To invite them by legal enactments, to increase those responsibilities, appears to us injudicious and unwise, and calculated to render the period of resumption of payment by them, more remote. Besides, such authority ought to be at least founded on some certain knowledge, as to the actual solvency of the banks; a knowledge which the Legislature, in our opinion, cannot fully obtain by the interrogatories proposed to be submitted to them. For example, when those interrogatories are answered, it will be found that the assets of each bank consists principally in discounted notes, loans, &c. and for solving the question whether these are "good, doubtful, or bad," you will have the opinion of the president and cashier of each bank. an opinion in each case depending for its correctness, on the judgment, the sagacity, or the credulity of the officer who gives it, under the strongest inducements to make it as favorable as possible; and it often turn out that paper which the holder considers good, a disinterested person considers worthless. Yet upon these mere opinions thus given, the whole confidence to be placed in the result of the investigation, must be founded, and they cannot in the view of the minority, be safely made the ground for proclaiming to the public through the forms of legislation, that the banks are sound and solvent, while they fail to meet their legal obligations.

The minority have thus discharged a duty they owed to their constituents, in honestly presenting their own view in reference to the subject submitted to the committee, and have only to add a few words in conclusion.

The majority in their report have been pleased to allude to a future recurrence to the ballot boxes as the means by which the people are expected to bring back the currency of former years, years in which a United States Bank, standing at the head of the confederated money power, not only controlled the currency but sought to control the elections of the country. We are not unaware that the great panacea with which the party opposed to us in politics propose to cure all the diseases of the body politic is a United States Bank. We have already perused in "Bicknell's Reporter," the paper of the Philadelphia bankers, the annunciation that—"It is evident to all, that a strong party in favor of a National Bank, is to be called into existence, and the day cannot be remote when the United States will be convulsed by the agitators of the bank and anti-bank parties. The struggle between the opposing partisans will be distinguished for its ardor. It will be a war between wealth and the poverty of the country. In such a struggle it cannot be difficult to foresee which party must triumph. Money is power—it is the only really preponderating power that the world has ever felt and acknowledged—and what can resist its influence? A National Bank will be established in despite of all the opposition that can be arrayed, and he who may hope for a different result will be disappointed. If the appeals that may be made to the virtue, the morality, and the intelligence of the people, cannot prevail, money can be used, and that will obtain votes and favor where all other arts and appliances are found abortive. If you cannot get the votes of the people by persuasion, said a distinguished politician on a memorable occasion, get you the money bags and purchase them. The mode will be applied to the plan of chartering a United States Bank!" We repeat, we have read and considered this annunciation of the remedy proposed, and the means by which it is to be effected. We have heard too the rumors with which every gale has been rife, of the recent appearance of the money power at the polls. But still we, too, appeal again to the ballot-boxes ; to the honest integrity of the people : to their intelligence ; to their patriotism ; confident that, though the evil genius of our country may follow her sons to the final encounter, liberty will there meet with a triumphant victory.

The Joint Committee of Council and Assembly, appointed to settle the accounts of the State Prison, respectfully

REPORT :

That they have in the discharge of their duty, examined the accounts of the Prison, and have annexed hereto, a full and particular statement of all the various receipts and disbursements of the establishment, of the ballances of profit and loss under their appropriate heads, together with the number of prisoners confined during the year, those who have been discharged by expiration of sentence, and by pardon ; also the time of their respective commitments, their ages, the places of their nativity, the offences for which they were committed, the places where sentenced, and whether for the first, or a repeated offence.

The committee, in their investigation of the affairs of the new Penitentiary, during its first year's operations, feel great satisfaction in calling the attention of the Legislature to the pleasing fact of the nett gain over the last year's ballance, of $6348 70, and a clear surplus in favor of the Prison, after paying all its expenses, and the salaries of the several officers, of $1,741 41.

This favorable result, produced on the first year's experiment, at a time of general prostration of business, which has materially affected the productive labor of the convicts, cannot but satisfy the most sceptical, of the great pecuniary gain to the State, by the adoption of the present improved plan of prison discipline. It is however, the moral condition of the convicts, and the efficiency of the punishment, which afford to the friends of humanity, and lovers of social order, the principal recommendation of the system ; and this cannot but be peculiarly gratifying to those liberal philanthropists, who, through evil as well as good report, firmly sustained their onward and unwavering course, in promoting their benevolent object.

After the most minute examination into the situation of the prisoners ; and the mode of treatment and discipline which has been observed, the committee find nothing to condemn. The duties of the principle keeper, (various and responsible as they necessarily are,) have been discharged to the entire approbation of your committee ; and while the cleanliness and order of the whole establishment, commend the faithfulness of his supervision, the health, moral improvement, and warm sentiments of attachment and respect of the degraded convicts, forcibly approve the success of his mild, impartial, and efficient treatment.

Your committee feel constrained, as an act of justice to a faithful officer, thus publicly to express their obligations to Mr. Sutterlee, (the clerk of the prison,) for the facilities afforded by him, in their tedious investigation of the accounts of the establishment ; and especially to notice the correct and masterly manner in which he has discharged his laborious duties.

While there is great cause of mutual congratulation in the satisfactory results which have been produced in the infant operations of the establishment, and while the committee entertain no doubt that its pecuniary concerns will, under proper management, continue to produce an increased balance in favor of the State, they at the same time, feel it a duty to guard the public against too large anticipations of such increase.

The embarrassments which have paralyzed the business energies of the whole community, are felt in the mechanical branches pursued in the prison ; and the large difference between the result of the last, and former years, has in a great measure been effected by contracts entered into previously to the severity of the pressure. Already in one of the most productive sources of profit, (the weaving department,) a deduction of twenty per cent. has been found necessary.

It will be recollectcd, that by the report of the Inspectors, it appears that there are forty-eight cells now unfinished, and that the present number of convicts leaves but little accommodation for additional commitments. The expense of finishing these cells, and procuring the necessary furniture, will be about $1,000 00 ; and your committee recommend that the necessary appropriation for the purpose be made without delay, and in accordance with such recommendation, herewith report the accompanying resolution.

All which is respectfully submitted.

Mr. Molleson offered the following concurrent Resolutions:

WHEREAS it is the right and duty of the people to express their own opinions, in relation to public measures, and WHEREAS the peculiar and embarrassed condition of our public affairs, loudly demands an expression of the sentiments of the people of New Jersey; therefore,

1. Resolved, Council concurring, that it is the constitutional right and duty of Congress to provide for the safe keeping and disposition of the public treasure; and any act of the executive, whereby it is removed from the custody of those to whom Congress have confided it, is a violation of law and a dangerous abuse of power.

2 Resolved, That the resolution of the Senate of the United States of the 28th March, A. D. 1834, which declares "that the President, in the late executive proceedings in relation to the public revenue, assumed authority and power not conferred by the Constitution and laws, but in derogation of both," meets the decided approbation of this legislature; and we regard the expunging of that resolution from the journals of the Senate, as an open infraction of one of the plainest provisions of the Constitution, and of most dangerous tendency.

3. Resolved, That the claim and practice of the national executive, which regard all executive officers, and especially those to whom the public moneys are entrusted by law, as the mere agents of the President, whom he may on all occasions control and dismiss at his pleasure, are inconsistent with the republican principles of our institutions, an assumption of regal prerogative, and tend to the establishment of arbitrary government.

4. Resolved, That the circular letter from the Treasury Department, known as the "Specie Circular," and issued by direction of the Executive, was not justified by law, inexpedient in relation to the currency of the country, unjust in its operation on different sections of the Union, and in violation of the constitutional rights of the states and the people.

5. Resolved, That the removal of the public moneys from the deposit in which the law required them to be kept, and where they were safe and available at all times, their deposits in banks not selected or authorized by Congress, or capable of performing the duties of fiscal agents of the government, the encouragement to them by the administration to enlarge their discounts and circulation and increase the paper money of the country, the countenance given to the creation of an immense amount of new banking capital by the states, the unnecessary, unwise, and forced importation of specie from countries to which our own was indebted, and to which by the operations of commerce it must be restored, and the refusal to receive the ordinary circulating medium for dues to the government, constitute a succession of acts founded in ignorance of the condition and interests of the country, whose inevitable tendency was to derange the business and exchanges of the different portions of the Union, create distrust, embarrass every branch of industry, destroy the prosperity of the country, and oppress the laboring classes of the community ; and that, in the opinion of the people of this state, these acts of the government have destroyed the business of the nation, and are the immediate causes of the depreciated state of our circulating medium and of the universal distress of the community.

6. Resolved, That the recent act of Congress founded on the recommendation of the President, which withholds from the states nine millions of dollars, which had been pledged to them, disappointed the just expectation of the states, and was an unjust and unnecessary violation of faith, leading to consequences injurious to the states and the people.

7. Resolved, That the issue of ten millions of Treasury drafts to enable the government to meet the expenses of its administration, is evidence of a wanton waste of the abundant revenues and resources of the nation, an unnecessary addition to the paper money of the country, and a violation of the professions and promises which have been made to the people.

8. Resolved, That this legislature look with alarm to the measures proposed and urged by the present national Executive, and in the name, and on the behalf of the people of this state, do most earnestly and solemnly protest against—

1st The adoption of what is usually called the sub-treasury scheme, whereby all the public treasure will be in the hands of the officers of the government, to be kept and disbursed by them : will be unsafe ; may be used for party and corrupt purposes ; and will augment the executive power to a dangerous extent ; inasmuch as the control of the whole treasure of the nation will, by the power of appointment and removal, be in the hands of the President alone.

2. The establishment of the principle and practice of compelling all dues to the government and all debts from the government, to be paid in specie alone, because it will enable the government to obtain possession of a large proportion of the specie of the country, and thereby control at pleasure and destroy the circulating medium created by the states ; and it also establishes a most odious distinction between the people and those who hold public office, inasmuch as the latter will receive for their salaries, and in payment for their services, gold and silver, while the labor of the people must be paid for in less valuable paper, which the conduct of the government will more and more depreciate and render worthless.

3d The passage of a special bankrupt law, applicable to state banks, because it violates the spirit of the Constitution of the United States, is partial in its application and interferes with the acknowledged rights of the states ; inasmuch as it assumes to the general government the power to dictate the terms on which corporations created by the states, shall be regulated and destroyed.

9. Resolved, That we regard these measures as ruinous to the best interests of our country, and dangerous to the existence of our republican institutions ; and we declare our solemn conviction, that they are decidedly disapproved by the people of this state, and that our Representatives in both Houses of Congress will best conform their acts and votes to the wishes of their constituents by a faithful resistance to their adoption.

10. Resolved, That in his unwavering opposition to all the foregoing measures, his patriotic and eloquent support of the above recited resolution, and his untiring and able defence of the rights and interests of the states and the people, the Honorable Samuel L. Southard has discharged the duties of the statesman and the patriot, and entitled himself to our highest respect and warmest gratitude.

11. Resolved, That the conduct of the Representatives of this state in the present House of Representatives merits and receives our decided and hearty approval.

12. Resolved, That the governor be requested to transmit a copy of these resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, with a request to present the same to both Houses.

Which was read :

And upon the question of agreeing to the same, the Yeas and Nays being required, and ordered,

It was determined in the affirmative, as follows :

The following Message and Documents were received from his Excellency the Governor, by James Wilson, Esq., his private Secretary —

To the Legislative Council

and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

GENTLEMEN—

As the usual topics of ordinary interest to the state were presented by the executive in his annual message, at the commencement of your session in October last, I consider it my duty to claim only so much of your attention, on this occasion, as present circumstances and the exigency of the times seem to require.

No subject possesses so much importance at this moment as the condition of the currency. To this all absorbing topic I invite the early and careful attention of the legislature. The embarrassments of the country, the depreciation of the circulating medium, its want of uniformity, the necessity imposed on the community to receive this unsound currency or to suspend business, all the evils consequent on the suspension of specie payments by the banks, conspire to give this subject a claim to your attention paramount to all others. The action of the government on the currency, strikes directly at the private interests of all classes of the community; and if a mistake be made, it must more or less derange all the operations of society, and it may be, prostrate the hopes and ruin the fortunes of thousands. The man who is honestly and laboriously engaged in the pursuits of business, may, by one rash movement in the government, without any just cause of reproach in himself, be disappointed in his most reasonable calculations and reduced to a state of ruin and despair. A deranged currency deranges every institution of the country that has relation to property: and without a due adjustment of it, it is impossible to distribute, in equal proportion, among the citizens, either the burdens or advantages of civil society. Want of uniformity in this particular, produces oppressions to which individuals can apply no remedy. Permanency and uniformity are indispensable qualities of a common standard of values, and nothing is so essential to the safety and facility of regular business as a steady, uniform course of public measures "A mutable legislation," in the language of Chancellor Kent, "is attended with a formidable train of mischiefs to the community. It weakens the force and increases the intricacy of the laws, hurts credit, lessens the value of property, and is a constant source of anxiety and concern." In a word, no great improvement or laudible enterprize can go forward without the auspices of a steady system of public policy. How deeply is it to be regretted, therefore, that this most delicate subject should have been brought into the conflicts of party. We all know by sad experience how unfavorable seasons of feverish excitement are to the discussion and settlement of any question, and especially of one which so seriously involves all the multifarious interests of society.

The early and settled policy of this country was undoubtedly that of a mixed currency: paper in the more extended operations of business, and gold and silver coin in the smaller transactions of life; in other words, a paper currency based on specie.

In less than three years after the Federal Government went into operation, when many of the framers of the constitution were in the public councils, a national bank was chartered by Congress and received the deliberate sanction of President Washington. The whole subject, the policy and the power of the government, was then thoroughly discussed, under the best possible circumstances for a just decision. There was then no organization of political parties, and rational and patriotic considerations alone prevailed during an investigation which terminated in the decision that the creation of a national bank was a measure authorized by the constitution and called for by the wants of the country. And surely no men could be more competent to give a just construction of the constitution, than those who made it, nor could any administration be more exempt from those influences which sometimes pervert the judgment than that of the father of his country during the first term of his service.

During the twenty years existence of the bank thus created, public and private credit was raised and regulated, and the finances of the nation were placed on a solid basis. We had a sound currency, uniform taxation, and stable exchanges. Political considerations prevailed to prevent the renewal of the charter on its expiration in 1811, and in a brief period after, the wholesome influence of the national institution was withdrawn, the state banks suspended specie payments, specie was completely driven out of circulation, ceased to be currency and became merchandize. An irredeemable paper currency soon filled all the channels of circulation, and the circulating medium became so disordered, the public finances so embarrassed and the public credit so impaired that the charter of the Bank was renewed by Congress under the advice of the most distinguished members of the republican party, and with the approbation and consent of the venerable Madison, as the only measure which could restore the currency and redeem the finances of the country from utter ruin. The wisdom of this measure was fully sustained by the results. Order was restored, specie payments were resumed, credit revived, the state banks were regulated, the rate of exchanges was reduced from five and fifteen to a mere fraction of one per cent. the funds of the government were transferred with scrupulous punctuality wherever required, free of expense, the business of the country became healthy and prosperous in all its relations, and for twenty years we enjoyed a sound and uniform currency, every where equivalent to gold and silver, and which it was impossible to improve.

Such were the condition and facilities of the country when the Federal administration entered upon the experiment of making a radical change. The result is before us ; confusion and disorder have been sent into all the departments of business, and universal embarrassment prevails. That the destruction of the Bank of the United States, therefore, as a fiscal agent of the government gave the first blow to commercial credit, I entertain no doubt. To that cause, connected with circumstances growing out of it, in my judgment, are to be ascribed the distressing and overwhelming disasters which afflict the country. After so long an existence, after becoming the great channel through which the exchanges of the country were made, and interweaving itself into so great a part of the commerce of our citizens, it could not have been reasonably expected that the precipitate termination of the Bank would result otherwise than disastrously. The removal of the depositories to the State Banks, with the implied understanding that the money should be used by them, gave an undue spring to the naturally ardent and enterprising spirit of our people induced extravagant issues, and led to speculations and excesses of every sort. This money was suddenly recalled. The shock upon public credit was instantaneous and universal ; distrust took the place of confidence and men of business stood appalled with the conviction that the commerce, the currency, and the moneyed institutions of the country, its credit, and their own credit, and fortunes, were thenceforth to depend upon the fluctuating opinions of party politicians.

The State Bank experiment, it is now declared, on all hands, has failed, and I feel well assured, if the government is satisfied, the banks themselves are. Considering the humiliating posture in which some of these institutions placed themselves to obtain a share of the public funds, it affords me some gratification to express my belief, that the deposite banks in this state never compromised their self respect. That the placing of large sums of money in these banks under the circumstances, and the sudden and rapid withdrawal of it, should have embarrassed them, is no cause of wonder. I only wonder tha they survived at all.

What course will next be taken with the public funds remains to be seen. I confidently believe that the people of this country have too high a regard for the security of their government, ever to sanction the mischievous and preposterous scheme of making every petty officer a depository of its revenues. However upright the present incumbents may be, they are, according to modern interpretation, the instruments of the power that appoints them. And if the day should ever come, which Heaven forbid ! when our liberiies shall be put in jeopardy, this system will prove, if adopted, the greatest curse ever inflicted on the country.

There is an extraordinary and predominant disposition to change, in our public councils. That we are governed too much, that too much has been done within the last few years, by those who exercise the functions of government, calculated to unsettle all those principles which long experience had fully proved to be sound, and tending to the establishment of new doctrines, and to create a restless changing spirit among the people, cannot be doubted. While I look at the uncertain aspect of the times, I could almost wish that in any form these disturbing, agitating questions might be put at rest. It is the solemn duty of every good citizen, at such a crisis, to exert himself in the station he may occupy, to restore the country to the safe paths of wisdom and experience. Whatever differences of opinion there may be concerning the causes of the present embarrassments, there can be no doubt but that it will require time and patience to bring back order to business—confidence must be revived, economy must be introduced, and become the order of the day ; and we must invite a return of those simple habits, so congenial to the spirit of our institutions, and so essential to the true happiness of man. Whoever expects to see an entire change in a day, or by a single act of legislation, will be disappointed. That the people will ultimately rise above their present misfortunes, even in the face of unwise legislation, I confidently believe. There is an elasticity as well as a momentum in the genius of trade, sufficiently powerful to overcome every obstacle.

There are only a few ways in which your legislation can bear on this interesting subject. The first and most direct relates to the banks, and to these I now invite your attention.

By the act passed at the last sitting, entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks of this State and for other purposes," the legislature wisely provided for such an exhibition of the condition of the banks as would enable you to decide on the propriety and expediency of the course to be pursued at this time, for the security and convenience of the people. By that act no rights were compromised, but on the contrary, the rights and remedies of the people are expressly reserved. The banks are protected from the forfeiture of their charters arising from the suspension of specie payments, until the termination of the present sitting of the legislature, unless a majority of the banks in the cities of New York and Philadelphia, should before that time resume payment in specie, in which event it was made the duty of the Governor to make proclamation thereof, and the duty of the banks to resume within fifteen days thereafter. This act further provides, that the officers and directors, under oath, shall answer the interrogatories therein propounded, and which for that purpose, are to be forwarded to them by the Governor, and in addition that a monthly statement of the condition of the banks should be furnished the Treasurer, and by him published. Unless it was designed to put an end to the whole system of banking in the State, and require all the banks to wind up their affairs, which no man of reflection, who has at all considered the consequences of such a measure, could for a moment desire, it is difficult to imagine any more judicious measure. While the rights of no man are impaired, you have saved your own institutions from a forfeiture arising from a common calamity wholly beyond their power to avert, and have provided for the very object the public most desire, to wit: a full development of their actual state and condition. I am happy to say that this law has, so far as I have had the means of judging, received very general approbation. Immediately after the passage of this act, my duty under it was performed by transmitting to each of the banks a copy of the interrogatories propounded. Answers to those interrogatories so far as received, are herewith respectfully presented. I recommend the careful examination of these answers to you all as a duty to the public, and as calculated to have a decided influence in your deliberations upon this all important subject. From the little opportunity I have had of looking into them, I am favorably impressed with one important fact. It appears that the banks, instead of availing themselves of the suspension, as was at first apprehended, to flood the country with increased issues of paper, have greatly diminished their circulation and curtailed their discounts. This prudent caution has been exercised no doubt with an eye to the resumption of specie payments, which is as essential to the true interests of the banks as to the public. That they must and will resume at no distant day, is now quite certain. Nothing can excuse a continuance in their present state a day longer, except the necessity of the case, and notwithstanding any prejudice which may exist on this subject, I have the confidence in the banking institutions of our State, and in the men who conduct them, to believe that they will do so at the earliest practicable period. It is the duty of the legislature, it is the duty of the banks, and of every man in society, to co-operate in bringing about so desirable a result. Can the banks of this State return to specie payments alone, or until the larger institutions in the great emporiums of trade shall lead the way? It is my firm conviction that they cannot, without hazarding the greater calamity of a second suspension, a disaster every way to be deprecated. From looking carefully at the act before referred to, I do not see why a continuance of the first section for a longer period may not answer all the purposes of legislation on this subject, unless before the close of your present sitting, a general resumption by the banks in other States should supersede the necessity of any further action on the subject.

The next important subject to which your attention will be asked by the people, concerns the expediency of repealing the act restraining the banks from issuing bills of a less denomination than five dollars. Without entering into the question how far that law may or may not have been wise under a state of things formerly existing, I have no hesitation in saying that there is in my judgment, a public necessity for its repeal, at least for the present. It can be revived at any time hereafter, if thought advisable. It is a singular fact, that the banks of this State, which now pay into the treasury annually, a tax of rising $22,000 for their privileges, have been prohibited by the course of legislation from circulating small bills, while the banks of other States, which pay us nothing, and of whose solvency the public have no knowledge, occupy almost exclusively the circulation of the State. It should be remembered also, that by the charters of most of our banks, the directors are personally responsible for the redemption of the bills, which affords an additional security to the public. I cannot entertain a doubt that the issuing of small bills by the banks will greatly facilitate the great object now to be attained, that of resuming specie payments. The demand for specie would be proportionably diminished.

I leave this whole subject to your sound discretion, desiring no further respect for the suggestions here made, than such as in your enlightened judgments they may seem to demand. They proceed upon the presumption of your being satisfied of the soundness of the banks. If any should prove otherwise, the public should be promptly protected against their issues.

I regret it is not in my power to present you with a more favorable statement of the condition of the treasury. I find the State indebted to the school fund, in the sum of $62,095 65, besides interest. Of this sum $48,317 25 has been borrowed from time to time for the completion of the State prison, and the residue $13,778 40 has been borrowed during the past year for the support of Government. In addition to this there are claims on the Treasury for the last year, which have already been presented to the amount of $7,289 29. To place the Treasury on a proper footing, you will find it, I think, indispensable to raise the usual amount of $40,000 by tax; and as collections from that quarter will not be received until a year from this time, the Treasurer must be authorized in the mean time, to anticipate so much of those funds as he may have occasion to use, by loan. I do not enter into particulars, as you will no doubt, according to common practice, require a statement from the Treasurer on this whole subject. It is very desirable that the legislature should, as soon as the same can reasonably be done, provide means in advance for the payment of all legal and just demands on the Treasurer, without obliging that officer to borrow money.

There has been for some years an increasing disposition, in many parts of the state, to reform the judiciary; and certainly no subject has a stronger claim to your consideration. The difficulty always has been to agree on a plan. For my own part, I cannot consent to disturb in any manner, the present Court of Common Pleas. That Court should be left with its present jurisdiction and powers. I would suggest whether all the objects of the proposed changes, might not be attained, by increasing the number of Justices of the Supreme Court, and requiring them to hold four circuits instead of two annually, in each county. There is great delay to the suitor, under the present system, by holding circuits half yearly instead of quarterly. I would further recommend, that the law should be so modified as to allow the successful party the same costs in the Supreme Court as in the Common Pleas, in case of a recovery of an amount over one hundred dollars and not exceeding two hundred dollars. This slight modification, I do not doubt, would remedy all the evils in the system now complained of.

I unite in the suggestions heretofore made to the legislature on the impropriety of changing the intention of lasts wills and testaments, by legislation. The frequent solicitations for this purpose of late, should excite your serious attention to the subject. The right to dispose of his property at death by will, is one of the most sacred rights of the citizen, and the power of the legislature to violate or disregard it may well be questioned. Legislative acts to authorize the sale of lands bequeathed by will, contrary to the intention of the testator, neither accord with sound legislation nor with the fundamental principles of the social compact.

I cannot forbear to call your attention to the subject of divorces. The facility with which they are procured, and the number which are granted from time to time, hold out inducements for domestic discords, lead to much fraud and corruption, and have become a means of reproach to us as a state. The easy relaxation of the marriage tie is calculated to demoralize society, and loosen one of the chief foundations of social order. The exercise of this high power, therefore, should be confined to very extraordinary cases.

In the present state of the business of the country, there can be no good reason for increasing the banking capital of the State ; and if you should agree with me that applications for banks, for divorces, and for the construction or alteration of wills, ought not to be entertained at the present sitting, nearly one-third of the usual amount of business would thereby be dispensed with. Thus affording you more time and opportunity for attending to the more important matters of public concern.

During the recess, I have been favored with the views of the Principal of the New York Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, concerning the interests of the beneficiaries of this state, under the law providing for the education of that unfortunate class of persons, some of whom are now in that Institution : and I have become fully persuaded that some important changes in the law are desirable. For the purpose of better securing the benevolent intention of the act, I would therefore recommend, that the provision which admits children at six years of age, be so amended as to make twelve years the lowest limitation. I would also recommend, that the term for a whole course of instruction be extended to five or six years. It is obviously proper too, that parents who are able should be required to bear at least part of the expense. The reasons for these modifications, with others, will hereafter be presented to you, in a petition from a young man who was educated under the laws and has had the benefit of much experience on the subject.

The last subject to which I shall invite your attention, deserves your highest consideration. Public sentiment and the public interests alike demand a thorough revision of our common school system. In the judgment of those who have looked into the subject, it has failed to accomplish the useful purposes for which it was enacted. As the mass of our population must depend on the common school, for the instruction necessary to fit them for the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, it is of the very first importance that these schools should be such as to furnish a sound, thorough, and practical education. That they are not such under the present system, is now universally acknowledged. The system is believed to be essentially defective, and it should be revised without any unnecessary delay: education is not one of the interests which can be safely left to take care of itself. It needs the fostering care of government, and I have no clearer conviction than that it is both the duty and the interest of a free state to provide for the education of its children. There are very gratifying evidences that the subject is awakening a good degree of public interest, and the recent expressions of the popular will very clearly indicate the path of duty.

Permit me in conclusion, to express my earnest hope that the enlightened deliberations of your honorable bodies, under the smiles of that benignant Being who has thus far protected our country through every vicissitude, and whose Providence it should be the highest glory of a people to confide, may contribute to restore that state of prosperity which the enterprising and generous character of our citizens so richly merits.

State of New-Jersey,

Morris County, ss.

Before me,

Moses A. Brookfield, Esq. one of the Justices of the Peace in and for the county of Morris, aforesaid, personally appeared, Henry A. Ford, President, and James Wood, Cashier of the Morris County Bank, who being by me duly sworn to make true, full, and perfect answers, according to the best of their knowledge and belief to the foregoing interrogatories, upon their oaths do answer and say:

To the first interrogatory. That the amount of the capital stock actually paid in, is eighty thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; but of this amount there has been taken for debts due this bank during the last year, and now held by the bank, of the above capital stock, twenty-nine thousand two hundred and fifty dollars.

2. That there is not any of the capital stock of the said bank pledged as security for notes or other obligations given in payment of any instalment or instalments on said stock.

3. That there is not any of the capital stock of the said bank pledged as security for notes discounted or held by the said bank otherwise than in the manner mentioned in the last inquiry, or for loans made by the bank, except one thousand dollars of the said stock, which is pledged as security for a note of that amount for a loan by the bank, which note is considered safe and good without the said stock; and there is in the hands of a third person, a power of attorney, irrevocable, to transfer to the said bank five thousand dollars of the said capital stock, in case two notes held by the said bank (and also considered good without said stock) should not be paid when due.

4. This bank holds of the capital stock of the said bank, twenty-nine thousand two hundred and fifty dollars, taken by them as stated in the answer to the first interrogatory.

5. That the said bank had on hand and actually in the possession and belonging to the bank on the day of the suspension of specie payments by the bank, five thousand four hundred and twenty-eight dollars and sixty two cents, of specie, and had not any gold or silver bullion; that this bank had actually on hand and belonging to the bank on the first day of November last, three thousand four hundred and forty-seven dollars and twenty-one cents; and that the bank has actually on hand and belonging to the bank in specie, at this time, the sum of four thousand two hundred and eighty-two dollars and twenty-seven cents.

7. That the said bank has not made any disposition of their specie other than in the redemption of their bills, and the payment of their indebtedness since the period of the said suspension, except, that this bank was almost in the daily habit of accommodating applicants for specie by paying out to them small sums by way of change, in the discretion of the officers of the bank, and which fact accounts almost entirely for the difference in the specie of this bank between the time of the suspension and the first day of November last, as stated in the fifth interrogatory.

8. That the amount of the circulation of the said bank, at the period of its suspension of specie payments; was sixty two thousand four hundred and sixty-five dollars, and twenty-six thousand six hundred and forty dollars on the first day of November last, and that it is at this time, twenty thousand and fifteen dollars.

- 9. That the said bank has no real estate of any kind.

That the amount at this time is eighty one thousand, two hundred and fifty-eight dollars, and sixty-three cents, all which is considered good.
- 13. That none of the said notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and loans are secured to the bank by mortgage or otherwise on real estate.
- 14. That the amount at a fair valuation of all other property of the said bank, is as near as can be ascertained, about one thousand dollars: and that it consists of the vault and its fixtures, safety chest, plates and paper, and the other furniture of the bank.

- 16. That the amount at this time, is three thousand one hundred and three dollars and eighty seven cents; the balance after deducting sundry expenses of the institution.
- 17 and 18. That this bank having been in operation but about eight months, at the time of the suspension of specie payments, have not deemed it advisable to declare any dividend of the profits of the institution.
- 19. That the amount of the balance of the profit and loss account of the said bank is three thousand one hundred and three dollars and eighty-seven cents, as stated in answer to sixteenth interrogatory.
- 20. That the amount of current expenses of the said bank, since the period of the suspension of specie payments by the bank to this time, is about one thousand dollars.

26. That there are no other debts due and to become due, from this bank, than those before stated.

27. That there are not any facts within our knowledge which may lead to a more full understanding of the real condition of the said bank, besides such as are stated in answer to the foregoing inquiries, to the best of their belief.

MORRIS CANAL AND BANKING COMPANY.

To His Excellency

WILLIAM PENNINGTON,

Governor of the State of New Jersey.

DEAR SIR—The following statement as exhibited by the "Bank Books" of the Morris Canal and Banking Company, and answers to interrogatories propounded in the act entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the Banks of this State, and for other purposes," are respectfully submitted as a compliance with the requirements of the act, so far as the nature of that institution will enable us to make it. By the charter, the president and cashier are required once in two years to make return to the Secretary of State, of the condition of the banking operations of the company. This duty having been complied with on the first day of February last, the condition of the company has thereby been exhibited to the state.

The Board do not understand that in any thing which has occurred during the present year, they have in any respect violated the existing laws or subjected the institution to forfeitures or legal proceedings.

It will be perceived that by the supplement to the charter passed the 5th of March, 1836, the board of directors was appointed by the Legislature, and that the members are so scattered that it would be impracticable for a majority of them to take the oath called for by this act, in any other mode than upon the confidence reposed in the executive officers; and while on the one hand they were desirous to communicate to the Legislature all the information which is now asked for; on the other, they have supposed, that the following statement of the condition of the banking and trust operations of the company, and answers to the interrogatories, verified by the oaths of the executive officers and the resolution of the board would be entirely satisfactory.

I am, very respectfully, &c. &c.

SAM. L. SOUTHARD.

Morris Canal and Banking Company,
January 8, 1838.

At a meeting of the Board held this day, a report containing a statement of the condition of the bank on the 2d instant, together with the answers to the interrogatories thereto annexed under the oaths of the President and Cashier, having been made to this Board, it was thereupon

Resolved, That the said Report be approved and adopted by this Board, and that the same be transmitted by the President to the Governor of the State, as a compliance with the requirements of the Act of the Legislature, entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the Banks of this State, and for other purposes," together with a copy of this resolution, attested by a committee of the board appointed for that purpose.

Attested by order of the Board.

ANSWERS by the President and Cashier of the Morris Canal and Banking Company, to certain interrogatories contained in the act of the Legislature, entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the Banks of this state, and for other purposes," passed 11th day of November, 1837.

1. That "the Legislature for the encouragement of so great an undertaking as the erection of said Canal, and in some measure to induce capitalists and others to subscribe to the same," authorized the addition and use of one million to the capital stock of the company for Banking, Trust, and other purposes as will appear by the 14th and 24th sections of the charter. The whole amount of the said addition to the stock of one million of dollars, has been actually paid in. The whole capital of the company, is four millions one hundred thousand dollars.

2. No part of the one million authorized to be used for Banking purposes is pledged as security for notes or other obligations given in payment of any instalment or instalments, on said stock.

3. The shares in the capital stock of the company, are shares in the joint concern of the Canal and Bank, and are held by the stockholders without division or designation of the proportion which may be considered as the stock of the Canal, or the stock of the Bank. No division of the stock in this respect having been required by law, or being at all practicable; we are therefore unable to answer, "What amount of the capital stock of the Bank, is pledged for notes discounted or held by the bank, otherwise than in the manner mentioned in the last enquiry or for loans made by the bank."

4. No part of the capital stock of the bank is the property of the bank.

5. The amount of specie on hand and actually in possession, and belonging to the bank on the 11th day of May last, was 6,068 12-100 dollars; on the 1st day of November last it was 6,927 2-100 dollars; and at this time it is 27,269 21-100 dollars.

6. and 7. The bank has made no disposition of its specie, other than in the redemption of its bills and payment of its indebtedness, nor has it taken any extraordinary means to increase its stock of specie; it has actually given specie as change for its small bills.

8. The amount of the circulation of the bank on the 11th day of May last was 119,210 dollars; on the 2d day of November it was 140,382 dollars; and at this time, 129,035 dollars. The trifling increase in circulation, has arisen, in the demand from the canal and other public works, for an increased amount of small bills to meet the exigencies growing out of the active operations of the past season.

9. The Banking house in Jersey City, which is used as an office for the business of both the canal and bank, may be valued at its cost, namely, 22,195. 89-100 dollars. The other real estate of the company is charged upon the canal books and including the canal and works, cost 3,183,947 dollars, 37 cents.

10. The amount due from other Banks is 35,568 96-100 dollars, and is considered good.

11. The amount of notes of other banks now held by, and the property of the company, is 36,930 dollars, and is considered good.

12. and 13. The amount of notes, drafts, and bills of exchange discounted and held, and loans made by the bank on the 11th day of May last, was 3,361,169 57-100 dollars. The amount at this time, is 2,701,443 77-100 dollars, of which 38,237 94-100 dollars is considered "doubtful," and 21,685 62-100 is considered "bad;" 88,634, 17-100 dollars is secured by mortgage upon real estate.

14. The amount at a fair valuation of all the other property of the bank will be seen by reference to the annexed statement by which it is exhibited.

15. and 16. No "Surplus Fund," has yet been created by the company.

17. On the first day of February last the board declared a dividend at four per cent.

The amount of post notes issued by the company and outstanding on the first day of November last, was 424,051 91-100 dollars, and were payable at different periods before the first day of April, 1839. The amount now outstanding is $163,937 29-100, and are payable as above.

For an answer to all the remaining interrogatories we refer to the statement of the condition of the bank which is hereto annexed, and which will also be found to contain the facts required in the statement mentioned in the 4th section of the act.

In addition to the foregoing answers to the interrogatories and statement thereto annexed, it is proper to add, that there is now due to this company, and in a course of settlement, about one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, for the rent of the canal for the past year, ending the first day of December last.

Ans. 2. There is none.

Ques. 3. Is any, and if any, what amount of the capital stock of your bank is pledged as security for notes discounted, or held by your bank, otherwise than in the manner mentioned in the last inquiry, or for loans made by your bank?

Ans. 3. Four hundred shares has been transferred to the bank, as collateral, with other securities, for a tempoary loan of four thousand dollars.

Ques. 4. Is any, and if any, what amount of the capital stock of your bank, is the property of your bank?

Ans. 4. None, except that specified in the 3d answer.

Ques. 5. What amount of specie, and of gold and silver bullion, had your bank on hand, and actually in your possession, and belonging to your bank, on the day of the suspension of specie payments by your bank? What amount on the first day of November, 1837, and what is the amount at this time?

Ans. 5. As this bank has never suspended specie payments, our answers on this point will have reference to the 10th day of May, 1837, which was the day on which the general suspension took place. On the tenth day of May, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, we had in the bank and belonging to the bank, in specie, the sum of four thousand nine hundred and sixty-three dollars and seventy-three cents. On the first day of November eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, we had two thousand four hundred and eighty-four dollars and seventy five cents ; and at this time we have four thousand two hundred and thirty-four dollars and ninety-eight cents.

Ques. 6. Has your bank taken any measures to increase your stock of specie or bullion beyond your usual amount preparatory to this investigation ? And, if so, to what amount ?

Ans. 6. The bank has taken no such measures, nor is our stock of specie increased beyond our usual amount.

Ques. 7. Had your bank made any, and if any, what disposition of your specie or bullion other than in the redemption of your bills and the payment of your indebtedness since the period of the suspension of specie payments by your bank ?

Ans. 7. Our bank not having suspended specie payments, we have not parted with any specie except in the redemption of our bills and the payment of our indebtedness.

Ques. 8. What was the amount of the circulation of your bank at the period of the suspension of specie payments by your bank ? What amount on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, and what is the amount at this time ?

Ans. 8. On the 10th day of May, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, our circulation was eleven thousand and forty dollars ; on the first day of November, thirteen thousand one hundred and sixty-seven dollars ; and at this time it is seventeen thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine dollars.

Ques. 9. What is the fair valuation of all your real estate, and in what does it consist ?

Ans. 9. We value the real estate of the bank at twenty thousand dollars. It consists in a banking house and seven lots of ground, in the centre of the town : four lots on Main street, on which is erected the banking house, a large and commodious brick building, covering about sixty feet, front and rear, with every convenience for banking, a suitable residence for a family, and offices in the basement ; three lots on Hamilton Square, in the rear, on which out buildings are erected, making in all, one hundred feet front, on Main street ; a depth of about two hundred feet, to Hamilton Square, and about seventy-five feet front, or Hamilton Square, unencumbered and in complete order and repair.

Ques. 10. What is the amount of balance due to your bank from other banks ? What good ? What doubtful ? and what bad ?

Ans. 10. Four hundred and seventy-six dollars and twenty-four cents. All good. ($476 24-100.)

Ques. 11. What is the amount of notes of other banks now held by, and the property of your bank ? What good ? What doubtful ? and what bad ?

Ans. 11. Seven thousand one hundred and four dollars, believed to be all good.

Ques. 12. What was the amount of notes, drafts, and bills of exchange discounted or held, and loans made by your bank, and the property of your bank at the period of the suspension of specie payments by your bank ? What is the amount at this time ? What good ? What doubtful ? and what bad ?

Ans. 12. On the tenth day of May, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, the period when the banks suspended specie payments, our assets of this description amounted to one hundred and five thousand and ninety-five dollars and eighty six cents. Now they amount to one hundred and five thousand nine hundred and ninety dollars, and twelve cents. We estimate them as good, thirty-five thousand and twenty-eight dollars and eighty-one cents ; as doubtful, seventy thousand eight hundred and seventy dollars and eighty-nine cents ; and as bad, ninety dollars and forty-two cents.

Ques. 13. Is any, and if any, what amount of such notes, drafts, bills of exchange, or loans secured to the bank by mortgage or otherwise on real estate ?

Ans. 13 There is nothing secured in this way.

Ques. 14. What is the amount of a fair valuation of all other property of your bank, and in what does it consist ?

Ans. 14. The bank note plates and furniture belonging to the bank, are estimated at eleven hundred and thirteen dollars and fifty-cents.

Ques. 15. What was the amount of the surplus on hand of your bank at the period of the suspension of specie payments ?

Ans. 15. We had none.

2. Is any, and if any, what amount of the capital stock of your bank is pledged as security for notes or other obligations, given in payment of any instalment or instalments on said stock ?

Ans. None.

3. Is any, and if any, what amount of the capital stock of your bank is pledged as security for notes discounted, or held by your bank, otherwise than in the manner mentioned in the last inquiry, or for loans made by your bank ?

Ans. Only four shares of the stock of this bank, amounting at par to two hundred dollars, ($200,) are pledged to the bank as collateral security for a note for one hundred and fifty dollars, ($150,) discounted.

4. Is any, and if any, what amount of the capital stock of your bank, is the property of your bank ?

Ans. No other than that above mentioned is the property of this bank except so far as is provided in the 7th section of its charter, which is as follows, viz :

VII. And be it enacted, That no transfer of stock of the said corporation shall be valid and effectual, until any debt or debts which may be due to said company from the person transferring, shall have been fully discharged, and such transfer shall have been registered in a book or books to be kept for that purpose by the Directors.

5. What amount of specie, and of gold and silver bullion, had your bank on hand, and actually in your possession, and belonging to your bank, on the day of the suspension of specie payments by your bank ? What amount on the first day of November, 1837, and what is the amount at this time ?

Ans. This bank suspended specie payments on the 12th day of May last ; its specie on hand at the time amounted to $17,-648 07; on the first day of November last to $16,491 42; and at this time $20,967 19. (The increase of specie has arisen solely from deposits by our dealers.)

6 Has your bank taken any measures to increase your stock of specie or bullion, beyond your usual amount preparatory to this investigation ? And if so, to what amount ?

Ans. None whatever.

7. Had your bank made any, and if any, what disposition of your specie or bullion, other than in the redemption of your bills, and the payment of your indebtedness, since the period of the suspension of specie payments by your bank ?

Ans. None at any time, except in the redemption of its bills and in the ordinary transactions of business in making change at the counter.

8. What is the fair valuation of all your real estate, and in what does it consist ?

Ans. The only real estate held by this bank is that occupied by it as their banking house, and residence of their cashier. This property was purchased in October, 1836, and cost twenty-two thousand dollars, ($22,000,) to which add for alterations and repairs since made, sixty-five hundred and fifty-nine dollars, thirty-three cents, ($6,559 33.) making a total of twenty-eight thousand five hundred and fifty-nine dollars. thirty-three cents, ($28,559 33.) As no sales of property have been made since the late depression in the business world, near that owned by the bank, it will be out of our power to state any other value than the foregoing.

Ans. This bank holds one bond and mortgage for ten thousand dollars, [$10,000.] on property in the heart of this city, worth in any event a much greater amount, as collateral security, to cover the liabilities of an individual to the bank, independent of the drawers and endorsers of certain notes and drafts which of themselves are considered amply good.

14. What is the amount at a fair valuation of all other property of your bank, and in what does it consist?

MECHANICS' BANK, NEW BRUNSWICK.

In obedience to the requisitions of the act of the legislature, entitled "An act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks of this state and for other purposes"—passed on the 11th day of November, 1837, the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of New Brunswick most respectfully report to the Governor of New Jersey, the following answers to the interrogatories in the said act propounded.

The capital stock of the bank actually paid in, is sixty-eight thousand two hundred and twenty dollars, ($68,220.) No part of the capital stock of the bank is pledged as security for notes or obligations given in payment of any instalment or instalments on said stock.

Eight thousand one hundred dollars of the capital stock of the bank is pledged as security for notes discounted, to the amount of four thousand four hundred and eighty dollars.

There are two hundred and ten shares of the capital stock of the bank held by the bank, which remain on hand of the original shares not subscribed for.

The amount of gold and silver actually in possession of the bank, and belonging to it, on the 11th day of May, 1837, the day on which it suspended specie payments, was nine thousand four hundred and seventy dollars, the amount belonging to it on the first day of November 1837, nine thousand two hundred and three dollars; and at the time of making up this report, December 11th, 1837, nine thousand one hundred and eighty-eight dollars and ninety cents.

The bank has taken no measures to increase its specie, preparatory to this investigation.

The bank has made no disposition of its specie, except in its ordinary business at the counter, and in payment of its debts, since the suspension of specie payments.

The amount of the circulation of the bank on the 11th May, 1837, when it suspended specie payments, was fifty-seven thousand five hundred and six dollars; on the first day of November, 1837, forty-six thousand nine hundred and thirteen dollars; at this time, [the 4th December,] fifty-three thousand four hundred and eighty-five.

The value of the real estate of the bank, is variously estimated at six thousand five hundred to seven thousand five hundred dollars, the peculiar circumstances of the times, affecting as they materially do, the value of real as well as other property, give ample room for this difference in judgment. The highest valuation would probably have been too low, if the property had actually been sold some time since. The real estate consists in a banking house, three stores, substantial brick, including a dwelling in a part of the city eligible at all times for business and residence.

The balances due to this bank from other banks, are eleven thousand one hundred and fifty dollars twelve cents, all good except two hundred and eighteen dollars in controversy. There is also, in the hands of its agent in N. York, for the redemption of its notes, two thousand four hundred and ten dollars and forty-four cents, all of which is good.

The amount of the notes of other banks held by the bank at this time, and drafts equivalent thereto, is four thousand four hundred and seventeen dollars and twenty-one cents, all good except forty-seven dollars of counterfeit money.

The amount of the "notes, drafts, and bills of exchange discounted and loans made," by this bank, at the period of the suspension of specie payments, was ninety-three thousand six hundred and sixty dollars, at this time it is eighty-four thousand and forty-six dollars and seventy-five cents. Of this amount there is good eighty thousand six hundred and ninety-six dollars; bad one hundred and twenty dollars; and doubtful, three thousand two hundred and thirty dollars.

The amount of "notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and loans made by the bank," secured by mortgage on real estate is two thousand and fifty dollars, and by judgments between seven and ten hundred dollars.

The amount at a fair valuation, of the personal property of the bank is two thousand five hundred dollars, consisting in plates of steel, paper, furniture, vault, stationary, fixtures, &c.

The bank had no surplus on hand at the time it suspended specie payments. It has now none. It has never made a dividend, in consequence of a loss by robbery shortly after it went into operation; of 13,229 dollars more than one fourth of its capital at that time. For the same reason the balance of profit and loss is to the debit of that account now in the sum of seven thousand two hundred and twenty dollars and thirty-one cents.

The amount of current expenses of the bank from the 11th May, 1837, to the present time, is fourteen hundred and twenty-four dollars and forty-five cents. The amount of discounts and interest received within the same time is two thousand and thirty-six dollars and seventy-four cents.

The bank owes nothing to public depositors. Its private deposits are seven thousand four hundred and sixty-seven dollars and forty-seven cents.

The amount due by this bank to other banks and companies, is one thousand six hundred and ninety-one dollars, and five cents.

The bank had no post notes out on the first of November, 1837, and has none now. It however owes $5,000 upon a draft discounted for its use.

There is an amount of debt due to the bank of eleven thousand three hundred and six dollars and ninety-two cents—temporary loans and other credits which are in the course of adjustment, and which may possibly result in a loss to the bank of one quarter or one third of the amount.

These answers cover all the interrogatories, and appear to us to have elicited all the information necessary to a correct understanding of the real condition of the bank.

MECHANICS' AND MANUFACTURERS BANK AT TRENTON.

To his Excellency,

WILLIAM PENNINGTON,

Governor of the State of New Jersey.

SIR,

In compliance with the provisions of the second section of the Act, entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks in this state, and for other purposes," passed, 11th November, 1837; the President and Cashier of the Mechanics and Manufacturers Bank at Trenton, have the honor to present to you the following answers to the interrogatories proposed in said Act, as being the condition of the affairs of said bank.

The amount of capital stock paid in is $100,000.

The whole amount of the instalments required by the bank were paid in cash; the bank does not now, nor never has held a stock note.

Twenty-five shares of the stock of this bank have been hypothecated to the bank as collateral security for a discounted note. The bank does not hold any other of its stock by hypothecation or otherwise.

This Bank had on hand at the time of the suspension of specie payments, in specie, the property of the bank, sixteen thousand three hundred and sixty-eight 69-100 dollars. ($16,368 69.)

On the 1st day of November, 1837, she had $16,062 22.

The amount on hand this day the property of the bank is $16,124 63.

This bank has not taken any measures to increase her stock of specie since the suspension of specie payments.

This bank has not made any disposition of her specie in any manner since the suspension of specie payments, other than in the redemption of her notes and in the payment of her debts, except $156 82 in foreign gold, which was sold for the reason that foreign gold is not usually paid out at the counter.

The notes of this bank in circulation on the 12th day of May, last, were $75,442. Her notes in circulation on the 1st day of November, 1837, were $34,181 ; and her notes in circulation this day are $42,762.

The value of the real estate of this bank is considered worth $6,500. It consists of the banking house and lot only.

The balances due from other banks this day, are $11,422 89. It is all considered good.

This bank has on hand this day, the notes of other banks, $7,093 04, and tickets which can be converted into bank notes at pleasure, $607 14, making an aggregate of $7,700 18. All considered good.

The bills and notes discounted and unpaid, the property of the bank on the day of the suspension of specie payments were $157,898 56. The amount this day is $142,582 81. Of the latter, $175 are bad, $11,875 considered doubtful, and $130,-532 81 are considered good.

This bank hold no mortgages on real estate nor any other liens except small amounts on judgments and executions.

This bank has no property other than what is heretofore set down except plates, paper, books, &c. necessary for her operations which are valued at $1,000. The surplus on hand at the suspension of specie payments was $317 43. The discounts received and interest amount, at this time, to $3,895 56, making together $4,212 99.

The last dividend made by this bank, was at the rate of 6 per centum per annum.

All dividends which remain unpaid have been passed to the credit of the persons entitled to them and therefore are included in the deposites.

The balance of the profit and loss account is answered by the item of surplus on hand.

The expenses of this bank since the suspension of specie payments are about $1,200.

The discounts and interest received in the same period amount to $3,113 79.

All the deposites in this bank are considered private deposites, and amount to $32,039 35.

The balances due to other banks amount this day to $3,452 04.

This bank has never issued any post notes, and consequently have none outstanding.

This bank owe no other debts than those above enumerated, except for labor and materials in the construction of the banking house, amounting to about $1,150.

We know of no other matters to communicate that will lead to a more perfect understanding of the condition of this bank, than are exhibited in the foregoing answers.

All which are respectfully submitted.

BURLINGTON COUNTY BANK, MEDFORD.

WILLIAM PENNINGTON,

Governor of New Jersey.

The officers of the Burlington County Bank, at Medford, having received the circular of the 11th of November last, with a copy of the act of Assembly, entitled, "An act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks of this state and for other purposes"— passed the 11th day of November, 1837. Most of the interrogatories contained in the said act, appear to us to be applicable to those banks only that have issued and put in circulation, notes, bills, or other evidences of debt, or received deposits, and suspended the payment of them in specie, which is not the case with this bank. It is, nevertheless, apparent, by the 27th or last interrogatory of the second section, that one of the objects the legislature had in view, was to obtain the real situation and condition of all the banks in this state, which interrogatory is in the following words: "Are there any facts within our knowledge, which may lead to a more full understanding of the real condition of your bank, besides such as are stated in answer to the foregoing inquiries, and if any, what are they?" By the following answer to which, the real situation and condition of this bank will be fully understood, to wit: The charter was passed on the 1st day of March last. On the 10th of May, the commissioners therein appointed, opened books at Medford, for subscription to the capitol stock, (having previously given such public notice of the time and place as the charter required.) The books were continued open two days, (that being the time required,) within which time the whole number of shares was subscribed for, all by citizens of this state, (except thirty-five shares.) and no more applied for within that time. No person was refused the privilege of subscribing for as many shares as requested, nor none curtailed in the number. At the same time, five dollars on each share was paid to the commissioners in such money as the charter required. On the 3d day of June, the directors were elected in the manner prescribed in the charter. On the 19th they all met, and were qualified into office, organized themselves into a board, elected a president and treasurer, received the money, books, &c., of the commissioners, soon after purchased a lot in Medford, and commenced preparations for building a banking house thereon, which is so far completed as to have finished the plastering, having expended and actually paid, in the purchase of the lot, and building the said house, two thousand five hundred and ninety-six dollars and fifty-seven cents. The second instalment of five dollars on each share was called for on the 2d of October last, and actually paid in for banking purposes. No stock notes were given, nor at any time taken. The bank owns none of the capital stock, nor has none of it hypothecated for debts due the bank. It has nothing secured to it by mortgage, or otherwise, on real estate. It is not indebted to any other bank or company. A cashier and clerk are elected, but not yet called into its service. One of the directors has been temporarily appointed treasurer of the funds. The president and directors have been discounting upon the capital paid in. The amount of capital paid in at this time, (1st of January, 1838,) is twenty-one thousand, one hundred and twenty-seven dollars, being the amount of two instalments, and a part of the third and fourth voluntarily paid in. The bank has not issued or put in circulation any notes, bills, or other evidences of debt—nor received any depositories—consequently has not suspended payment of them in specie, (having had none to pay)—the charter not authorizing the said bank to issue and circulate any notes or bills, until after forty thousand dollars of its capital is actually paid in—the banking house and vault not being fully completed, so as to be prepared to receive depositories. The amount of notes, bills, and drafts discounted, and on hand, January 1st, 1838, is eighteen thousand seven hundred and forty-five dollars and ninety-two cents, all considered good ; none bad or doubtful. The balance of the profit and loss account in favor of the bank, is five hundred thirty-six dollars and ninety-nine cents. No dividends have been declared, the charter not requiring it until after the first year.

The following is a statement of the account as it stands, January 1, 1838 :

STATE BANK, MORRIS.

A true, full, and perfect answer of the President and Cashier of the STATE BANK at Morris, in the state of New Jersey, to the interrogatories propounded to them by the legislature, and transmitted to them by the Governor of said state, pursuant to an Act of the said legislature, entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation of the banks of this state and for other purposes," passed the 11th day of November, 1837.

To which said several interrogatories as expressed in the 2d section of said act, Joseph Cutler, President of the State Bank at Morris, and Edward Condict, Cashier thereof, answer as follows, viz :

That the amount of the capital stock of this bank actually paid in, is one hundred thousand dollars.

That there is no part of the capital stock of this bank pledged as security for notes or other obligations given in payment of any instalment or instalments on said stock.

That the amount of capital stock of this bank pledged as security for notes discounted and held by, or for loans made by this bank, is three thousand four hundred sixty-four and 69-100 dollars.

That the amount of capital stock of this bank belonging to the bank is seventy-six shares, $50 per share, making three thousand eight hundred dollars.

That the amount of specie on hand and the property of this bank, on the day of the suspension of specie payments by this bank was four thousand six hundred ninety-seven 64-100 dollars; on the 1st November, 1837, five thousand and thirty-two 68-100 dollars; at this time five thousand nine hundred and sixty 37-100 dollars. We have taken no measures whatever to increase our stock of specie or bullion beyond our usual amount preparatory to this investigation. Nor have we made any disposition of our specie or bullion other than in the redemption of our bills and payment of our debts, since the suspension of specie payments by this bank, excepting the sum of $88 of foreign gold, which we sold because it was foreign, and for about what it cost.

At the time of the suspension of specie payments by this bank, the notes of the bank in circulation amounted to thirty-two thousand seven hundred and twenty-two dollars; on the 1st November, 1837, forty-three thousand six hundred and fifty dollars; at this time it is forty-five thousand three hundred and forty-two dollars.

That the real estate belonging to this bank is considered as worth at a fair valuation ten thousand dollars. It consists of a banking house and lot in Morristown worth eight thousand dollars ; and about three hundred and twenty acres of land near Stanhope, in the County of Sussex, worth seven dollars per acre.

That the amount of balances due from other banks to this, is thirteen thousand four hundred and twenty-four 84-100 dollars. ($13,424 84) All which are deemed good.

That the amount of notes of other banks now held by, and the property of this bank, is sixteen thousand four hundred and fifty-five 15-100 dollars. All considered good. That the amount of notes, drafts, and bills of exchange, or in other words, the bills receivable of this bank, discounted by the bank and held for loans by the bank, and which were the property of the bank at the period of the suspension of specie payments by this bank, was one hundred and fifty one thousand seven hundred and five 47-100 dollars. The amount at this time is one hundred and twenty-eight thousand five hundred and ninety-seven 70-100 dollars. The amount at each of these periods includes the debts secured by bond and mortgage on real estate, that is to say, twelve thousand eight hundred and fifty-two 7-100 dollars ; and also the sum mentioned above, of debts for which we have hypothecated stock in addition to personal security. No part of the sum of $128,597 71, is considered bad or doubtful, except a part of the sum secured by bond and mortgage on real estate ; what part may prove bad we have no means of ascertaining until the measures already taken are effectual in bringing it to a close, and is altogether uncertain.

The other property belonging to this bank consists of stoves, time piece, plates for striking off bank notes, bank notes in blank, bank note paper, desks, tables and chairs, &c., the ordinary furniture and stationery of a banking office, worth at a low estimate, five hundred dollars.

The amount of surplus on hand at the time we suspended specie payments, being the balance of our account of profit and loss, according to our books was nine thousand two hundred and ninety-three 93-100 dollars. The amount at this time, as appears by the balance of profit and loss account, including discount and interest received, is thirteen thousand and ninety-nine 70-100 dollars. This account has been increased by adding to the valuation on our books of our real estate about three thousand dollars.

The only dividend declared by this bank since the suspension of specie payments by this bank, was at the rate of five per centum per annum for the six months ending first October, 1837: making two thousand five hundred dollars of this sum. Three hundred and ninety-eight 25-100 dollars remain unpaid. The amount of balance of profit and loss account stated above, thirteen thousand ninety-nine dollars and seventy cents. The current expenses of this bank, including some repairs to the banking house since the suspension of specie payments by the bank, are as appears by the books, two thousand six hundred and two 65-100 dollars.

The amount of discount and interest received by this bank during the same period is four thousand two hundred and thirty-seven 14-100 dollars, which has been carried to the profit and loss account. This bank is in no shape indebted to public depositors, except to the state treasurer, in the sum of five hundred dollars.

The amount due to private depositors is fifteen thousand nine hundred and seventy-seven 90-100 dollars.

The amount due by this bank to other banks is three thousand four hundred and twenty 22-100 dollars.

This bank had on the 1st day of November, 1837, no post notes issued or outstanding, nor has it at this time.

We do not know of any other debts due or to become due from this bank. Nor are there any facts within our knowledge which will lead to a more full understanding of the real condition of this institution.

FARMERS' BANK OF NEW JERSEY.

To His Excellency

WILLIAM PENNINGTON,

Governor of the State of New Jersey.

We, the undersigned, President and Cashier of the Farmers Bank of New Jersey, in conformity with the provisions of the act of the legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks of this state, and for other purposes;" passed, the eleventh day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven, and in answer to the interrogatories comprised in the second section of the said act, declare and say as follows: viz.

In answer to the first interrogatory contained in the said section of the said act, we, the said President and Cashier do declare and say, that the amount of the capital stock of the said bank actually paid in, is one hundred thousand dollars.

In answer to the second interrogatory, we declare and say, that not any of the capital stock of the said bank is pledged as security for notes or other obligations given in payment of any instalment or instalments on said stock.

In answer to the third interrogatory, we declare and say, that there are four hundred and forty-one shares of the capital stock of the said bank pledged as security for notes discounted, and loans made by the said bank, otherwise than in the manner mentioned in the last inquiry, amounting in the aggregate to four thousand seven hundred dollars.

In answer to the fourth interrogatory, we declare and say, that no part of the capital stock of the said bank, is the property of the said bank.

In answer to the fifth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of specie which the said bank had on hand, and actually in its possession, on the day of the suspension of specie payments by the said bank, was eighteen thousand nine hundred and fifty dollars. (18,950.) And the amount on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, was nineteen thousand and eleven dollars, and the amount at this time is eighteen thousand nine hundred and thirty-six dollars. ($18,936.)

And that the said bank had not at the time of its suspension of specie payments, nor had it at any time since, nor has it now any gold or silver bullion on hand other than the specie above mentioned.

In answer to the sixth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the said bank has not taken any measures to increase its stock of specie or bullion beyond its usual amount, preparatory to this investigation.

In answer to the seventh interrogatory, we declare and say, that the said bank has not made any disposition of its specie or bullion, other than in the redemption of its bills, and the payment of its indebtedness, since the period of its suspension of specie payments, save and except to the amount of forty-four dollars, which the said bank had on hand in foreign coin, which was not a legal tender in payment, in the United States, and which has been sold.

In answer to the eighth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount in circulation of the said bank, at the period of its suspension of specie payments, was one hundred and ten thousand five hundred and one dollars ; that the amount on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, was sixty thousand four hundred and seventy-two dollars ; and that the amount at this time is forty-eight thousand nine hundred and sixty-three dollars. ($48,963.)

In answer to the ninth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the real estate of the said bank consists of a banking house and lot of land in Mount Holly, in the county of Burlington, which cost the said bank ten thousand six hundred and seventeen dollars, and is believed to be fairly worth the same. Also, a shore lot, the value of which, if any thing, is not known.

In answer to the tenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount due to the said bank, from other banks, and over and above the amount of notes of other banks, now in the vaults of our said bank, is twenty thousand eight hundred and seventy-four dollars ; all of which is believed to be good. This is exclusive of the sum of ten hundred and seventy-two dollars due from State Bank at Trenton, and one hundred and twenty-one dollars, ninety-one cents, due from Franklin Bank of New York, and which have been charged to the account of profit and loss.

In answer to the eleventh interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of notes and drafts of other banks now on hand and the property of this bank, is seventeen thousand three hundred and fifty-four dollars. That of the said amount, seventeen thousand three hundred and fifteen are considered good; ten dollars doubtful, and twenty-nine dollars bad.

In answer to the twelfth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of notes, drafts, bills of exchange, discounted or held, and loans made by the said bank, and the property of the said bank, at the period of its suspension of specific payments, was two hundred and thirty-six thousand, eight hundred and seventy-four dollars—of this amount, considered good, two hundred and thirty-one thousand four hundred and seventy-one dollars, thirty-one cents; considered doubtful, eleven hundred and sixty-six dollars and sixteen cents; considered bad, fifteen hundred and one dollars and sixty-seven cents; and estimate a loss on a mortgage of twenty-seven hundred and thirty-five dollars, and eighty-six cents.

That the amount now is one hundred and sixty-seven thousand, five hundred and fifty-five dollars. Of this amount, considered good, one hundred and sixty-two thousand, one hundred and fifty-one dollars, eighty-one cents; and the doubtful and bad debts, as above stated.

This statement is exclusive of notes discounted by the said bank, and which being considered as worthless, have already been charged as losses to profit and loss account, and are not brought into this statement.

In answer to the thirteenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that of the amount of the notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and loans made, stated in the answer to the twelfth interrogatory, the sum of twelve thousand, two hundred and twelve dollars, are secured to the bank by mortgage or otherwise, on real estate.

In answer to the fourteenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the other property of the bank consists of one hundred shares of the stock of the Commercial Bank of Pennsylvania, and is estimated to be worth, at a fair valuation, six thousand four hundred and sixty-one dollars; also, furniture, plates, bank paper, books, and miscellaneous items, estimated to be worth five hundred dollars.

In answer to the fifteenth interrogatory, we declare and say, the bank keeps no account under this head—the balance of undivided profits remaining to the credit of profit and loss account. The same answer is given to the sixteenth interrogatory.

In answer to the seventeenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the last dividend made by the said bank was at the rate of eight per centum per annum.

In answer to the eighteenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of dividends declared and unpaid by the said bank is six hundred and twenty-four dollars.

In answer of the nineteenth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the balance standing to the credit of the profit and loss account, at the period of the suspension of specie payments was thirty-five thousand one hundred and fifteen dollars; that the balance to the credit of the same account now is thirty-four thousand four hundred and twenty-six dollars. But on the first day of October last, when the last dividend was declared, there had actually accrued and was due for interest on loans made by the said bank, the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars, which not having been actually received, was not included in the amount of discounts received at that time, but which must be credited, when received, to profit and loss account, and will make it amount to thirty-five thousand one hundred and seventy-six dollars.

In answer to the twentieth interrogatory we declare and say, that the amount of the current expenses of the said bank, from the period of its suspension of specie payments for six months, and including one half year's bank tax of two hundred and fifty dollars, is eighteen hundred and fifty four dolliars; doubling which sum, gives three thousand seven hundred and eight dolliars, as the current expenses of the said bank for one year; and which sum may be fairly assumed as the average amount of the current yearly expenses of the said bank, and we feel ourselves unable to state the current expenses of the said bank, since the period of its suspension of specie payments, with more precision than is done by this statement,

In answer to the twenty-first interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of discount and interest received by the said bank from the period of its suspension of specie payments to this time, is six thousand four hundred and twenty-two dollars.

In answer to the twenty-second interrogatory, we declare and say, that there is nothing due from said banks to public depositors.

In answer to the twenty-third interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount due to private depositors, is fifty-two thousand three hundred and eighty-nine dollars.

In answer to the twenty-fourth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount due by the said bank to other banks and companies is eighty dollars, (80 dollars)

In answer to the twenty-fifth interrogatory, we declare and say, that the amount of post notes outstanding on the 11th of November, eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, was four hundred and forty-seven dollars, and at this time, the amount is only four hundred and thirty-three dollars, all payable on demand at the banking house of the said bank. It is believed the amount was the same on the 1st of Nov. 1837, as on the 11th; but we cannot ascertain this with absolute certainty, the enquiry not having been anticipated.

In answer to the twenty-sixth interrogatory, we declare and say, that there are no other debts whatsoever due or to become due from the said bank, than those disclosed in the preceding answers to the interrogatories contained in the said act.

In answer to the twenty-seventh and last interrogatory, we declare and say, that there are not any other facts within our or either of our knowledge, which may lead to a more full understanding of the real condition of the said bank, beside such as are stated, in answer to the foregoing interrogatories. But the undersigned understanding the object of the said act to be, to ascertain, and to show to the people of the state the real condition of the different banks of the State of New Jersey, have thought it not inappropriate, in order to give a more condensed view of the real condition of the said Farmers Bank of New-Jersey, to submit in further answer to this last and general interrogatory, the following, viz.

RECAPITULATION.

Amount of cash funds, consisting of specie and notes of other banks, and balances due from other banks, convertible into specie as soon as a resumption of specie payments by the banks shall take place, as disclosed by the preceding answers, $57,125 00

Amount of the notes of the said bank in circulation, as disclosed by the preceding answers, 48,963 00

Leaving a balance of cash funds over and above the whole amount of the circulation of the said bank, of eight thousand one hundred and sixty-two dollars. 8,162 00

Assets of the said bank of every description, as disclosed by the said answers, amount to (over and above estimated losses, doubtful, and bad debts)	233,855 00
Debts of the said bank of every description, consisting of its notes in circulation, amount due to depositors, and balances due to banks,	101,432 00
Balance of assets over and above all liabili- ties,	132,423 00
From which balance deducting amount of capital stock actually paid into the said bank by the stockholders,	100,000 00
A balance or surplus remains of	$32,423 00

Showing an amount of one hundred and thirty-two dollars and forty-two cents, belonging to the stockholders of the said bank for each sum of one hundred dollars paid by them.

The preceding statements closed at 4 o'clock P. M. of Saturday, 30th December, 1837.

A. GREEN, JR. Commissioner for New Jersey.

SUSSEX BANK.

The answers of the President and Cashier of the Sussex Bank, to the questions propounded to them by his Excellency William Pennington, Governor of the State of New Jersey, by direction of an act of the Legislature of said State, entitled, "An act to provide for an investigation of the condition of the banks of this State and for other purposes," passed the 11th day of November, 1837.

The actual capital of this bank paid in is sixty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, which includes the stock given to the State, as a bonus for the charter, which has been paid out of the profits of the bank, ($67,500.)

There is none of the capital stock of this bank pledged to it for loans or instalments, nor does the bank own any of the shares of its stock.

This bank has not, at any time, wholly suspended specie payments. On or about the time the banks generally suspended, say on the 15th of May last, the specie on hand at this bank was $12,560 67, and on the 1st of November it was $11,692 45, and at this time, (15th January, 1838,) it is $14,749 84.

The specie has not been increased preparatory to this investigation, nor has any been disposed of since the said 15th of May last, otherwise than for change and payment of the notes of the bank. But the board of directors have resolved to supply the inhabitants of the county with change in specie, sufficient for their ordinary business transactions, to obviate a resort to small bills and paper tickets, specie has been purchased for that object, at various times, to a considerable amount in the whole.

The circulation of the bank on the 15th of May last, by the books, appears to have been $106,214, and on the 30th of October, $64,492, and now appears to be $70,523. But the bills of the bank have always been redeemed or paid in the city of New York, as well as at their own office, and the books of the bank often show a much larger circulation than really is out.

The real estate belonging to this bank is estimated to be worth five thousand dollars. It consists of about three quarters of an acre of land in the village of Newton, and county of Sussex, with the banking house and some other building thereon.

The amount due from other banks to this, on the 15th of January, 1838, was $58,518 59, all of which is estimated good, except $46, which is doubtful.

The notes of other banks on hand, the property of the bank, at the same time, was 8,029 dollars, all estimated good, except $74, which is bad.

The discounted notes and bills receivable, held by, and the property of this bank, on the 15th of May last, was $125,744, and the bank then held one bond and mortgage of $162 58, making its entire loans then outstanding and unpaid, the sum of $126,406 58, and the amount on the 15th instant (January, 1838,) including bonds and mortgages, was $99,465 14, all of which are estimated good.

The whole amount of loans now secured by bond and mortgage on real estate is $708 03, exclusive of interest accrued and unpaid.

This bank has no other property, except its books, plates, office notes, note paper, blanks, and furniture of the banking room, fuel, &c. &c., the value of which it is difficult to estimate ; but having all been paid for out of profits of the bank, it makes no part of the assets in our several reports to the treasurer.

On the 15th of May last the amount at the credit of surplus fund account was $20,308 59, being undivided profits up to the dividend in February last ; and the amount to the credit of the same account now is $21,272 55, being undivided profits up to the dividend in August last.

The last dividend was at the rate of six per centum per annum.

The dividends unpaid, including $70 to the credit of the state treasurer, amount to $743 90.

The balance of profit and loss account on the 15th instant, was $296 71.

The precise amount of current expenses of this bank since the 15th of May last, cannot be conveniently ascertained, but the amount since paid including salaries, is $1,145 55.

The discount and interest received in the same time amounts to the sum of $5,142 61.

This bank holds no public deposits. The amount due to private depositors is $19,329 79.

There is due to other banks, from this, $4,582 24.

This bank has never issued any post notes.

The bank owes no debts other than what is stated above, except a small postage account, and a small account to printer for advertising, &c., and the accruing salaries to its officers, which are paid and settled at the semi-annual dividends.

There are no other facts within our knowledge that would lead to a more full understanding of the real condition of this bank, in addition to what are above stated, unless it be the following, which may be calculated to strengthen the public confidence in the institution :—

By the act of incorporation, the directors of this bank are made individually liable for the bills issued and put in circulation, and in that personal liability the public have an additional security for the redemption of its bills, besides the assets of the bank.

That the directors are regularly elected and sworn into office agreeably to the requirements of the charter, and by a legally competent board, meet at the banking house on discount days, when and where the discounting of notes is done.

That the directors are not borrowers of the bank, except in a few cases, where they are connected with mercantile firms, and in those cases to very limited and moderate amounts, always on notes well secured by endorsemens.

That the loans of the bank are generally in small amounts, and, with rarely an exception, secured by a good endorser in the county where notes or bills have been discounted against drawers living out of it.

That the loans of the bank are generally to good and substantial freeholders, and that in the twenty years (nearly) which the bank has been in operation but one discounted note has been entirely lost, and that one only 17 or 18 dollars in amount.

That but three or four cases are recollectec in which property has been sold at the suit of the bank, and in one of those it was by request of the defendant.

That in the whole period of the bank's operations, its bank account in New York has not been but once overdrawn or exhausted by the redemption of its bills, and then only to a small amount for a few days.

The Speaker presented to the House the following communication from the Treasurer :

*To the Honorable
the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey.*

GENTLEMEN—

In obedience to your resolution of the 10th inst. instructing the Treasurer to lay before the House a statement containing the amount of revenues collected and disbursed during the past year, an estimate of the probable expenses of the government for the present year, the condition of the school fund, how invested, &c., the amount of surplus revenue received, and how distributed, and such other matter as he may deem expedient for the information of the House, relative to the general condition of the Treasury Department, I have the honor to report—

That the receipts into the treasury during the year, ending on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1837, amounted to the sum of $135,548 18, viz :

Balance in the Treasury on the 28th day of October, 1836,	$10,306 08
Received from Camden and Amboy Railroad and Transportation Company, on account of dividends and transit duties,	41,154 46
For taxes collected from several counties,	40,007 00
Incidentals, &c.,	302 87
Sundry Loans,	43,778 40
	—————
	$135,548 81
The amount of disbursements during the same period, was,	133,015 73
	—————
Reported balance on hand,	$2,533 08

Included in the above stated loan, is one from the school fund, of,	$13,778 40
Also one from the Trenton Banking Company,	2,000 00
These loans remain unpaid, together with the interest upon a loan previously obtained from the school fund, amounting to,	2,879 77

To these sums also may be properly added $5,092 60 of liabilities incurred during the past year, and which have been presented and paid since the commencement of the current year, making together the sum of $23,550 77, and after deducting the above reported balance on hand, of $2,533 00, will leave a deficiency in the treasury at the commencement of the present year, of $21,017 69. Add this sum to the amount of $48,317 25 previously borrowed from the school fund, to complete the new penitentiary, and it will make the debt now due and owing by the state, to be $69,334 94.

Thus it will appear that there has been a very considerable increase of expenditure during the last year—and although there is a material difference between the expenditures and the estimates of the treasurer, as will be seen by reference to his report—yet it will be observed that they were much increased in consequence of the extra session of the legislature, which no human foresight could have anticipated at the time those estimates were made ; and it is to be regretted that the legislature, aware of this increase of expenditure, had not pursued the recommendation of the treasurer in continuing the direct tax, to one half the former amount. This would have relieved the people from the usual amount of taxation under the present embarrassed state of the currency—have enabled the treasury to meet the current expenses of the year without being subjected to the disagreeable necessity of resorting to loans—and have freed the people hereafter of the burthens consequent upon a public debt. It is certainly questionable policy in a time of peace, with no extraordinary causes calling for increase of expenditures, to suffer our public debt to augment.

The following may be considered a fair estimate of the expenditures for the present year to be provided for, independent of extra appropriations :

Deficiency in the treasury on the 28th day of October, 1837,	$21,017 67
Legislative and incidental expenses,	30,000 00
State accounts,	5,000 00
Salaries,	10,000 00
Deaf, Dumb, and Blind,	3,000 00
Revolutionary Pensions,	2,000 00
Printing, &c.	3,500 00
Special appropriation to State Prison,	4,025 00
Inquisitions, transportations, advertising, &c.	5,500 00
	$84,022 69

As no direct tax was ordered to be raised, the following are the estimated receipts into the treasury, during the year ending on the 28th of October, 1838.

From the Camden and Amboy Railroad and Transportation Company on account of dividends and transit duties,	$38,000 00
From Delaware and Raritan Canal on account of transit duties, &c.	4,000 00
From New Jersey Rail Road and Transportation Company, on account of one-fourth of one per cent. on the capital stock paid in, &c.	2,815 00
From incidentals,	200 00

Which estimates will leave a balance against the treasury of $39,007 69, to be provided for by direct taxation, or in such other way as the legislature in its wisdom may deem more advisable. It will be observed, however, that there was a deficiency in the treasury at the commencement of the year; and that the revenues above stated, are payable by instalments, at different periods of the year; and the greater portion of the above expenditures are either now due, or will become due and payable during the first quarter. It will therefore be absolutely necessary to have recourse to loans to supply the deficiency, until the legislature can provide means for liquidating the same. In addition to the loan already authorized, it is believed that $40,000 will be required.

It will be remarked, in the foregoing estimate of the amount of revenue derivable from the Camden and Amboy Rail Road and Transportation Company, that it falls short of the last year's receipts. This however is not owing to any supposed difference in the amount of revenue accruing during the year, but to an over draft or payment made by the company, in the quarter ending the 30th of September.

The amount of transit duties for that quarter was $5,177 11 and the payment made was $8,000, being an over payment for the quarter of $2,822 89, consequently the receipts for the present year will be less than that amount, admitting that the dividend will be the same as last year, and I apprehend no cause for a diminution; indeed it is rather believed, that there will be an ~~small~~ increase in the revenues arising from all those works of improvement, should suitable encouragement be given to them; and it is confidently anticipated, should a like policy be extended towards other works of improvement already begun, and in contemplation, that the time is not distant, when a permanent and voluntary system of taxation will be established, that will yield a revenue more than equal to all the necessary expenditures of the government ; thereby entirely relieving the laboring, mechanical, and agricultural interests of our community from the burthens of taxation

The School Fund on the 28th day of October, 1837, as stated by the treasurer, amounted to $289,050 68. This statement, after careful examination, I find incorrect. The actual sum being $269,060 68, making a difference of $19,990— which error appears to have been committed in adding up the different items.

This fund is annually increasing, and will, at the end of the present year, with the interest due, and to grow due thereon, together with the tax of $23,000 arising from the banks, amount to the sum of $285,125 05, after deducting $20,000, the sum annually appropriated for the use of common schools.

The principal of this fund is invested in the following manner :

Private Stocks.

Forty shares of Cumberland bank stock,	$2,000
Twenty shares of Sussex bank stock,	1,000
Two hundred and fifty shares Newark turnpike stock, converted into New Jersey Rail Road and Trans- portation stock,	12,500
One hundred and fifty-nine shares Trenton Banking Company stock,	4,770
	$20,270 00

Private Loans.

On bond and mortgage in the county of Burlington,	$12,000 00
To the county of Sussex	8,000 00
	$20,000 00

On loan to New Jersey Rail Road and Transpor- tation Company,	$100,000 00
“ To the city of Newark,	30,000 00
To Doctor L. Condict and others, Morris and Es- sex Rail Road,	30,000 00
“ To State to complete New State Prison,	48,317 25
“ To State to meet current expenses, and appropriations of last year,	18,778 44

For interest due from State on loans,	2,679 77
For tax due from New Brunswick Bank, Washington Bank, and Mechanics' Bank at Paterson,	1,267 30
On deposit in different Banks,	2,747 92

Making the sum total as before stated, of	$269,060 68

The surplus revenue received by the State from the General Government, amounting to the sum of $764,670 57, has been distributed as directed by the act of the legislature, among the several counties, in the following sums, viz;

To the county of Bergen,	$41,182	14
" " Essex,	62,110	63 $\frac{1}{2}$
" " Passaic,	19,473	00
" " Morris,	59,950	68 $\frac{1}{2}$
" " Sussex,	38,724	15 $\frac{1}{2}$
" " Warren,	41,779	75

" " Burlington,	82,838	36
" " Cumberland,	30,322	69
" " Gloucester,	55,687	02
" " Salem,	41,227	29
" " Cape May,	12,349	44

	$764,670	51

Should the General Government, (as is presumed will be the case,) pay over to the State the fourth instalment, it is respectfully submitted whether it would not, under existing circumstances, be advisable to appropriate so much of that sum as would be necessary to relieve the treasury from its present embarrassments, pay our public debt, and invest the remainder in some safe stocks—the proceeds of which, might hereafter be applied to the use of the State: or if thought more advisable, be added to our School Fund. This would enable the legislature to make some improvement in our Common School system—an object very much to be desired.

By an act of the legislature, and the supplements thereto, the sum of three thousand dollars is authorized to be expended annually, if necessary, for the support of the indigent deaf, dumb and blind. For the last year or two, the whole amount of the sum appropriated, has not been expended. Fifteen have been supported during the last year ; two have since been added to that number, and the term of three will expire the present year by limitation.

During the past and present year, several revolutionary pensioners have been added to the pension list. The present number is twenty-one ; and unless others should be added during your present sitting, the sum required this year for the payment of their pensions, will fall a little short of two thousand dollars.

Agreeably to the act of the legislature, passed at their last sitting, the following banks have transmitted monthly statements to the treasurer, viz ; Mechanics' and Manufacturers' Bank at Trenton; Princeton Bank, State Bank at Morris, Morris County Bank, State Bank at New Brunswick, Union Bank at Dover, Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank at New Brunswick, Trenton Bank, Mechanics' Bank at Newark, Newark Banking and Insurance Company, Belvidere Bank, Sussex Bank, Farmers' Bank of New Jersey, Orange Bank, Paterson Bank. Manufacturers' Bank at Belleville, Burlington County Bank at Medford, Salem Bank, Cumberland Bank, Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, Middletown Point, Camden Bank, Rahway Bank, Commercial Bank of New Jersey, People's Bank at Paterson, State Bank at Elizabeth.

These statements, or abstracts from them, have been published under the direction of the Governor, in six of the newspapers, printed in different parts of the State.

Aware of the great expense and labor attending the monthly publication of these statements, in their original forms as transmitted by the Banks ; and believing that the object of the Legislature could be fully attained by giving them a more condensed form, I have omitted in the publication, much of the original matter—retaining in all cases the tabular statements, and such other parts as were deemed necessary, to give the public a complete understanding of the condition of each bank. The original statements remain on file in the Treasury office.—Should it be deemed advisable by the legislature, longer to continue the publication of those statements, it is believed a still more condensed form may be given to them, whereby a saving of expense to the State may be effected, and the object of the Legislature fully accomplished.

Before closing this communication, I would respectfully suggest the propriety of providing some suitable building, for the safe keeping and preservation of the many valuable records, documents, and evidences of public debt, &c. belonging to the Treasury Department. It is matter of surprise, that this subject has not long since engaged the attention of the Legislature—especially when we consider the many casualties incident to the manner in which they have heretofore been kept.. And it certainly reflects much credit upon the diligence and care of those to whom the charge has heretofore been committed, if none of them have been mutilated, lost or destroyed.

The evidences of debt at this time in the hands of the Treasurer, pertaining to the School Fund and Surplus Revenue, amount to more than a million of dollars ; and under a wise, prudent, and economical management of our public affairs, must continue to accumulate—rendering an early consideration of this subject of increasing importance.

All which is respectfully submitted.

ISAAC SOUFLARD, Treasurer.

Which was read ;

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, and 1000 copies thereof be printed.

Mr. A. C. M. Pennington, agreeably to notice given yesterday, moved to amend the 35th Rule of the House by adding to the Standing Committees a Committee on Divorces,

And while the same was under consideration, it was withdrawn.

A message from Council by Mr. Hornor, their Secretary, informed the House that Council had passed the bill, entitled "An Act to dissolve the marriage contract between Mary Ann Elvoson and Daniel Elvoson, her husband ;"

To which bill the assent of the House of Assembly is requested.

The bill from Council, entitled "An Act to dissolve the marriage contract between Mary Ann Elvoson and Daniel Elvoson her husband;"

Was taken up, read, and ordered to be referred to a Select Committee, viz. Messrs. A. C. M. Pennington, Flummereit, Mairs, Talmage, and Hull, and have a second reading.

On motion of Mr. A. C. M. Pennington, it was Ordered, That so much of the Governor's Message as relates to the currency be referred to the Committee on the Embarrassments of the Country.

Ordered, That the Treasurer be directed to furnish to this House copies of the abstracts of the several Banks in this State transmitted to him under the Act entitled "An Act to provide for an investigation into the condition of the banks in this state, and for other purposes," passed the 9th day of November, 1837.

(Document 1.)

At a meeting of delegates from the different counties assembled in State convention, in the Supreme Court room in the city of Trenton, January 16th, 1838, for the purpose of considering the subject of public instruction, the following resolutions among others were adopted with great unanimity, viz :

Resolved, That this Convention recognizes the principle that it is the duty of every government and especially of every republican State, to provide for the education of the children of its citizens.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention the general laws of the State, on the subject of common schools, are essentially defective and ought to be repealed.

Resolved, That the want of full and definite information respecting the destitution of our state, and of the peculiar difficulties to be overcome in the establishment of complete and satisfactory system of common school education, renders it highly important that some efficient measures should be adopted to supply this deficiency, and being before the people, in all parts of the state, this important subject.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention, one of the most efficient measures that can be adopted for the promotion of common school education, would be the appointment by the state of a superintendant of common schools, with a sufficient salary to enable him to devote his whole time and attention to the subject.

On motion it was resolved that a copy of the above resolutions be presented to the governor, with a request that he would lay them before the legislature.

A correct copy from the minutes,

SAMUEL R. GUMMERE Secretary.

State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations,

In General Assembly, October Session, A. D. 1837.

WHEREAS, The compact of Union between these States was entered into by the people thereof, in their respective States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, ensure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity : And thereupon a Representative Government was instituted by them, with certain limited powers, clearly specified and defined in the Constitution : all other powers, not therein expressly relinquished, being "reserved to the States respectively or to the people." And whereas, this limited government possesses no power to extend its jurisdiction over any foreign nation, and no foreign nations, country or people can be admitted into this Union but by the sovereign will and act of the free people of all and each of these United States : nor without the formation of a new compact of union, and another frame of government radically different in objects, principles and powers, from that which was formed for our own self-government and deemed to be adequate to all the exigencies of our own free Republic : Therefore,

Resolved, That we have witnessed with deep concern the indications of a disposition to bring into this Union, as a constituent member thereof, the foreign province or territory of Texas.

Resolved, That although we are fully aware of the consequences which must follow the accomplishment of such a project, could it be accomplished : aware that it would lead speedily to the conquest and annexation of Mexico itself, and its fourteen remaining provinces or intendencies, which, together with the revolted provinces of Texas, would furnish foreign territories and foreign people for at least twenty members of the new union. That it would load the nation with debt and taxes ; and by involving it in perpetual wars and commotions, both foreign and internal, would furnish a pretence (which a state of war never fails to furnish) for the assumption and exercise of powers incompatable with our free republican institutions, and subversive of the liberties of the people. That the government of a nation so extended and so constructed; would soon become radically changed in character, if not in form ; would unavoidably become a military government ; and under the plea of necessity would free itself from the restraints of the Constitution, and from its accountability to the people : That the ties of kindred, common origin and common interests which have so long bound this people together, and would still continue to bind them ;—these ties, which ought to be held sacred by all true Americans, would be angrily dissolved, and sectional political combinations would be formed with the newly admitted foreign States, unnatural and adverse to the peace and prosperity of the country. That the civil government with all the arbitrary powers it might assume, would be unable to control the storm : the usurper would find himself in his proper element ; and, after acting the patriot and hero for a due season, as the only means of rescuing the country from the ruin which he had chiefly contributed to bring upon it, would reluctantly and modestly allow himself to be declared “ Protector of the Commonwealth ”—That we are fully aware of the deep degradation into which this young Republic would sink itself in the eyes of the whole world, should it annex to its own, vast territories of immense, though unknown extent, for the purpose of encouraging the propagation of slavery, and promoting the raising of slaves within its own bosom—the very bosom of freedom—to be exported and sold in those unhallowed regions. Although we are fully aware of these fearful evils, and numberless others which would come in their train, yet we do not here dwell upon them, because we are firmly convinced that the free people of most, and we trust of all these States, will never suffer the admission of the foreign territory of Texas into this Union as a constituent member thereof ; will never suffer the integrity of this Republic to be violated either by the introduction, and addition to it of foreign nations and territories, one or many, or by the dismemberment of it by the transfer of any one or more of its members to a foreign nation. The people will be aware that should one foreign State or country be introduced, another and another may be, without end, whether situated in South America, in the West India Islands, or in any other part of the world : and that a single foreign State thus admitted, might have it in its power, by holding the balance between the contending parties, to wrest their own government from the hands and control of the people, by whom it was established for their own benefit and self-government. We are firmly convinced that the free people of these States will look upon any attempt to introduce the foreign territory of Texas, or any other foreign territory or nation, into this Union, as a constituent member or members thereof, as manifesting a willingness to prostrate the Constitution and dissolve the Union.

Resolved, That his Excellency the Governor, be requested to forward a copy of the foregoing resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, and to each of the Executives of the several States, with a request that the same may be laid before the respective Legislatures of said States.

A true copy.

Witness, HENRY BOWEN, Sec'y State.

Which was read and laid upon the table.

(Document 3.)

BALTIMORE, (Md.) December 30th, 1837.

Sir :

We have taken the liberty of forwarding to you, by this day's mail, a copy of a Silk Manual, compiled and written by one of the undersigned, which we believe contains much matter connected with the Silk Culture, which is worthy of being laid before the people of these United States. The work was undertaken from a high sense of the great importance of the culture, as a branch of husbandry, to the agricultural community, and a desire to promote, as far as in his power laid, an interesting source of prospective employment to a large and worthy class of society, whose claims and helplessness come commended to his advocacy, by ties which he could not reject without compromising those impulses which impart to humanity its holiest attributes. Since its publication, it has met with numerous evidences of public approbation, as well as an extensive private patronage ; but as it appears to us that a work of such deep moment to every husbandman in the country, should be generally laid before the people, in gratuitous form, we have, from an honest conviction of duty, felt ourselves called upon to forward you the accompanying copy of the Manuel in question, with a respectful request, that should it be deemed of sufficient importance by you to be entitled to that distinction, that you will do us the honor to submit the propriety of its re-publication to the Legislature of the State, over which you preside, for gratuitous distribution. The silk culture, as you are aware, has awakened the most intense interest throughout the country, and hence the propriety of placing in the hands of Agriculturists, a cheap and efficient guide to direct them in the enterprize upon which they have or are about to enter, as we trust, with a zeal that will ensure success; and without arrogating any thing to ourselves, we think we can safely aver, that the Manual in question contains every thing necessary to be known by the silk growers. We may here be permitted further to observe, that it was gotten up with double columns so as to enable its publisher to furnish it at a cheap rate. It contains more matter than almost any two volumes of the fashionable works now published, which sell for $1 25 and $1 50 cents per volume, and notwithstanding its great mass of matter, should the Legislature of your State determine on issuing an edition of it, we will agree to furnish one or two or more thousands of copies at 25 cents per copy.

It may not be amiss to state that by the introduction of the Morus Multicaulis, or many stalked Mulberry, into the culture of this country within the last few years, that the actual outlay for feeding the worms, as well as the trouble, have been decreased more than fifty per cent. nor does the advantage of feeding from it stop here; for in addition to these gratifying facts, we have the following:

An acre of ground planted in Morus Multicaulus, will afford foliage enough to feed a million of worms, which if successfully treated will make 333 lbs. of silk, whereas the white Italian Mulberry would only feed a little above one half of that number. And with a view of showing the value of this quantity, if fabricated into sewing silk, we will state its minimum price is $7 per pound, leaving a clear nett profit per acre, of more than $1,400.

At the last annual session of the Legislature of Maryland, his Excellency Governor Veazey, in a special message recommended the printing of an edition by the State for gratuitous distribution, which recommendation was considered and favorably reported upon by a committee of that body.

In conclusion, permit us to remain, with sentiments of the highest consideration and respect,

Yours most ob't servants,

EDWARD P. ROBERTS,
SAMUEL SANDS.

Which was read and referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

To the Governor of the State of New-Jersey.

Sir,

I respectfully invite your attention to the following resolutions of the Agricultural Society, over which I have the honor to preside, and also to the appended resolution of the Legislature of this State, which were presented by a director of the Society.

The preamble to the resolution of the Legislature expresses our motives for thus endeavouring to facilitate the persevering enterprize of Dr. H. Perrine; and I may add, that my personal knowledge of himself and services, induces me to hope that the Agricultural Society and the Legislature of your State may render him some assistance, at least towards the passage of the Bill alluded to, during the ensuing season of Congress.

Very Respectfully,

Your ob't sev't,

A. B. ROMAN,
Pres. Ag. Soc. Louisiana.

Resolved, That the President of the Board be, and he is hereby authorized, to make such arrangements, as he may deem proper, with Mr. Perrine for the publication, at the expense of the Society, of such part of his writings as may promote the interests of agriculture; and to procure from Havanna, and other parts, through Mr. Perrine, such plants as in his opinion may be acclimated here."

- The foregoing is a true copy from the journal of proceedings of the Agricultural Society of Louisiana, at its meeting of the 7th of March, 1837.

EUG. ROUSSEAU,

Sec. Ag. Soc. Louisiana.

New Orleans, 27th May, 1837.

No 96 Resolution, Whereas, in obedience to the Treasury Circular, of the 6th Sept. 1837, Dr. H. Perrine, late American Consul at Campeche, has been distinguished by his persevering exertions to introduce tropical plants in the United States; and whereas, the Committee of Agriculture in Congress, on the 22d of April 1832, did report a bill to encourage the introduction, and promote the culture of tropical plants in the United States, by conveying conditionally, to said Perrine, and his associates, a Township of Land in Southern Florida; and whereas the gradual acclimation of tropical plants in all the Southern and Southwestern States, may be better accomplished by their immediate domestication in the tropical district of Florida.

Sec. 1. Be it therefore resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives, of the State of Louisiana, in General Assembly convened, that our Senators be instructed, and our representatives requested, to procure the passage of said bill into a law under such conditions as may best comport with the public good.

The Commissioners appointed by "An Act to establish and regulate pilots, for the Ports of Jersey City, Newark and Perth Amboy, by the way of Sandy Hook," Passed Feb. 8th, 1837.

Respectfully report, that since the passage of said law, they have granted licences to twenty-two Branch Pilots, and one Deputy Pilot.

Within the last two months, nine of the pilots have purchased, and had in constant service, a completely fitted and very swift sailing Pilot Boat, called the "Sylph," and a second Boat of a superior description will probably be launched in a few days. When this second Boat is completely equipped, a more active field will be open for several of the Pilots, who have hitherto been unprepared to enter upon the full exercise of their duties.

The number of Vessels Piloted inwards and outwards by the New Jersey Pilots, amounts to three hundred and thirty-seven, and only one accident (and that not of a serious nature) has occurred.

The commissioners have the pleasure of further reporting, that general satisfaction has been evinced by Marine Insurance offices, Ship owners, Ship Masters, and Merchants, engaged in Foreign Commerce, and others (benefitted with an active and efficient Pilotage establishment) in our sister City of New York.

It is now a common circumstance for vessels bound inwards, to be boarded by Pilots, twenty leagues or more from Sandy Hook Light House.

JOHN F. ELLIS.

President.

LAWRENCE KEARNEY, Sec.

My Dear Sir,

I received to day a communication from the Clerk of the House of Assembly, enclosing a resolution of that body, requesting me to deposite in some place hereafter to be designated, duplicate specimens of the minerals, &c. collected by me in the Geological survey of the State.

Having hitherto made my statements of my progress in the various details of the survey through yourself and predecessors, and supposing you the proper source to address in the present instance, I embrace the earliest opportunity to express my entire willingness to comply with the request of the Legislature, and to state through you, to that body, that I have been diligently engaged for some time past in performing an extensive series of chemical analyses upon many of the specimens in the collection, preparatory to commencing the work of arranging them.

A great variety of marls, and many ores, and other minerals are now in the course of being analysed. Though the work of months of research, I conceive this branch of the survey to be so practically useful for rendering the cabinet and my reports instructive, that I shall spare no pains to complete as full an amount of this chemical investigation as I have always contemplated. Though much has been accomplished towards it, much still remains to be done, so that, though a commencement may be made in arranging the Cabinet this Spring, I do not hope to have it entirely completed before the appearance of my general Report, some time next winter. Indeed, I wish to add to the collection, and to the report also, upon which I am diligently laboring, by some further explorations in certain parts of the State next Summer.

I am only waiting to discharge some duties which will engross my attention for the next two or three weeks, to visit Trenton for the purpose of desiring from this Legislature an appropriation for the cases and other fixtures required for the proposed Cabinet. I design being in Trenton about the 10th or 12th of February, unless you or the Legislature should desire my presence sooner.

With sincere respect,

Yours truly,

HENRY D. ROGERS.

Which was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Committee on Agriculture to whom were referred the memorials from various parts of the State, praying for legislative encouragement to promote the culture of the mulberry and the production of silk :

REPORT :

That they have examined the subject with such attention as its importance seemed to demand, and they now lay before the Assembly the result of their investigation.

The subjects to which they deemed it expedient to direct their inquiries, are indicated by the following questions, viz :

Is it desirable that the United States, and particularly, the eastern, middle, and western states, should become a silk growing country ; provided their soil and climate be favorable to the culture of the mulberry, and the rearing of the worm ?

Are the soil and climate of those states, and particularly, those of New Jersey, such as to promise favorable results, if the business should be extensively carried on ?

What are the profits of this culture in the silk growing countries of Europe ; and what will they probably be in our own state ?

What will be the probable results of its extensive introduction, upon the wealth and population of our state?

If the business gives fair promise of being a lucrative one, is any legislative encouragement necessary?

Your committee have endeavored to give each of these queries a fair and candid investigation, and they will lay the results before you, in the order in which the questions are stated :—

First. “Is it desirable that the United States, and particularly the eastern, middle, and western states, should become a silk growing country ; provided their soil and climate be favorable to the culture of the mulberry, and the rearing of the worm ?”

Upon this subject the committee do not think it necessary to dwell long. The consumption of silk is rapidly increasing in our country, as is shown by the custom house returns. In the year 1821, the amount of silks imported fell short of four and a half millions of dollars ; but in 1825 it had risen to nearly ten and a half millions, and in 1836 to over seventeen millions of dollars. These silks are principally brought from France, India, England, and Italy ; and the question arises, what do we export to those countries to pay this enormous amount, in addition to the many other articles which either necessity or luxury induces us to purchase there. The southern and south western states, send their cotton and their tobacco, and we formerly exported our bread-stuffs which some of the European nations would take in return. But the exportation of bread-stuffs, from the middle and western states, has fallen off even more rapidly than the importation of silks has increased. In 1817 the amount of these articles exported was nearly twenty and a half millions of dollars ; but in 1825 it had fallen to less than five and a half millions, and now it is reduced to almost nothing. During the last year, indeed, we have been obliged to make large importations of grain from Europe, instead of sending any there. The eastern, middle, and western states consume more than half the silks brought into the country, and as they have no great staple to export in return, they must either run in debt for them, or be constantly drained of the precious metals. Since then we consume so large an amount of silks in these states, an amount which is regularly increasing, and the countries from which we receive them will take none of our products in return, it is evidently very desirable that we should grow them for ourselves, provided our soil and climate be such as to promise success to the enterprise.

Second. "Are the soil and climate of the states referred to, and particularly those of New Jersey, such as to promise favorable results if the business should be extensively carried on?"

In answer to this query it may be stated, that the White, or Italian mulberry, was introduced into the country, soon after the first settlements were made, and has been found to grow well and produce excellent food for the worm, wherever it has been tried ; from Georgia to Maine, and from the Atlantic to the Mississippi. At first, its cultivation and the rearing of the worm, were confined to the southern States, as corresponding more nearly in climate with the countries in the south of Europe, where the culture was then carried on. In Georgia, the production of silk, was at one time, very considerable. In 1759, they exported to England 10,000 lbs of raw silk, and of such quality as to sell for two to three shillings sterling per pound, more than that from any other country.

About the year 1760, the culture was commenced in one small district of Connecticut, and has been successfully continued up to the present time. In 1810, the value of the silk raised in three counties in that state, was estimated by the United States Marshal, at $23,500 ; and from recent accounts, it appears that it amounts, at the present time, to more than $100,000. The White mulberry thrives well there ; many of the original trees being still in a flourishing state.

A few years prior to the commencement of the Revolutionary War, the business was commenced in Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, and carried on with spirit and success. That struggle put an end to the culture, and it has not received much attention since, until within a few years past. There is probably no country in the world where the Italian mulberry grows better than in many portions of these two states : and according to the testimony of Mr. D'Homegue, and other judges of the article, there is none where silk of superior quality is produced. It has, indeed, been long known, that silk grown in the highest latitudes in which the worm can be reared, is of finer quality and greater strength than that raised further south, the soil being similar ; and that which is produced from a sandy or gravelly soil, is superior to that from a heavier soil, the climate being the same. It is then evident that our soil and climate are perfectly well adapted to the growth of the Italian mulberry, almost the only variety of tree from which the worm is fed, in the European silk growing countries.

But within a few years past, another species of the mulberry, or morus, has been introduced from Asia, which furnishes at least as suitable food for the worm, as the Italian; and in much larger quantity. This is the Chinese mulberry, or morus multicaulis. This tree, too, is well adapted to our soil and climate.

The peculiar food for the worm can, then, be raised in our own state, and those adjoining, as well as in the most favored of the silk growing countries, and it only remains to be ascertained, in answer to the second question, whether our climate be such as to suit the constitution of this wonderful insect.

Count Dandolo, the most celebrated of the European writers upon silk culture, recommends that the laboratories or cocooneries for the accommodation of the worm, should be so constructed as to enable the persons in attendance to keep up a uniform temperature therein, by means of fires when necessary, and numerous apertures for ventilation. Now, if this be necessary, we can surely guard as well against sudden changes of temperature as they can in any part of Europe, although it may be at a little more cost for fuel. But the committee believe that no such precaution is necessary, except in cases of very extraordinary change of external temperature. They are credibly informed that Mr. Jedediah Strong, of Germantown, near Philadelphia, has fed the worms for 11 or 12 seasons past, in numbers varying from 20,000 to 300,000, and has tried almost every different mode of treatment recommended by writers upon the subject. He has followed Dandolo's directions minutely, guarding against any sudden changes of temperature in the building, and he has also fed them in an open barn, without resort to fire, and therefore subject to all the changes of external temperature. When he has adopted the latter mode, his crop has been even more healthy, and made more silk, than when he has regulated the heat with the utmost care. In the summer of 1837, he fed about 200,000 in this way, and was careful to note the temperature in the barn, three times each day. Two mornings it was as low as 52 deg. and it several times rose to 83 and 84 deg. in the middle of the day. During more than half of the time the worms were feeding, it was either cloudy and damp, or rainy. Notwithstanding these very unfavorable circumstances, his crop remained in perfect health, and made very excellent cocoons. If then they succeed well in open buildings, in weather so unfavorable, they will doubtless do equally well in ordinary seasons, and in buildings better adapted to the purpose. We may then fairly conclude, that both our soil and climate are finely adapted to the silk culture.

But some who admit the correctness of these conclusions, may still be of the opinion, that, although we may make as good silk as in any other country, and in as large quantity, in proportion to the land cultivated for the purpose, still the price of labor is so high with us, that we cannot make it a profitable business. Let us proceed, then, to the consideration of our third query—

From most of the silk growing countries of Europe we have no such precise information, as to enable us to ascertain what are the profits on any given investment or outlay. The opinion however, is general, that the profits are large, and there are some circumstances which go to confirm this opinion. Neither the worm nor the white mulberry on which it feeds, is indigenous to the European silk growing countries. For many centuries after silk fabrics were known in Europe, they were obtained from China, by means of caravans which traversed the whole breadth of the Asiatic continent. The Persians were the carriers, and their European customers were so ignorant of the mode in which it was obtained, that they even supposed it to be the fibrous parts of some Chinese plant. It was not until the middle of the sixth century that they were better informed. At this period two monks who had been in China, as missionaries, brought a few eggs of the insect, and some seed of the mulberry to the emperor Justinian, at Constantinople. From this small stock all the myriads that have been reared in Europe, have proceeded. The culture was first established in Greece, and afterwards extended to Sicily, Italy, France, and some other countries. Now, it is worthy of remark, that in whatever country this culture has been fairly established, it continues to the present day; interrupted, it is true, during periods of war and civil commotion, but only to be re-commenced and extended when those wars or commotions have subsided. The committee cannot believe that, if the business had not been a profitable one, it would have thus held its own, and even have been uniformly extended wherever it has been introduced.

But, fortunately for our purpose, we are not left to mere general inference as to the profits of the most extensive silk growing country of Europe. In 1832, Dr. John Bowring, a gentleman of great intelligence and industry, visited the silk and wine districts of France, under official appointment: and in 1834, after having made very extensive and minute inquiries respecting these two species of culture, he made a report upon them to the Lords Commissioners of trade and plantations, of Great Britain. In connection with a great amount of other facts respecting the silk culture, he gives the following statement of the average profits to the feeder of the worm ; viz.

10 ounces eggs, yielding 1000 lbs. cocoons,	$4 70
16,000 lbs. mulberry leaves,	105 28
Rent and expenses in cocoonery,	30 08

	$140 06

The average price of cocoons in France is 23 1-2 cents per pound, which makes $235 for the 1000 lbs. and gives a nett profit of $95 on an outlay of $140, or nearly sixty-eight per cent. But a large proportion of those who rear the worm, reel the silk before it is sent to market, and make a small additional profit on that, as will be seen, by reference to following statement.

The 1000 lbs. of cocoons will make 85 lbs. of reeled silk, the average price of which is $3 76 per pound.

85 lbs. silk at $3 76,	$319 70
Deduct cost of cocoons,	$140 06
Expense of reeling,	34 78

This gives a profit to the feeder and reeler of $134 76, on an outlay of $174 84, or nearly 77 per cent. This, according to the report of Dr. Bowring, is the average profit to the feeders of the worms in France, a large part of whom purchase their foliage from the owners of the soil. What the profits are to those who cultivate the tree, he has not informed us specifically, but says it is greater than from any other crop. The silk growing in France, then, is an extremely profitable business.—But still, in consequence of the difference of wages between that country and this, it may not be profitable in New Jersey ; let us examine the subject.

The wages of an ordinary hand, during the summer season, according to the testimony of the gentleman just named, is 1 1-2 francs, per day, with boarding and lodging. This is about 26 cents of our money, or about one-half of what we must pay here for an ordinary hand. Now unless we can make more silk, per hand, here, than they do in France, the business will most likely be a losing one. How does this matter stand ?

In the first place it may be observed, in general terms, that where labor is low, business is carried on more sluggishly than where it is high, and their implements are more rude and less adapted to the purpose ; so that the same sum expended, produces little, if any, more in the former case than in the latter.—But the silk grower, in our state, will possess great advantages over those of France, independent of the greater energy and and expertness of our laboring population.

The silk of France is nearly all made from the Italian mulberry, and that of this country will be produced from the Morus Multicaulis. The former has a very small leaf, and the labor of picking, which is the largest item of expense in making the cocoons, is very great.—The Morus Multicaulis has a leaf more than five times the size, and the expense of picking is reduced to much less than half, probably to one third. Again, the latter tree furnishes a much larger crop per acre than the former. It has also another advantage over the White mulberry, which is very important, especially in the commencement of the business. The White Mulberry must be cultivated for at least three or four years, before it will be safe to rob it of its leaves, and even then, it yields but a very small crop. But the Morus Multicaulis bears picking the first year, and, if planted sufficiently close, will yield a greater weight of foliage than the White mulberry would at any age whatever. But it may be inquired, whether, if this tree possesses advantages so great over that cultivated in Europe, it will not soon be introduced there, so as to enable them to compete with us, in this respect. In reply to this question it may be observed that in all the countries of continental Europe especially, they are very slow in adopting modern improvements. The great mass of the people rank low in the scale of intelligence, and are strongly opposed to any modes or systems of conducting business, which were not common with their forefathers. Again, the landed proprietors have their grounds planted with the Italian mulberry, which is yielding them large profits ; and they are not very likely to cut them down and replant the land with others, until a long course of years shall have completely satisfied them that they would consult their interest by so doing. If, then, our citizens shall lay hold of the business in good earnest, they will, in all probability, reap a rich reward before there will be any serious competition in Europe, from the general introduction of the same tree.

But it is not only in the species of tree that we have the advantage over the silk growers of Europe. They make but one crop in a season ; and that, for want of the means of knowing how to retard the hatching of the worm, is completed before the tree has its full quantum of foliage. Their one crop, therefore, is less extensive than it might be, if made later. But some of our ingenious fellow countrymen have discovered a mode of keeping back the eggs, so as to have them to hatch whenever it suits their convenience, and by this means, the feeder is enabled to rear a succession of crops, until the frost destroys the foliage in the autumn. The Messrs. Cheney who have commenced a large establishment for feeding the worm, near the city of Burlington, kept eggs, which usually hatch about the last of May, until the middle of August ; and then had them to come out as perfectly as at any other season of the year. This is accomplished by placing the eggs in an ice-house, and then bringing them, by parcels, into a warm room, whenever it suits the convenience of the feeder. By this contrivance, we are enabled to obtain more than double the amount of silk from the same ground, that could be obtained where only one crop is fed.

We have also a great advantage over the European feeder, in the arrangements of the laboratory or cocoonery. It is of the utmost importance to the health of the worms and, consequently, to their production of silk, that they should be kept clean. If this is not attended to, they perish in large numbers; and to effect it, they must be frequently removed from the shelves or hurdles on which they are feeding, and all litter and excrement carefully taken away. This is an operation so tedious, in the European mode of conducting their establishments, that many of them neglect it almost entirely ; and consequently, lose a large part of their worms, after having had the expense of feeding them until they have attained more than half their growth. This onerous business of cleansing the shelves or hurdles is greatly lessened by means of an apparatus and fixtures contrived by a Mr. Terhooven, of Germantown, which enables one person to attend to more worms in the laboratory, than three persons on the old plan. The committee have examined a model of these fixtures exhibited by some of the petitioners, and they would recommend such an examination to every member who feels an interest in the success of this branch of industry.

When, therefore, the committee have considered all the advantages which the grower of silk in this country, and in our own state, must possess, for at least a series of years. over his European competitors, they have not doubted that they will much more than counterbalance the difference of wages, and that the profits of the business here, must be greater than they are shown to be in France.

Fourth. "What, then, will be the probable results of the extensive introduction of this species of culture, upon the wealth and population of the state?"

It is a fact well known, that many portions of our state contain large amounts of land, of light soil, and in a very low state of cultivation. Many thousands of acres are to be found, in most of our counties, that yield so little when tilled, as scarcely to repay the farmer for the necessary labor, independent of any rent. It has, therefore, been a prominent subject of inquiry, with the committee, whether any considerable portion of such land can be brought into profitable cultivation, by the introduction of this business. The result of their inquiries has been, that, although a rich loom, or sandy loom, will probably afford the largest profit to the cultivator, yet even a poor gravelly or sandy soil, if planted with the Morus Multicaulis, will yield such an amount of food for the worm, as to make its cultivation a decidedly profitable employment. They are informed that about 20,000 of these trees were raised the last season, on a lot of poor sandy soil, near Burlington, where no kind of grain could be raised so as to pay for the labor alone, and yet some of them grew full five feet in height, and but few of them fell short of two feet, even where no manure was used. It is the opinion of gentlemen acquainted with the subject, that such land as this will yield food enough to make from 20 to 25 lbs. of the very best silk per acre, and that this will afford a nett profit of at least $2 per lb. or from $40 to $50 per acre. If such be the fact, and the committee see no reason to doubt it, how many thousands of acres, now unproductive, will this business render more profitable to the proprietors than even our best lands are at present? How immensely must it add to the solid wealth of our state? For, it will not be such lands alone that will be increased in value, but the whole of the soil must partake of the increase, to a greater or less extent. In one neighborhood, at least, this enhancement of value is already very decided, merely in consequence of the preparation for entering into the business.

But it is not the landholder alone that will be benefitted by its extensive introduction. The whole community must feel its influence, and our industrious fellow citizens, instead of emigrating to the fertile regions of the west, will remain contented with their more prosperous condition among those with whom they have associated from infancy. This is a species of industry in which females, and even small children, may be most profitably employed. The gathering of the leaves, the attendance upon the worms in the laboratory, and the reeling of the silk from the cocoons, are all employments in which women and children can effect as much as robust men. Should, then, this business be extensively engaged in, the committee doubt not that it will add greatly to the wealth of the state, and largely increase our population, by removing the inducements to emigration.

First. "If then the business bids fair to be so lucrative, is any legislative encouragement necessary, in order to insure its speedy introduction."

It might, at first view of the subject, be supposed that any new business which gave fair promise of being very profitable, would at once be adopted, to as great an extent as could be desired. Such has not, however, proved to be the fact. As has been shown above, this business is very profitable in the silk growing countries of Europe, and adds greatly to their wealth; and yet in each of those countries, perhaps without exception, the culture has been introduced by the special encouragement of government. In a small part too of the State of Connecticut, this business has been carried on for a long course of years, yielding rich returns to those who have been engaged in it. But, in other parts of the same state, it seemed to be scarcely thought of, until the legislature took up the subject and offered a bounty for its encouragement. Now almost every part of the state is alive to it, and there is a strong probability that the bounty will be increased. So also in Massachusetts. In this state, the business had scarcely commenced, until the legislature two years ago, passed an act allowing a handsome premium for all the silk raised within its limits. Now, all is activity. Large numbers of the mulberry are under cultivation, and other preparations are making for going extensively into the culture. Manufacturing establishments have been commenced in several of her towns, and the ingenuity of many of her citizens has been set at work, to improve the machinery for reeling the silk, converting it into sewing silk, or weaving it into handsome and substantial fabrics.

The committee may also refer to the action of the legislature of Maine, respecting another species of culture, to show the powerful stimulus which is given by legislative action. In that state, the opinion was almost universal among the farmers, that their soil and climate were unsuited to the growth of wheat; and accordingly, almost the whole of their supply was obtained from states, whose soil and climate was supposed to be more favorable. Some of their more intelligent farmers, it is true, had proved that this grain could be grown of such quality, and in such quantity, as to repay them well for their attention to it. But the experiment remained untried by the great mass of her agriculturists, until the legislature recently offered a bounty to every one who should raise a given amount. This immediately produced the desired effect ; for, last season, they not only raised enough for home consumption, but even had some to export. We see then, the powerful influence which the encouragement of governments has had elsewhere, and it is probably as necessary that such a stimulus should be applied here.

Nor do the committee believe there is any thing incorrect in the principle of such encouragement. It has been the uniform policy of every intelligent government, to encourage the introduction or extension of almost every species of profitable industry, by bounties or protective duties. Our fisheries have been encouraged by bounties, our commerce by tonnage duties on foreign vessels, and our manufactures by heavy impost duties upon similar articles from foreign countries.

So also in Great Brittan. Her agriculture, her commerce, and her manufactures, have all been largely encouraged by bounties or protection ; and it may safely be asserted, that she owes her wealth and prosperity more to this policy than to any thing peculiarly favorable in her situation, or to the superior enterprize and intelligence of her people. It was this that enabled her to fight the battles of Europe during the wars which arose out of the French revolution ; and which furnished her with the means of subsidizing most of the nations of the continent. It was such a policy also, that caused France to increase in wealth and resources, under the rule of Napoleon, notwithstanding the immense expense at which her armies were maintained.

Having thus shown, to the satisfaction, as they hope, of the House, that it is very desirable for the non-slave holding states, in particular, to become a silk growing country, that their soil and climate are admirably adapted to its culture, that the profits of the business must be large, if it be undertaken with spirit and energy ; that it must, therefore, greatly increase the wealth and property of the state, and that legislative encouragement is necessary to insure its extensive introduction, the committee have only to express the hope that the prayer of the petitioners may be granted. They, therefore, beg leave to introduce the annexed bill.

The bill, entitled "An Act to enable the owners and possessors of the meadow and marsh laying above the mouth of Matthew's Branch, on Woodbury Creek, to erect and maintain banks, dams, and water works sufficient to drain and improve the same,"

To the Honorable

the Legislative Council of the State of New Jersey.

GENTLEMEN,—In compliance with a Resolution, passed January———, requiring the Keeper of the New Jersey Penitentiary to furnish a statement of the amount of Education, to that of Crime, as exhibited in the cases and convictions to the New Jersey Prison.

Permit me to state, that of the number of prisoners now in confinement:

12 can read, write, cipher, and have studied grammar and geography.

25 can read, write, and cipher.

24 can read and write,

30 can read only.

13 can spell.

18 know the alphabet.

33 do not know the alphabet.

Making in all one hundred and thirty-five.

Of the above number fifty-one are blacks:

- 9 of them do not know the alphabet.
- 12 of them do know their letters.
- 11 of them can spell.
- 13 of them can read.
- 6 of them can read and write.

Of the whole number,

- 41 were convicted of burglary.
- 5 for setting fire to property.
- 49 " grand larceny.
- 6 " attempting to commit a rape.
- 15 " atrocious assault and battery.
- 2 " forgery.
- 4 " manslaughter.
- 1 " polygamy.
- 1 " sodomy.
- 3 " passing counterfeit money.
- 1 " attempting to poison.
- 3 " receiving stolen goods.
- 1 " turning switch on rail road.
- 2 " putting obstructions on rail road.
- 1 " bigamy.

The above statement is the result of careful investigation with each convict, which of itself, presents a scene in general, of the darkest ignorance, and as it is a subject intimately connected with a topic now agitating the community, the diffusion of general knowledge among the lower classes, I beg leave to make a few remarks deduced from the above document. That crime is the necessary concomitant of gross ignorance, is a fact which might long be dwelt upon, and admits no proof more striking than the entire want of education prevailing in this and all penitentiary institutions throughout the Union; but this as a first or principal cause I will leave to those worthy philanthropists to comment on, whose hearts never glowed with a holier flame; and endeavor to make a slight exposition of an abstract consequence, which is that when the ignorant mind becomes infatuated with crime, there is but little hope of recovery. Of the twelve men whom I have classed first and may be ranked as tolerably educated, I can say that I have hopes of most of them. The effect of education upon their minds develops itself plainly in their behaviour and general deportment; they are alive to all the sensations of shame and remorse, and deeply lament the prodigalities of the past. They are susceptible of religious impressions, and the fine feelings which it implants in their bosoms, enables them to reason, and draw the contrast between vice and virtue. Education has given them a taste for social happiness, the love of which makes them indignant and restless under shame and disgrace, and although religion should not administer its sanctifying aid, they may be allured from vice by the former. They do not discover that degree of wantonness and cupidity, common to the baser sort, but by an unfortunate chain of circumstances, have been as it were, imperceptibly whirled into the vortex of crime, from whence they would joyously return. To such men we do, and feel bound to, administer our gentlest sympathy, seeing they are susceptible of its impulse by a reciprocity of good behavior. And were a generous community to discover the same, education would prove triumphant, and they would become ornaments to society. Of those whose education, are very slight, reading, writing, &c., it may be observed that they discover a tractability, in proportion to the advantages received; but not having acquired a fondness for reading, their tastes are yet gross and vitiated, and discover but little susceptibility of fine feelings. Religious impressions may be made upon them, and that will be their only antidote. It is the only thing which in their present uncultivated state of mind can produce those re-acting influences, shame and remorse. They are men of vigorous minds and bodies, and good natural capacities, and had they been a little further improved, might not only have avoided the road to infamy, but become worthy members of society. From a variety of circumstances their education has been neglected; but principally from the poverty of their parents, who were in many cases intemperate, and suffered their children to roam at large. About twenty out of the one hundred and thirty-five, said their parents, were able to educate them. For such we feel the greatest pity, believing that it is in the power of a little wholesome legislation to arrest much of the calamity which awaits the future generation. Although these men of whom I have been speaking, seem to be enveloped in the darkest cloud of ignorance; yet they form a contrast with that class which I am now about to name, the grossly ignorant, which composes the majority of our number. Of these it may be remarked, that they possess a sagacity superior to the beast, and although they may have minds innate, yet it has never developed itself, for the want of education; but it is discoverable that there are grades among them, and these gradations exemplify themselves in proportion to the converse they have had with their superiors, and the families in which they have lived, very plainly showing that education might have had a sanctifying influence upon them. They possess but little susceptibility of any sort, and if they should ever reform, religion must be the cause, for education has not implanted in their bosoms, any charms of moral courage, to combat with the temptations which will daily beset them, and no shame to deter them from the disgrace of detection, and its consequent effects. These facts will, at first view, present to the mind a confutation of an opinion commonly current in our community, that the greater part of men, who get into prison are smart men. If the cunning of the fox, and the sagacity of the horse, may be called smartness, then the supposition is true ; but if applied to men of literary acquirements or mental capacity, it is false in nine cases out of ten. The above exhibit, does also prove the strong intimacy existing between vice and ignorance ; which should enkindle a holy zeal in every philanthropic bosom to press with renewed energy upon the minds of the community, the all important interests resulting from universal education.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Which were referred to the Committee on that subject.

Mr. Pierson, chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, presented the following report on the Finances of the State, accompanied with a Joint Resolution authorizing the Treasurer to borrow money :

THE COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS, to whom was referred the Report of the Treasurer on the Finances of the State made in obedience to a resolution of the House, passed January 10th, 1838, beg leave to submit the following Report, viz :

The attention of the Committee has been directed chiefly to those points in which the report above referred to, seemed to be at variance with the report of the "Committee on the Treasurer's accounts," which, with the Treasurer's account current, was submitted to the House of Assembly, November 8th, 1837. After careful investigation, your committee are prepared to say, that the discrepancies are more apparent than real, and are all susceptible of satisfactory solution; and as no censure has been charged, it is with great pleasure that your committee concur in the opinion that the facts furnish no ground of suspicion.

In relation to the balance in the Treasury, which is stated in the Report of the committee on the Treasurer's accounts, to be in cash, and otherwise accounted for, $2,519 69 1-2, on the 24th of October, 1837 : and whereas in the report of the Treasurer, made in January following, it is asserted that instead of a balance in favor of the treasury, there was then, viz., January 11th, 1838, a debt due and owing by the State of $69,834 94, the facts in the case prove the correctness of the Treasurer's statement. The misapprehension, if any there be, arises from a misapprehension of the character of the committee's report. That report does not profess to be a statement of the finances of the State ; disclosing the amount of the current receipts and disbursements, or the indebtedness of the treasury ; but simply a certificate, testifying that the committee have examined the accounts of the treasurer, his several vouchers, and the evidences of public property, and if any, what the cash balance is in the hands of the Treasurer as an accounting agent ; just in fact what the law respecting the office of Treasurer, passed November 27th, 1831, requires of the auditing committee : which certificate is for the express benefit of the Treasurer, and when so procured and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, is a full release of his securities. All the above items of information are to be found in the documents and accounts of the Treasurer which accompany the report of the auditing committee, and are yearly printed with the votes and proceedings of the House of Assembly ; and from which alone, any person can obtain a correct knowledge of the finances of the State. If there be any thing wrong in this matter, it is in the legislative directing to be printed by itself, this certificate of the committee. And in order to prevent hereafter a similar error, your committee concur in recommending a bill which accompanies this report.

In relation to the indebtedness of the State, which is correctly stated in the report of the Treasurer made last January, to be at that time $69,834 94 ; it is proper to observe, that the fiscal year of the treasury terminates by law on the day of the annual meeting of the legislature. To assume any other period in order to ascertain the condition of the finances, is only calculated to deceive and mislead. At that time, viz., October 24th, 1837, the debt of the State stands as follows, viz :

An old loan from the school fund on account of New Prison,	$48,317 25
A loan from the same fund to meet current ex- penses of the past year,	13,778 40
A loan from Trenton Banking Company on same account,	2,000 00

Interest due upon a loan previously obtained from school fund,	2,679 77
Making total,	$66,775.42
From this deduct the cash balance in the Treasury, as stated in the report of January,	2,533 08
And there will remain due and owing by the State, on the 24th of October, 1837,	$64,242 34

To this amount the Treasurer, in his report, has added the sum of $5,092 60, being the amount of disbursements made by him for liabilities incurred the preceding year. However true may be the view of the Treasurer as to the character of these liabilities; in the opinion of your committee, they cannot be chargeable in the account current of the past year; for they were not presented for payment up to the time of the termination of the fiscal year: and from this period until the appointment by joint meeting of a Treasurer, and the acceptance of his bond, these bills could not have been discharged by any officer of the State. The banks, in which the Treasurer is required to deposit all his cash receipts, are prohibited by law, from paying any of his drafts, from the day of the annual meeting of the legislature, until duly notified by the Secretary of State, of the appointment of the Treasurer and the acceptance of his bond; which, in the present instance, reaches from October 24th, 1837, to the 15th day of November, following. These disbursements then, are of necessity, appropriate charges in the account current the present year. The present Treasurer holds the vouchers for them. It is apparent at once, that for all time to come, a similar occurrence will take place; that liabilities to a greater or less extent, occurring near the close of any fiscal year, will not be presented for payment till some time in the succeeding year. In the present case, they may possibly be greater than at any former, or than they will be at any future period.

From the foregoing statement, it will be perceived that, independent of an old debt for the construction of the prison, an additional loan was made of $15,925 09, to meet the current expenditures of the past year, which loan remained unpaid at the commencement of the present year. By reference to a report of the Treasurer, made February 23d, 1837, in obedience to a resolution of the House, it will be observed that the receipts were estimated to exceed the expenditures by the sum of $17,388 33, on the fourth Tuesday of October, 1837; whereas, the fact is, instead of having any means in the treasury to diminish the old debt, there is an actual deficit, and an additional debt actually created of the above sum of $15,925 09. And here it may be proper to observe, that upon this estimated calculation, the committee on the tax bill of the last legislature, grounded the recommendation of dispensing with any income from taxes: and upon the same basis, doubtless, the legislature acted in adopting the recommendation. The result has clearly proved that the policy of the measure was premature; for in the opinion of your committee, a return to direct taxation is unavoidable, if we would even meet the current expenditures of the year, without resort to permanent loans; to say nothing of providing means of diminishing the old debt, or even any part of the additional debt created last year, in consequence of the above deficit. In the language of the Treasurer, 'it is certainly questionable policy in a time of peace, with no extraordinary causes calling for an increase of expenditures, to suffer our public debt to augment.'

In searching out the causes of this deficit, your committee have obtained a tabular statement from the Treasurer, showing the annual amount of expenditures from the year 1830, to the year ending in October, 1837; inclusive; which is hereunto annexed, (marked A.) From this statement it appears that the total amount of expenditures in the year 1830, was $34,326 94, and the total amount in the year 1837, $67,649 14, nearly double. That the several items of legislative, incidental, inquisitions, printing, and State account, are more than doubled: in the item of salaries, there is an increase of $2,000; of revolutionary pensions, $400; of deaf and dumb appropriations, $800; while in the item of transportation of prisoners, there is a decrease of $1,900. A comparative estimate from the same table, will exhibit a gradual increase of expense between the periods above referred to; and a comparison of the year 1837, and the preceding, will show an excess in the former, of more than $20,000. This is attributable to the extra session of the legislature, the increased pay of members, and to an increase of salaries, inquisitions, printing and State accounts.

In reference to the error detected by the Treasurer, in the amount of the school fund, your committee have carefully examined the accounts. We are satisfied that the joint committee on the Treasurer's accounts did, in their examination, discover a mistake, to which they called the attention of the former Treasurer. In making the correction, that officer put down the wrong figure; simply a clerical mistake. And the true amount is, as stated in the report of January 11th, $269,-060 68. It is proper, however, to observe that this whole amount is not available. It includes the sum of $1,268 30, being arrearages of taxes due from the New-Brunswick Bank, Washington Bank, and Mechanics' Bank at Paterson. This money has been due for some years. These banks have been enjoined by the Chancellor. Receivers have been appointed, and their affairs have already been brought to a close, or are in a process of final settlement. Should all, or any part of it, be finally lost, it will abate so much from the above sum. The available amount, at any rate, is at present, less by the sum of $1,267 30 To this subject the attention of the House was directed a few days since, by a resolution submitted by your committee.

It is stated in the Treasurer's report of last January, that an over payment was made by the "Camden and Amboy Rail Road and Transportation Company," in the quarter ending the 30th of September last, of $2,822 89. Upon inquiry, your committee are satisfied that this has been a common practice pursued in a spirit of accommodation by the Company, whenever the treasury was in want of funds: that at the termination of the last quarter of the account current with that company, which is the last of December of each year, the balance is correctly ascertained, and received from the company, be it more or less. The State loses nothing by the operation; although in consequence of the fiscal year of the treasury department not corresponding in point of time, with the account current of that company, a sum may be added to one fiscal year of that office, and taken from another. The same thing may be done, and in the same spirit, the present year. At all events, the sum over paid is but a trifle more than the cash balance in the treasury, at the commencement of the present year.

In the estimate of probable expenditures and receipts submitted to the legislature in obedience to a resolution bearing date January 10, 1838, your committee are of opinion that the estimate of the former is quite low enough. It will be borne in mind, that it embraces, not only the current expenses of the present year, but the deficit of the last year, amounting as before stated, to the sum of $15,925 09, and the additional sum of $5,092 00, of liabilities of the past year, which have necessarily been crowded into this. In the estimate of receipts, we apprehend there is an over calculation. The tax of one-fourth of one per cent. on the capital stock of the New Jersey Rail Road and Transportation Company, amounting to $2,815, which is included by the Treasurer in the calculation ; in the opinion of the committee, corroborated by the opinion of the Attorney General, that company are not required by the provisions of the charter, to pay the present year. If this be deducted from the amount receivable from all other sources as estimated, there will be a balance against the treasury, at the close of the year, of $41,822 69. To meet this deficit there is no recourse, but, as before stated, direct taxation ; unless the legislature shall deem it advisable to augment the public debt. The sum to be raised by taxes, we apprehend, ought not to be less than $40,000. But these receipts are not in hand, and will be only at distant periods of the year ; and the taxes, if any are raised, will not come in 'till some months after the close of the year ; it becomes necessary, therefore, to provide not only for the future, but the immediate wants of the treasury, which, we are informed, are pressing. Your committee, therefore concur in reporting a joint resolution, authorizing temporary loans.

The interest receivable from the available school fund, is estimated not less than	$14,500 00
Which, added to the bank tax, estimated at	23,000 00
Will make the sum of	<hr/> $37,500 00
Which is disposable in whole or in part, for the purposes of common schools.

Annexed is a statement (marked B) by the Treasurer, of the several cash appropriations, and of the labor done by prisoners, in the construction of the new penitentiary, amounting to the sum of $217,817 25.

In relation to the distribution of the surplus revenue, the subject is still under investigation. The trustees, to whom the distribution was confided, have retained in their hands, one-fourth of one per cent. of the first instalment, amounting to $637 22 for the purpose of defraying charges and expenses. In the incidental bill passed March 15, 1837, there is an allowance of $36 42 for expenses of receivers of the surplus revenue ; and your committee have been able to find no legislative provision for the pay of these officers, excepting what is contained in the 3d section of the act making provisions for the deposit and distribution of the surplus revenue, passed March 10th, 1837, which authorizes a per diem allowance, equivalent to that usually allowed to members of the board of chosen freeholders.

It will remain for the consideration of the House, to determine, if any, what legislative action is necessary in the premises.

All which is respectfully submitted with the accompanying bill and joint resolution.

In behalf of the Committee,

WM. PIERSON, jr. Chairman.

House of Assembly, Feb. 8th, 1838.

The undersigned, commissioners appointed under an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An act for the relief of the State of New Jersey, in relation to the estate of John G. Leake, deceased," passed March 15, 1837 ; beg leave to report that the commissioners, after meetings held at Princeton, Hoboken, Newark, and Trenton, met at Princeton, on the 22d day of December, 1837, at which time there were present, Elias P. Seeley, and William C. Alexander, commissioners named in the above mentioned act, and Henry Hillard, a commissioner appointed by the late Governor, in the place of George K. Drake, deceased ; and proceeded to the discharge of their duties.

The following petitions were presented and read, to wit :

The petitions of Daniel McPherson, and wife, George Calder, and Isabella Fraser, claiming to be heirs and next of kin of John G. PRINCETON, N. J. February 19th, 1838.

To the Hon. Lewis Condict,

Speaker of the House of Assembly of the State of New-Jersey.

SIR :

In referring to the charter of the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company, it appears to be proper that the Legislature should be in possession of the enclosed Report of the Engineer in Chief, and that it should become matter of public record.

Will you be pleased to give a proper direction to it for that end.

I have the honor to be. Sir,

Your very humble and faithful Servant,

R. F. STOCKTON.

To R. F. Stockton, Esq ,

President of the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company.

SIR :

In compliance with a resolution of the Board of Directors, to report to you whether the Delaware and Raritan Canal and Feeder, are complete according to the act of Assembly incorporating the Company ; when they were completed ; and why they were not sooner completed ? I have to inform you that the Delaware and Raritan Canal and Feeder have been completed within the present month. of the dimensions required by the act of Assembly incorporating that company.

The Canal is seven feet deep and seventy-five feet wide on the water line. The dimensions of the Feeder are larger than required by the act ; and the locks are one hundred and ten feet long between the gates. and twenty-four feet wide in the clear.

The delay in the completion of these great works, if there has been any unexpected delay, has arisen from the tedious manner in which we have been compelled to excavate the Feeder at Bull's Island, being obliged to work with a steam dredging machine under water, and from the time required for the completion and strengthening those parts of the work which were necessarily left unfinished till the water was let in and the banks settled.

Yours, Respectfully,

ASHBEL WELCH,
Engineer Delaware and Raritan Canal.

Leake, late of the city of New York, deceased, as per report filed January 1st, 1838, in the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court at Trenton, which said decree and decision of the said Commissioners, being by the said act declared to be final and conclusive, on the State of New Jersey. And the Attorney General being satisfied and willing to certify as to the sum of money to be declared sufficient to pay and indemnify the State of New Jersey, under said act, with respect to all other claims, costs and expenses, save only that presented and exhibited on the part of the said Trustee ; and is prepared to execute and deliver a release of all the right, title and interest of this State, of, in and to the said lands, tenements and hereditaments of which the said John G. Leake died seized, in the county of Bergen, under and in pursuance of the act and decree aforesaid. And the same appearing to your committee, the premises considered to be just and proper, we do therefore respectfully recommend, that the Attorney General be authorized and directed to file his said certificate and declaration with the Treasurer, and upon the payment of the said sum to the said Treasurer, to deliver the said release, subject only to a proviso of leave therein to be inserted, by apt words, to the extent of any legal and just claim on part of the said Trustee, which may hereafter be exhibited, ascertained and established. Therefore,

Resolved, That the Attorney General of this State be, and he hereby is authorized and directed to execute and deliver to the said James Thomson, the said Release mentioned in the said act, entitled "An Act for the relief of the State of New Jersey, in relation to the estate of John G. The Committee on Ways and Means, to whom was referred the Report of Philemon Dickerson, Governor, and Jacob Kline, Treasurer, bearing date October 27, 1837, on the subject of the surplus revenue, distributed to the several counties agreeably to the provisions of an act passed March 10th, 1837, beg leave to state, that after a full investigation of the accounts and vouchers, they find that there has been received from the General Government, three equal instalments of the surplus fund, amounting in the whole, to the sum of $764,670 60 ; that in apportioning the above sum to the several counties, agreeably to the provisions of the aforesaid act, certificates of deposite pledging the faith of the several counties receiving the same, are on file in the office of the Treasurer, to the above amount of $764,670 60 ; while the sum of money actually paid over to the counties amounts to $764,033 38, leaving a balance in the hands of the Trustees of 637 22.

The above balance being one fourth of one per cent. on the first instalment, has been retained for the purpose of paying costs and charges. But as your committee can find no provision of law authorizing the payment of such costs and charges, they concur in opinion with the Trustees, that special legislation is necessary. Your committee are unanimously of opinion, that a fair and honorable compensation is justly due for the labor and responsibility incurred in the receiving and distributing of so large a sum of money ; and cheerfully unite in commending the claims of the gentlemen who had it in charge, to the consideration of the Committee on Incidental Expenses, through whom the subject may be fairly brought before the House ;

The House adjourned to to-morrow morning at nine o'clock.

TUESDAY, February 27th, 1838.

At nine o'clock the House met.

Mr. Duryee presented a petition from Sampson Smith, praying for a divorce;

Which was referred to the Committee on Divorces.

Mr. Duryee presented the following report from the Quarter Master General:

To His Excellency

WILLIAM PENNINGTON, Governor,

Captain General, and Commander in Chief of all the Militia and other Military force of N. Jersey.

The undersigned, Quarter Master General of the State of New-Jersey, begs leave respectfully to report:

That since the date of the last report from this office, which he had the honor to communicate to the late Commander in Chief, there have been received at the New-Jersey State Arsenal, under the act of Congress of April, 1808, "for arming and equipping the whole body of the Militia of the U. S.," a large amount of muskets, pistols, sabres, swords, and accoutrements, with two brass field-pieces, (six pounders,) equal in value to two thousand eight hundred and eight and two-thirteenths muskets, (or thirty-six thousand five hundred and seven dollars,) of which 2172 muskets, 123 pistols, and 60 sabres, have been suspended, with others, in the armory fitted up during the past year: the residue, except the two field-pieces, remain in boxes as received.

For the preservation of the field-pieces, it was deemed expedient to fit up the stone building in the Arsenal yard, and the same is so arranged as to contain six or eight others.

The undersigned would respectfully suggest to your Excellency the propriety of requesting an appropriation by the Legislature, to be expended in some needed alterations and repairs of the State Arsenal, for the preservation of the stock from injury by the damp walls of the buildings; as also for the better accommodation of the armorer and his family.

The undersigned would also beg leave respectfully to suggest the expediency of suspending the act of March 9, 1837, entitled "An Act relative to the distribution of the public arms."

All which is respectfully submitted.

SAM'L R. HAMILTON,

Q. M. General of N. J.

Trenton, Feb. 20, 1838.

Which was ordered to lie upon the table.

Mr. A. S. Pennington, from the Committee on Corporations, to which had been referred the bill from Council, entitled "A further Supplement to an Act, entitled "An Act to incorporate the contributors to the society for establishing useful manufactures, and for the further encouragement of said society," passed 22d November, 1791,"

Reported the same without amendment.

On motion, said bill was postponed to the next session of the Legislature.

Mr. Dod from the Select Committee to whom were referred sundry petitions from different parts of the State, praying for the passage of a law to prevent horse racing, and also a remonstrance from inhabitants of the county of Bergen, against the passage of any such act, beg leave to

REPORT :

That they have given to the subject such consideration as its importance seemed to demand, and now lay before the house the result of their deliberations.

Your committee are, perhaps, as fully sensible of the demoralizing influence exerted upon the community, by the intemperance, profanity, and gambling, which are the never failing attendants upon all those collections of persons which occur at the race course, as any of your petitioners can be; and as ardently wish that the moral sense of the community was such as to put an end to these scenes of iniquity. But they are constrained to believe, that the revival of the act formerly passed for this purpose, before the moral energies of the people are sufficiently aroused to lead them to enforce its penalties, would only be adding to the evils which now attend this pernicious practice.

An act to prevent horse racing, was passed in February, 1811, imposing heavy penalties upon the owners of horses that should be run at any public assemblage of persons, and also upon the owners of lands over which such race should be run ; and it was made the imperative duty of certain officers, in any township where a violation of the provisions of the act might occur, to commence suits immediately for the recovery of those penalties. This act remained in force for more than twenty years ; and although its provisions were directly violated, in many hundreds of instances, and numerous prosecutions were for a time, commenced at the instigation, and under the direction of a small number of the friends of good morals, your committee are not aware that one single conviction was ever obtained.—Witnesses were called and sworn to “ tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth ;” and it is believed, that in many instances they were guilty of downright perjury, for the purpose of screening the accused, from the legal consequences of their unlawful acts. Jurors also, were sworn “ to give a true verdict according to evidence ;” and yet, notwithstanding the violations of the provisions of the law, were, in many cases, clearly proved, by unimpeachable witnesses, there were always to be found some one or more of the jury, who would not agree to a verdict to convict the offender.

This law, then, was wholly inefficient, as respects the purpose for which it was intended. It did not prevent the evils, at which it was aimed ; and it became the cause of others, whenever an attempt was made to enforce its penalties. Such, your committee fear, would prove the result of the re-enactment of that law.

But notwithstanding all the difficulties attending the subject, your committee entertain the belief that it is practicable, so to frame a law, that its penalties could not well be evaded. But as the session is near its close, and much business not yet disposed of, they are constrained to refer the matter to the wisdom of a future legislature ; and they are not without the hope, that the time may soon come, when the good people of the state will be so sensible of the manifold evils arising from this practice, as not only to be willing to petition the legislature to pass an act to abolish it, but also to resolve, with firm purpose, to enforce the penalties of such a law, whenever any violation of it shall occur.

Your committee cannot close their report, without reference to a sentiment contained in the remonstrance from the county of Bergen. The remonstrants say, that the race course in that county was established “by legislative sanction.” Such is not the fact. The legislature, in 1835, repealed certain sections of the act of 1811, because it had not been found practicable to enforce them ; but they gave no sanction to the demoralizing practice of establishing public, or other race courses ; and those who have expended money in their establishment, can have no claim to the protection of the legislature, nor the sympathy of the people, if they should be hereafter suppressed,

Your committee, therefore, respectfully submit to the consideration of the House, the following resolution :

Resolved, That it is not expedient to attempt, at this time, the passage of any act on the subject of horse racing.

Which was ordered to be read and printed.

The Chair presented an invitation to the members to attend a meeting of the New-Jersey Colonization Society, to be held in the Presbyterian Church, this evening.

And have passed said bill.

The House adjourned to to-morrow morning at seven o'clock.

FRIDAY, March 2d, 1838.

At seven o'clock the House met.

A message from Council, by Mr. Hornor, their Secretary, informed the House of Assembly that Council have adopted the following concurring resolution ; viz.

Resolved, (the Assembly concurring), That the commissioners appointed by an act, entitled "An Act relating to the lands belonging to this State at Patterson, in the County of Essex," passed February 27th, 1834, be and they are hereby required to account to the Treasurer of this State, for the leasing or other disposition of said lands, and that the Treasurer report the same at the next sitting of the Legislature, and request the concurrence of the House of Assembly thereto.

The concurring resolution from Council, relative to the commissioners of the State Lands at Paterson, was taken up, and agreed to.

Mr. Cassedy offered the following :

Resolved, That the thanks of this House are due, and are hereby presented, to the Honorable Lewis Condict, for the gentlemanly courtesy, and impartiality with which he has discharged the duties of Speaker of the present Legislature.

Whereupon, the Speaker rose, and made the following reply :

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

The hour has come, when we are to close our Legislative duties, and return to our constituents.

It does not become us to sit in judgement on our own doings. We shall be called to a scrutiny as rigid, no doubt as becomes Freemen to institute in the proceedings of those to whom they have delegated the high prerogative of enacting their laws. From this scrutiny, fairly and honorably conducted, we have nothing to apprehend. Our constituents are enlightened enough to know the diversity of opinion which exists in every community, even upon the plainest and simplest questions of daily occurrence. And in the great and complicated questions, judicial, executive, and miscellaneous, which must mingle in the hall of legislation, they know full well, that all that can be accomplished, must be more or less the result of compromise of opinions honestly entertained, which must be yielded, or the result must inevitably be a failure to do any thing.

Our proceedings will be weighed with candor, and enlightened liberality ; and although we have come short in many important particulars, of what might have been more conducive to the public welfare, yet we shall I trust, have the consolation of an approving conscience, that we have honestly and faithfully contributed our best efforts to advance the honor and prosperity of our State.

In the Resolution which you have so kindly adopted, I see much more of your own courtesy in looking over the many defects of your presiding officer than of merit on my own part. For this partiality and kindness I feel sincerely grateful. For such an assembly as this, so distinguished for its love of order — for its devotion to its duty — for the harmony of its members, I can never entertain other feelings than those of the highest respect and lasting attachment. Over such an Assembly I have found it a pleasure and an honor to preside.

A vote of thanks has come to be no uncommon occurrence in Legislative Assemblies ; and most frequently it originates with the political friends of the presiding officer. In the present instance the practice is changed, and I am indebted to the minority for this kind expression of their approbation ; and to my mind it greatly enhances its value. If I had been your first choice, gentlemen, I certainly could not have expected from you, more urbanity and respect for the Chair than you have evinced from the commencement of our session. It has been my intention in the discharge of official duty to know no party distinctions except those which are recognized and practised by all public bodies. The kindness and friendship which has dictated your resolution will not soon be forgotten by me. It is a keepsake which, I shall prize and remember as a proof of your confidence and for which I tender you my cordial acknowledgement.

And now the parting hour is at hand, I cannot express to you the real satisfaction I experience in the knowledge of the fact that we part as friends, carrying no animosities, no enmities towards each other. There is a consolation herein, that neither you nor I would exchange for the show and pageantry of stations which are more elevated, where the false notions of a false and bastard species of honor prevails, which stifles freedom of speech, and reddens the hands of brothers with brothers blood. To many of us this probably will be one final separation, until we meet where the parting hour never comes. For that hour, may each of us stand in preparation, that come when it may, it may find our work done, and well done. And may you all have a safe and speedy journey, and a joyful meeting with those endeared friends, who will greet your return to your own happy firesides.

After which the House adjourned sine die.

Attest,

RALPH H. SHREVE, Clerk.
